BOYS INSANE PLEA TO BE PLEA

Franks Slayers Course Fixed

Grand Jury Asked to Indict Youths for Crimes, With Gallows as Penalty

Three Murders, Maiming Now Laid to Pair; Evidence in Kidnaping Growing

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, June 3.—Insanity will be the plea of the defense when Richard Loeb and Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., come to trial for the murder of 13-year-old Robert Franks.

This move was decided upon today following a series of conferences between Clarence S. Darrow and Benjamin Bachrach, who are retained as counsel, and millionaire relatives of the self-confessed murderers.

It is understood the decision was reached following information from the State's Attorney's office that evidence connecting Leopold and Loeb with at least three other murders, a gland robbery and a series of hold-ups are piling up rapidly.

GRAND JURY HEARS
PLEA FOR INDICTMENT

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CHICAGO, June 3.—The Cook county grand jury today was asked to indict Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, youthful sons of millionaires and confessed kidnapers and slayers of Robert Franks, schoolboy son of another wealthy Chicagoan, for murder and kidnaping for ransom, each crime punishable by death, while the superior court investigated the possible connection of the youths with the death of two other persons and the mutilation of a third.

Robert E. Crowe, State's Attorney, who is presenting the Franks case to the grand jury in person, and assistants today to investigate the possible involvement of Leopold and Loeb in the shooting to death of Freman Louis Tracy, twenty-eighteen, whose body was found with a bullet through the head and in the mutilation a few days later of Charles Ream, a taxicab driver. With a similar end in view an official investigation was made of the death several months ago of Melvin Wolf, who was found in the home of his wealthy parents to mail a letter and whose body was found in the lake. Police never were satisfied with the decision of authorities that he committed suicide.

MANY WITNESSES

Seven witnesses went before the grand jury today and more than a score yet remain to be heard. The grand jury will reconvene tomorrow afternoon.

Adjournment of Congress Voted

La Follette Loses in Move for Recess Only Until After Conventions

Radical Farm Aid Program Doomed as House Rejects McNary-Haugen Bill

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, June 3.—This Congress will adjourn at 7 o'clock next Saturday evening. The Senate this afternoon adopted the House resolution of adjournment until next December by a vote of 53 to 36.

The La Follette forces went down to defeat smilingly. The substitute resolution of the Wisconsin Senator for adjournment until July 7, to make possible enactment of radical farmer relief legislation was voted down, 52 to 36.

Thus the "issue" was made for radicals and the campaign for the Middle West may now be considered launched.

Just to fill the cup of happiness for those who are fishing for the farmer vote the House today defeated the McNary-Haugen bill by a vote of 231 to 154.

This was the measure the farm bloc had demanded with all the strength they could muster from their wavering ranks. "Give us this or nothing," they said two weeks ago. The answer probably will be nothing, although in the Senate today Senator Brookhart said he would seek action on the Norris bill creating a $100,000,000 corporation to buy and sell farm products. Senator Norris said he considered the situation hopeless.

REJECT COMPROMISES

Not only did the House kill the McNary-Haugen bill that it refused to take on any modified scheme, rejecting a last minute effort of Representative Jones, Democrat, Texas, to recommit the bill, limiting its operation to wheat, flour, swine and swine products, reducing the capital stock from $200,000,000 to $100,000,000, reducing the life of the corporation from five to two years and giving the President discretion in declaring an agricultural emergency. This was defeated by 131 to 69.

The vote on the original measure showed 100 Republicans, fifty-two Democrats and two Independents for it, and 122 Democrats, 101 Republicans and one Socialist against it.

With the action taken, Senator La Follette, who had been busy on the Senate floor gathering his supporters together, called up his adjournment resolution, based on the failure of Congress to legislate according to his views.

POLICE IN RUM RAID GUN FIGHT

Husband and Wife Jailed on Liquor Charge After Hot Pitched Battle

A pitched battle in front of 941 Concord street, in which a squad of raiders in charge of Sergt. Childers of the police vice squad exchanged shots with Edward A. Henry of the above address, featured a liquor raid on Henry's residence at 10:30 o'clock last night. None of the combatants was hit.

When the smoke of the battle cleared away and the frightened neighbors began to come out of impromptu dugouts, Henry and his wife were bundled off to Central Station where he was booked on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon and possession of liquor. Mrs. Henry was charged with possession of liquor.

According to Sergt. Childers, who was assisted by Patrolmen Appledorn, Maxwell and Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Henry were met by the officers coming out of the house. The woman was carrying a case of asserted beer, the officers charge. Later the officers led Henry into a garage in the rear on a hunt for liquor. Suddenly, the police declare, Henry pulled out a gun, began to abuse the officers and ordered them out of the place. Playing for time, the officers complied.

Hardly had they reached the street, they declare, when Henry opened fire on them without warning. The officers returned the fire. Bullets clipped through the air and hit surrounding houses. Henry sought refuge in his house. After obtaining reinforcements from the Hollenbeck Heights Police Station, the police succeeded in capturing Henry by means of a ruse.

SHORTRIDGE PUSHES TAX PLEA AHEAD

Senator Arranges for More Evidence to Speed Refund of California Millions

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Senator Shortridge today arranged with Atty-Gen. Stone that additional evidence be submitted whereby taxpayers of California should enjoy the privilege conferred on other Federal income taxpayers by community property laws. This will be done at first by filing briefs with the Attorney-General setting up in detail the court decisions establishing the right of California taxpayers to many millions of dolars in refunds on taxes already paid for income assessments, as well as other millions in inheritance taxes on community property, which should have been tax free.

If the proof furnished in these written arguments is not sufficient, hearings will be arranged and witnesses from California called to prove the contentions that California is entitled to enjoy the privileges guaranteed by former Atty.-Gen. Daugherty's decision, that the Internal Revenue Commissioner should follow the decision of the Blum case and refund to owners of community property both income taxes since 1917 and inheritance taxes on community property as well.

GRAND JURY CALLED IN FIRE

Keyes Orders Inquiry on All "Homes"; Inquest Fails to Fix Death Blaze Blame; Cause Unsolved

As a Coroner's inquest completed the examination of a score of witnesses of the holocaust which Saturday night destroyed the Hope Development School at Playa del Rey and burned to death twenty-three of its occupants, Dist.-Atty Keyes yesterday ordered the convention of a special session of the county grand jury to delve into the condition of every social service institution in the county.

The grand jury will meet this morning; subpoenas for fifteen operators of homes for subnormal boys and girls were issued last night. And the inquisitorial body, with the assistance of the District Attorney and Chief Criminal Deputy Fitts and Dep. Dist.-Atty. Richardson, has announced its intention of "devising ways and means to remedy any existing similar bad conditions in all other institutions" in this district.

HERE FOR INQUIRY

As these events were transpiring State Fire Marshal Stevens arrived in Los Angeles with instructions from Gov. Richardson to make a full and complete inquiry into all phases of the fire and the operation of social service hospitals and schools in the entire Southern California district. Fire Marshal Stevens yesterday conferred with Fire Chief Scott and Assistant Fire Chief Davis of Los Angeles, visited the scene of the Hope school disaster and attended the afternoon session of the Coroner's inquest.

It was a pitiful session, that inquest. For there, for the first time, more than fifty mothers, fathers, sisters and brothers or friends of the dead in the catastrophe heard the stories of the witnesses in the fire. And some of them, who had never given up hope that their loved ones might still be alive, heard the certain verdict of identification.

Plainly their sobs and choked cries of grief resounded through the little hall. As name after name on the roll call of death was read from the lists, they rose from their seats and with tears streaming down their cheeks made their way to the roaring streets outside, and, in the midst of a city built for joy, made brave effort to compose their sorrow.

BOWED BY GRIEF

All day long they sat there, these bereaved ones with twisted faces and reddened eyes; it seemed as though they could not understand that message which the hand of fate had written on the wall of time. And their burden was only the harder to carry because they realized that even in death fate had denied them a last glimpse of those who were taken away; for now no human eyes can pierce the heavy canvass in which those pitifully charred bodies are sown.

They heard the verdict of the jury with closed eyes and bowed heads; it was almost as though a prayer was read. The foreman gave it:

"We, the Coroner's jury, find that the deceased came to their deaths May 31, 1924, by the incineration of their bodies in the destruction by fire of the Hope Development School, of which they were inmates.

"We are unable to determine the origin of the fire from the evidence presented. We do not find that this fire was the result of carelessness on the part of the

BANKERS RE-ELECT WHIPPLE

Turlock Man Has No Opposition; Independents Lay Plans to Resist Chain System

BY CHAPIN HALL
"Times" Staff Representative

YOSEMITE LODGE, June 3.—Howard Whipple, president of the First National Bank of Turlock, was re-elected president of the California League of Independent Bankers this afternoon without opposition. J. S. MacDonnell, president of the First National Bank of Pasadena, was elected vice-president; A. L. Parmley, vice-president of the Western Savings Bank of Long Beach, treasurer, and G. W. Butler of Turlock, secretary.

The executive committee for the ensuing year will include the following bankers, who have been active in the fight for the independent or unit bank as distinguished from the institutions operating a system of branches: E. L. Bickford, Napa; C. C. Martin, San Diego; R. D. McCook, San Bernardino; W. F. Morrish, Berkeley; A. L. Parmley, Long Beach; A. W. Quinn, Exeter; C. H. Saggerstrom, Sonora; S. I. Stewart, Pasadena, N. D. Vaughn, Fresno; Leon Bacqueraz, San Francisco; W. B. Clancy, Riverside, Marion Deneen, Reedley; George Meredith, Oakland; George Boyd, Yuba City, and J. H. Miller, Healdsburg.

OPENING GUN

The meeting of the independents was the opening gun of the thirteenth convention of the California Bankers' Association and was called preliminary to the regular convention, which starts tomorrow, in order that the "Liberty or Death" associates might have ample time to discuss their own problems, many of which are distinct from those favoring the free and unlimited extension of branch banking.

The independents have been organized for nearly two years, during which time President Whipple says much has been accomplished. At present their hopes are pinned to the McFadden bill, which either will or will not become a law before Congress adjourns. Some of the officials thinks that even this legislation does not go far enough in their protection. The issue, according to members of the league, resolves itself into this question:

"Shall the banking unit, composed largely of home-town capital and officered by home-town folks be protected against the inroads of the great metropolitan corporations with large capitalization and heavy deposits who are carrying their bid for business to

POWERFUL GROUP JOINS IN MOVE TO OUST MILLERAND

French President's Position Held Untenable Following Hostile Vote by Senate Bloc

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

PARIS, June 3.—One hundred and twenty-two Senators of the Democratic Left, which is the most important group in the Senate, adopted a resolution this afternoon declaring that M. Millerand must resign from the Presidency. The Senate numbers 300.

The Republican union at a caucus which M. Poincare attended for the first time since he assumed the Premiership two and a half years ago, adopted a motion deprecating the agitation against the Chief of State and affirming the principles that the President ought to be allowed to fill out his term of office. M. Poincare supported the motion.

M. De Jouvenel, Minister of Public Instruction, opposed the adverse resolution at the caucus of the Democratic Left and proposed that a committee wait on the President and confer with him regarding the situation before action was taken. An overwhelming majority, however, sympathized with the radical Socialist movement.

This is regarded in parliamentary circles as making the situation untenable for M. Millerand. The President's friends still maintain that he will stand firmly on his constitutional rights and wait for Parliament to take a formal vote on the question before resigning. The final crisis is expected to come after the election of the president of the Chamber tomorrow.

The choice of the radical Socialist coalition for this office is former Premier Painleve. He will have as his opponent Andre Maginot, Minister of War in the outgoing Cabinet, who late this evening consented to be the candidate of the Republican-Democrat group and the Republicans of the Left. This election will be the first clash between the new majority and the opposition.

Whoever is elected will be invited by M. Millerand to confer on the formation of a new Cabinet, along with M. Doumergue, president of the Senate. If Edouard Herriot is recommended as head of the new government, Mr. Millerand will send for the radical leader.

M. Herriot has kept secret thus far whether he will accept the mission to form a ministry from M. Millerand.

The opinion expressed in the lobbies of the Chamber today was that no man capable of heading the government would undertake such a task if M. Herriot declines or if the Chamber refuses to give him a vote of confidence.

MARX-STRESEMANN
CABINET REGAINS POWER

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

BERLIN, June 3.—The Marx-Stresemann Cabinet, which resigned May 26, but continued to carry on current affairs, is back in office. President Ebert tonight reappointed Dr. Wilhelm Marx as Chancellor and confirmed the members of his ministry in their posts.

In the period intervening since the resignation of the Cabinet it had been found impossible to bring about an alignment of parties so that a new ministry could come into power and the final outcome is a reunion of the German People's party with the Clericals and Democrats, enabling the Marx-Stresemann combination to return to office.

The decision to end the most hectic of Parliamentary crises came at the close of a day marked by desultory attempts to reopen negotiations with the German Nationalists. The latter's political ambitions, as reflected in an unofficial communique issued in the course of the afternoon, convinced Chancellor Marx and his associates in the Democratic party that further parleys with the Hergt party would force the middle parties into an ignominious position and the Chancellor led the way in announcing his determination to revive the retiring ministry or resign the mandate given him by President Ebert.

The People's party, on the other hand, held out for an understanding with the Nationalists, to whom

Delegation is Dominant at Opening of Convention in Washington

Los Angeles Man Describes Wonderful Development Under Way Here

BY ROBERT B. ARMSTRONG

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Californians dominate dthe city of Washington today in the opening sessions of the convention of the National Associaiton of Real Estate Boards. At 12:30 all the Golden State delegations posed in front of the Treasury Department, and at 2 o'clock it gathered in the conference room of the Department of Commerce and listened to a welcome from the Californian who presides as Secretary over that department, Herbert Hoover. California songs were sung and when someone suggested that the Secretary of Commerce would make a good Vice-President, all the Californians rose to their feet and joined in a real ovation to the Secretary.

Thursday the entire convention will be addressed by President Coolidge from the portico of the White House, and the week will be crowded with real business meetings, entertainments and sight-seeing.

Henry Barbour of Long Beach presided at the meeting, with Secretary Hoover. Other prominent Southern California realtors present were William May Garland, W. I. Hollingsworth, C. C. C. Tatum, Harry H. Culver and many others who have made fame for Los Angeles and the State.

BILLION-DOLLAR YEAR

Mr. Garland, president of the William M. Garland Company of Los Angeles, and director of the California Development Association, who arrived today to attend the national convention, gave out the following statement regarding California:

"This is a billion-dollar year for California. Contracts and appropriations for hydroelectric power development, railway construction, highway construction, irrigation development and building construction will amount to over $1,250,000,000 this year.

"We are thoroughly alive in California to the great development that is coming to the United States in general and to California in particular, and are hitching man power to the natural resources of our State.

"California has enormous natural advantages in her forests, her streams, in her minerals, in her lands, in her fisheries, in her homesites, in her climate and in her commanding position on the Pacific. We realize, however, that these natural advantages alone will not bring to the State the development that it is entitled to.

SYSTEMATIC PROGRAM

"Men of vision in California, who have carefully followed the growth in population and in industrial development, fully realize that future growth must be made in conformity with a well-planned, systematic program.

"California has had a natural growth that has brought an investment in industry to the State of $1,500,000,000. We expect to make that investment $3,000,000,000 by 1930.

"We are also preparing in California for a population of 30,000,000 people.

"I am of the firm belief that never in the history of America has the outlook been so bright from an economic standpoint.

"An analysis of world conditions, of conditions in the United States and particularly of conditions in California shows that there is every reason to believe that we are now entering upon an era of unprecedented prosperity. We intend to be prepared for the opportunities that are developing."

REBELS ATTEMPT TO WRECK OBREGON TRAIN

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TORREON (Mex.) June 3.—A small band of Villista rebels attempted to wreck the special train carrying a sister and the children of President Obregon en route to Sonora via the United States. The rebels are supposed to have been advised that the President was aboard the train. They were evidently misinformed as to the hour of arrival. A bridge was burned between the stations of Bachimba and Consuelo in the State of Chihuahua, but the train had already passed.

House Committee Approves Bill

Plans for Greater Harbor Here Given Tremendous Impetus in Congress

Outlay of $17,250,000 on Improvement Program is Recommended

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Congress took the initial step today to give Los Angeles and Long Beach one of the great harbors of the world. The Rivers and Harbors Committee after listening to Gen. Taylor, new head of the board of engineers of the rivers and harbor division of the War Department; Congressmen Fredericks and Congressman Lineberger, reported out an amendment to the river and harbor bill recommending that the House authorize improvements at a cost of $17,250,000. Of this sum $10,250,000 is to be authorized by Congress from the Federal Treasury and $7,000,000 is to be contributed to this project by the citizens of Los Angeles and Long Beach.

The bill, according to present plans, will be passed in the House before adjournment and will be pushed through the Senate early in December. According to the terms of the amendment as presented to the House by practically a unanimous vote of the Rivers and Harbors Committee, $10,250,000 would be made immediately available when the bill becomes a law and the remainder over various periods during which the work will proceed to completion.

TREMENDOUS CAPACITY

By the enactment of this legislation Southern California will have one of the largest and most accessible harbors of the world. The outer harbor will have more than five square miles of anchorage and wharf space and will be greater in capacity than practically any modern Atlantic harbor, even exceeding New York Harbor in ability to receive and dock cargo ships and vessels of all lands.

The suddenness and efficiency of the committee action was due largely to the fact that Los Angeles and New York projects were both considered together by the committee and both were reported favorably. Chairman Dempsey of the Rivers and Harbors Committee and C. Bascom Slemp, secretary to President Coolidge, are responsible for the prompt action and favorable recommendation in favor of these projects.

LAUDS CIVIC BODIES

"The concentrated co-operation of all the civic associations of Los Angeles, Long Beach and Southern California is responsible," said Congressman Lineberger today in commenting on the satisfactory progress of the greater harbor bill. "Without their aid and without their enthusiasm and inspiration and the picture that was presented to the members of the Board of Engineers when they inspected this project as the guests of the cities and these associations, no such favorable action could have possibly have been achieved. The overwhelming decision of the taxpayers of Los Angeles to vote the necessary local bonds was the final turning point and pivot of the entire movement. Now with the recommendation of the board of engineers the chief of this service and the support of the House committee in charge and the favorable attitude of the House, the great destiny of the larger harbor is assured and Southern California will have harbor facilities to care effectively for the tonnage of the world which will have Los Angeles as a distributing port for the entire Southwest and much of the western section of the United States."

TYLER ARRIVES AT CAPITAL

Southland Orator to Compete Friday Night; Spends Several Hours in Senate Galleries

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Don Tyler, representing the Pacific Coast, arrived in Washington today to compete in the national oratorical contest to be held Friday night in Memorial Continental Hall, when secondary school orators of the nation will battle for supremacy.

Traveling farther than any other of the six out-of-town competitors, Tyler was the first to arrive in Washington, reaching Union Station at 9 o'clock this morning. He left Los Angeles at 11 a.m. last Friday.

The tall youth from the West is accompanied by his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Ben C. Tyler, and A. F. Blanks, professor of English and public speaking in the University of Southern California. He is staying at the Hotel Washington.

OTHER COMPETITORS

Jack Turner of Birmingham, representing the South, is scheduled to arrive here this afternoon accompanied by his mother. Thursday morning Eleanor Huber of Louisville, Ky., representing the Central States, is to arrive. She is to be accompanied by her father, mother and sister and Sam W. Severance of the Louisville Courier-Journal.

Other out-of-town competitors to come are: John M. Dallam, III, of Philadelphia; George Chumos of Topeka, Kas., and Vail Barnes of New Brighton, N. Y. Delegations with these three latter contestants will aggregate 215 persons.

Cherishing an ambition since he was six years of age to be a lawyer, Tyler, for the first time in his life, today stands in the Mecca of lawyers—the national capital, where sits the United States Supreme Court.

He spent several hours today in the galleries of the Senate and followed the proceedings with intense interest.

WHITE HOUSE GUESTS

The contestants will not be presented to President Coolidge until the eve of the meeting. They will be White House guests Saturday afternoon when the Chief Executive will keep a fifteen-minute private appointment with them.

All the contestants will be the guests Thursday night of the Monarch Club at a theater party at management of the school, but we recommend that all schools of this nature be either provided with ample fire protection or closed."

It was but a trick of fate that J. W. Flynn, foreman of this jury, was one of those very few who escaped the scythe of death in the world's greatest fire disaster—the burning of the Iroquois Theater in Chicago.

OPERATORS CALLED

That the instructions of the Coroner's jury, who heard at least one witness say that other schools in the county are distinct fire hazards, will be followed to the limit by the grand jury, was indicated in the announcement of witnesses subpoenaed. Among the operators of schools called for investigation are:

Elizabeth Adams, 2695 Orchard street, proprietor of the Allen School for Subnormal Girls, 1050 Arapahoe street, Los Angeles.

Mrs. Otto Forster, 1039 South New Hampshire street, Los Angeles.

Mrs. Josephine Ulrich, 2171 West Twenty-ninth street, Los Angeles.

Mrs. Mary Thompson, 2910 Waverly street, Los Angeles.

Mrs. Elsie Whitman, 904 Mayo street, Los Angeles.

Mrs. Emma F. Tidwell and Mrs. Emily Harrison, who have a permit to keep thirty defective children at Harkid Hall, Covina.

C. H. Masterson, who has a permit for twenty-eight boys at Sunnycrest Home, National and Hughes boulevards, Palms.

E. K. Brown, Oceanview Home for Mentally Defective Boys, and a permit for forty inmates at 927 Neptune street, Manhattan Beach.

Mrs. Vaughn E. Skinner, 5605 Ocean Front street, Venice, who now is teaching fifteen subnormal boys.

Still another entrant in the aftermath activities came yesterday in the City Council's committee of health and sanitation, which planned the drafting of drastic legislation designed to force the erection of modern, fireproof structures for use as hospitals and the banning of certain apparently unsafe places now existent.

According to Councilman Walter Mallard, the ordinance which will be recommended by the committee not only will be drastic, but retroactive as well.

"There are several frame buildings," he averred, "now in use as hospitals which, in the opinion of building and fire experts, constitute a grave fire menace. The destruction of the school at Playa del Rey and the wholesale loss of life should serve as an example to bring about safeguards for the protection of helpless people."

OFFICIALS PRESENT

The inquest was held in the mortuary chapel of Sharp & Nolan, Venice. There were present Dist.-Atty. Keyes, Dep. Dist.-Atty. Richardson, Coroner Nance, Deputy Coroner McDonald, Undersheriff Biscailuz and Deputies Sweezy and Allen, Fire Chief Hubbard of Venice and numerous police authorities. The Public Welfare Commission was represented by Mrs. Cora B. Taylor, president of the children's home committee of the commission. The probation department of the Juvenile Court was present in the persons of Probation Officers Holland, Gerrett and Cope.

The Coroner's jury was composed of Frank Langan, St. Mark's Hotel; W. H. Peak, 214½ Market street; David Berman, 301 Shell avenue; Harry F. Swall, 311 Aldebaran Canal; William A. Flynn, 1225 Washington Boulevard, and J. A. Murphy, 111 Dudley avenue, all of Venice.

The audience was almost exclusively relatives and friends of the victims and newspaper men.

MORNING SESSION

Nearly two hours of the morning session was taken up with the viewing of the bodies by the Coroner's jury and the physical data concerning identification of the victims.

Available details concerning the life history of all the other identified victims was read into the record. It was made public during this period that nine of the girls lost in the fire were wards of the Juvenile Court. These were Josephine Bourstrom, Helen Fenton, Ruth Heinman, Mary Dora Jones, Evelyn Klein, Lois Lynn, Edna May Vann and Evelyn Russ. The remaining thirteen were private patients.

Probation Officer Holland was the first witness. He said that he had first heard of the fire when he read the Sunday morning edition of The Times. He immediately went to the St. Catherine's Hospital at Santa Monica and talked with Mrs. Lola May Rademaker, the assistant matron, and with the surviving girls, he said.

"You were interested in that school as a place in which your department had placed children?" he was asked.

"Yes," he replied.

"Tell us what you know regarding the building."

"It was an old building; I had examined it a great many times. It had the advantage of two open porches on both the main floor and the balcony. And there were two stairways down from the balcony to the first floor. The building was kept in good condition, clean and sanitary."

"It was a private enterprise?"

"Yes."

"The county paid for the patients it had in there?"

"Yes, under my supervision."

Continuing, Mr. Holland said that he thought he remembered the presence of two fire extinguishers in one of the halls; he knew that the windows had been closed up and the outside doors locked.

"These children, were they regularly assigned to this home by the Juvenile Court?" Dist.-Atty. Keyes asked him.

"Yes, they were placed there usually on the recommendation of the probation office. The court orders always named the home to which the children were sent. Children have been kept there for many years the place was the best we could get. The school was under the direct supervision of the Welfare Commission of Los Angeles county. It was responsible for its general management, the treatment of the inmates, and so forth. We all understood that it was a bad place to put children and we were all on the alert to find better quarters."

INSPECTED HOME

Mrs. Cora B. Taylor, chairman of the children's home committee of the Public Welfare Commission, then was called.

She said the members of the commission had inspected the Hope School on an average of once a month.

"We have felt that it was not the best place for the children," she said, "and we have tried to find another location for them. We granted a temporary permit to Mrs. Jacobs to continue the school there until August 1; if she hadn't found new quarters by that time the school would have been closed up.

"There was no institution in the county where these children could have been sent if the Hope School had been closed. I have discussed the fire hazard with Mrs. Jacobs many times and the matrons were taking all the precautions they could."

OTHERS ARE TRAPS

"Are there other schools in the county on the same plane as the Hope school, and operating under same conditions?"

"All the other schools of this character in the county are fire hazards; they are all wooden structures!"

She was excused. Mrs. Lola May Rademaker, the assistant matron, was called.

She related events which had passed from the time the girls were put to bed until the first wisps of smoke poured into her room on the second floor.

Among her statements were that the doors of the children's rooms were propped open by chairs; that they had not been annoyed by youths of the neighborhood at any time; that only one child, Jane Kerr, was strapped in bed.

She was almost suffocated, just passing into unconsciousness, in fact, when rescuers broke in the windows, she said. She admitted that two outside doors and a door at the bottom of a stairway from the second to the first floor were locked; that the basement, where she believes the fire to have originated, was full of trash, and that the basement door was open and anyone could have gotten in there. She didn't know of any enemies of the school.

She said that Evelyn Russ, one of the dead in the fire, had confessed to the setting of the four other small blazes which have occurred at the institution within the past three months, the last one previous to the home's destruction being in April.

LIGHTS WENT OUT

She assigned several reasons for the inability of many of the girls to escape. One of these, she said, was that the electric lights went out shortly after the first alarm was given and while she was trying to lead her frightened wards out of the building.

Recess interrupted her testimony; she was recalled to the stand at reconvention of the hearing. Here Coroner Nance apparently sought to establish that the fire was caused by a burning cigarette dropped in a waste basket.

This questioning was continued for some time; it led nowhere.

Sylvester Vogel, mechanic at the Compton Sanatorium, was called to the stand.

He was driving across the bridge about 100 feet from the building when he noticed the fire, he averred. He saw a small blaze coming from a basement window and he identified the window in a copy of apparently the only existing photograph of the hotel as printed exclusively in The Times yesterday morning.

FOUND DOORS LOCKED

He tried the doors and found Then came Henry Denkhaus, a heavy-set man whom he did not know and hasn't seen since broke through a side door and fell into a mass of flame. He ran through several rooms on the lower floor but didn't find anyone. Then he dashed out, climbed into his car and drove south for Venice to notify the fire department.

"Did you see anyone at all in the house?" he was asked again.

"Well, while I was in one room the floor gave way under my feet and someone rushed past me and I could see his head and hands reaching up from a sea of fire in the basement," he said. It was concluded that this was Wilfred Ringer, adopted son of Mrs. Mary E. Jacobs, matron of the home.

T. P. Smith was called. He came to the fire from a neighboring house just as the front of the building broke into a mass of flame. He stood by the garage and took the rescued children from Curtis, who was inside passing them through a window.

Then came Henry Denkhaud, a shock-haired, clear-eyed boy of 16 years of age, who was fishing on the Del Rey pier, half a block away from the school. He heard Vogel's police whistle and ran to the building. He went into a passage way on the lower floor but did not see or hear anyone. Then he went around the building and finally aided Walter T. C. Curtis, outstanding hero of the affair, and Smith in handling the children.

HERO IS HEARD

W. T. C. Curtis, outstanding hero of the rescue work, was called next. He stated that the fire undoubtedly originated in the basement and must have been burning for a considerable time. He did not testify as to his exploits. His wife, called next, concurred in his statements as to the origin of the blaze.

M. B. Mosely, nearest neighbor of the school, told the jury that in his opinion, also, the blaze came from the cellar. He knew of no animosity toward the school.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Skinner of Venice related a telephonic conversation they had had with Mrs. Drue Thomas, head matron, who died in the fire, at 8:40 o'clock that evening. They had invited her to visit their house; she refused the invitation because she said she could not leave the children. She said that some time ago, while the home was under the management of Mrs. Ione Conant, they had been bothered by men going into the basement of the home at night.

John C. Henning, city electrician of Venice, averred that he had inspected the wiring and found it good; Fire Chief Hubbard of Venice said that his investigations had convinced him that the fire was caused by a defective fireplace and that it was quite possible for such a fire to smoulder for several days before breaking out.

OPERATOR CALLED

Mrs. Mary E. Jacobs, operator of the home, then was assisted to the witness stand by a friend, who remained with her throughout the ordeal. She leased the property from Mrs. Conant in March; at the time of the fire she was at the home of Judge Summerfield making arrangements for a trip to San Gabriel with a view of leasing the Masonic Home there, she said.

She was doubtful if the fire extinguishers in the house were in such a condition that they could be used; she was aware of the fire menace and had sought to teach the children to march quickly from the building at any sign of trouble, she stated.

She had complied with all the regulations of the Public Welfare Commission, she said; had gathered up and burned debris. In the matter of a State license she had been told by the Public Welfare Commission to "leave it to them," she declared, and this she did.

And with a few statements from Mrs. Gertrude M. Garrett, assistant probation officer in charge of retarded children, and I. J. Mathias, a rescue worker, the inquiry closed.

COOLIDGE TAX APPEAL VAIN

Republican Leaders See Slight Hopes for Early Revision of Law; Criticisms Accepted

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Republican leaders in Congress today accepted President Coolidge's criticism of the tax bill in the statement he issued yesterday upon signing it, as "expected," but gave little encouragement to the President's proposal for early revision of the measure.

Both Chairman Smoot of the Senate Finance Committee, and Chairman Green of the House Ways and Means Committee, said there is slight prospect that tax revision will be taken up at the short session which begins next December and ends March 4, 1925.

Not only will there not be time at that session, they believe, but the same membership which framed the new law still will be intact. Others argued that the bill just sent the President represented the views of most of the members and was satisfactory to a majority of the Republicans as well as Democrats. In its final form the measure passed the Senate by a vote of 50 to 6 and the House 313 to 9.

Senator Smoot characterized Coolidge's analysis of the bill as a "plain unvarnished statement of fact, lacking any touch of the political."

The statement is accepted as a declaration by the President of an election issue and in this regard it is considered likely that if a Republican Congress is elected and Mr. Coolidge returned to the White House, he will call a special session of the new Congress after March 4, 1925.

Democrats generally, considered lightly the President's tax declaration, while Representative Garner, Texas, leader of the Democratic tax fight in the House, suggested the President "doubtless experienced a feeling of revulsion towards the new tax law because the rates were written by Democrats and supported by Democrats and many broad and liberal-minded Republicans.

"The President," Mr. Garner said in a statement, "could much more gracefully and accurately have taken the position that while the tax measure does not contain all he desired, it is a long step in honest tax reduction."

INSANITY WILL BE BOYS' PLEA

slaying of Tracy and the youths was found when the authorities discovered that the bullet which killed Tracy fitted a pistol belonging to Leopold which he said he carried when the Franks boy was kidnaped and which he purchased several months previously. A motive for the shooting of Tracy never was found. He appeared to have been a brilliant student and seemingly was without enemies. His body was found almost on the campus of the University of Chicago, the institution attended by both Leopold and Loeb and by Tracy. Friends of Tracy said that he knew both the youths.

A few days after Tracy was slain Charles Ream, a taxi driver, was attacked and mutilted. Yesterday he was taken to the State's Attorney's office by newspaper reporters to view Leopold and Loeb and expressed the opinion that they were his assailants. The authorities were skeptical until an investigation had been made, however, as Ream had told them shortly after he was attacked that he did not get a full view of his kidnapers, who clubbed him into unconsciousness and mutilated him after taking him away in an automobile.

The reason for the investigation, the authorities said, aside from Ream's statement that he believed Leopold and Loeb were his assailants, was the similarity of the attack on him and the slaying of the Franks youth.

FATHER BEFORE JURY

Robert Franks was abducted as he walked home from school and, according to confession of the youths, was struck over the head and strangled to death a few minutes after they induced him to enter the automobile in which they were riding. They then tried to collect $10,000 ransom from the boy's father, but failed when Jacob Franks, the father, failed to understand their instructions. A few hours later the body of the boy, which had been found in a South Side swamp, was identified. Except for the fact that Wolf lived in the same neighborhood as the Franks, Leopold and Loeb families, nothing was disclosed to indicate a possible connection between the youths and his death.

Among those who appeared before the grand jury today were Jacob Franks, the slain boy's father; Percy Van De Bogert, druggist from whose store the youths said they telephoned ransom demands to Franks; James C. Kemp, employed by Van De Bogert; Irving Hartman, who attended a private school with the Franks boy and who saw Robert starting for his home on the day he disappeared and who believed he entered an automobile parked near-by; Dr. Joseph Springer, Coroner's physician, who made an examination of the body; Dr. Emil Deutsch, who sold Leopold the pair of horn-rimmed spectacles which the latter lost near the place young Franks body was concealed and which led to his arrest; Sven Englund, chauffeur at the Leopold home, whose statement that the Leopold car was in the garage the day of the kidnaping when Leopold and Loeb said they were driving about town with it, led to their breakdown and confession; Mrs. Sven Englund, his wife, Elizabeth Salter, maid at the Leopold home, who told the authorities that Leopold owned a typewriter of the same make as that on which the ransom letter to Jacob Franks was written, and Mrs. Lucille Smith and her daughter, Elizabeth, who have said they passed an automobile the night of the kidnaping resembling that in which Leopold and Loeb hauled Franks's body to the swamp.

Mr. Crowe said before going before the grand jury that he did not expect indictments to be returned for three days. He said he expected to submit the confessions of the youths and every bit of evidence to the jury in order to make all the information a matter of record. He said this action also was being taken to prevent the possibility of any of the witnesses changing their stories later. Should they do so, he said, they will be charged with perjury and prosecuted.

The ransom letter, addressed to Jacob Franks, which was found yesterday in a Michigan Central sleeper in New York, arrived here today and the authorities said the typewriting in this letter and in the first letter received by Franks the day after his son vanished, tallied in every detail.

The second letter directed Franks to board a Michigan Central train, go to the back platform and toss the money out after passing a large black water tower on the east side of the track. The message was placed in a folder rack in the car and was signed by "George Johnson," the name used by Leopold and Loeb in their ransom negotiations. On the chance that someone else might find the note there was an inscription on the outside of the envelope directing a chance finder to leave it alone and adding that the note was very important to the person to whom it was addressed.

Young Leopold and Loeb, who were taken from the custody of the police and placed in the hands of the Sheriff on habeas corpus proceedings yesterday, spent their first day in the County Jail without unusual incident. They had little to say to other prisoners and refused to talk to reporters.

SCHOOL FOUNDER IS NEAR PROSTRATION

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SANTA BARBARA, June 3.—Mrs. Ione Conant, founder of the Hope Development School near Venice in which more than twenty pupils lost their lives in a fire which destroyed the school Saturday night, returned last night to her home here in a condition near collapse after a brief visit to the scene of the catastrophe yesterday.

"I cannot understand the loss of life," Mrs. Conant said this morning. "There were many ways for the little ones to get out of the building."

"TOO BRIGHT," SAYS FORMER LEOPOLD NURSE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

MARTINEZ, June 3.—Mrs. Pauline Van Den Bosch, wife of an oil worker here, who said that she was a nurse for two years in the home of Nathan Leopold, youthful Chicago confessed murderer, detailed her experiences as such today.

"I do not want to see him hang," she said, "but I believe that he should be given a long term at hard labor. 'Babe,' as we called him, was a lovable character despite a meanness that manifested itself not only toward the servants in the Leopold home but toward his companions and his parents. He was inclined to use bad language but in spite of his faults he drew many friends to him. His brilliant mind needs to be dulled a bit and hard labor will do it.

"Until he was 14 years of age he never laced his own shoes. The servants did it for him and attended to other details of his dress that other boys care for for themselves.

"He was a great lover of birds. At one time he came near killing a maid in an adjoining home through accident while shooting at a robin. The bullet lodged in a window sill but a few inches from where the maid was standing.

"I worked in the Leopold home from Labor Day of 1916 until Labor Day of 1918. I was constantly with Nathan during his hours of study and play. I spent much time with him in his bird museum, helping and advising him.

"Problems that would take others hours to solve he would solve in a few minutes. He knew many languages even as a child. I have received numerous letters from him since I left and all tell of the progress he is making.

"He had the most wonderful mother I ever knew. If she had lived this tragedy would never have happened.

"He simply was pampered and spoiled. He was so used to having others wait on him that it must have gone to his head and given him an idea that he was made to be waited on by others and that, therefore, he was a superior being. But 'Babe' has a good strain in him. He is too bright. He needs to have his light dimmed a little bit, that's all."

AIR PILOTS GIVE LIVES TO SCIENCE

Bodies of Two Flyers Are Found in Ill-fated Army Balloon

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

BELLEVILLE (Ill.) June 3.—Dr. C. Leroy Meisinger, Federal meteorologist, and First Lieutenant James T. Neely, air pilot, whose mangled bodies and charred balloon were found near Bement, Ill., today, sacrificed their lives for the advancement of science, Scott Field officials declared tonight.

The ill-fated flight of the Army balloon S-3, starting from Scott Field late yesterday, was to have been the ninth and final in a series of weather observation trips, which began March 31, last.

The observations were directed by the Weather Bureau at Washington and were said to have been the most comprehensive of their kind ever attempted. The resulting data were expected to be of great value in weather forecasting, particularly in predicting storm movements. The information gained from the first eight flights is on file at Scott Field and will be turned over to Weather Bureau officials.

Both men were veterans of the World War and government officials had prepared to make burial in Arlington Cemetery, Washington, if relatives desired.

PAPER GOES ON WITHOUT UNION HELP

"Publishers Undisturbed" is Answer to Printers in Seattle Walkout

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SEATTLE, June 3.—An article on the first page of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer this morning headed "P.-I. Publishers Undisturbed" was met by a declaration from the union side of a strike, which started Friday, that the controversy is likely to become national.

The Post-Intelligencer this morning had its normal volume of accounts of things just happened.

"We have just begun to fight," declared J. P. Brady of the Seattle branch of the International Typographical Union, chairman of the strike committee. 'It is going to be more than a local fight.'"

The Post-Intelligencer, which has been understood to be owned by William Randolph Hearst, said: "Your Post-Intelligencer this morning consists of twenty-four pages crowded with advertising and news. This paper was produced as usual in the plant of the Post-Intelligencer, where Friday the mechanical forces of the composing, stereotyping and mailing departments walked out. The new crews put to work in the three departments immediately after the walkout are being increased each day with increased efficiency of production."

Mr. Brady reiterated union denials of a declaration of E. C. Griffith, manager of the Post-Intelligencer, that the controversy between the paper and the printers could be quickly settled if contention for deadhorse (payment for setting type for plated and other matter not requiring typesetting) were abandoned.

Mr. Brady renewed the assertion that the union men had left their work principally because the P.-I. had refused to increase pay 75 cents a day and had attempted to make the working day seven and one-half hours instead of seven.

BANKER LEAGUE NAMES WHIPPLE

the smaller communities via the branch bank?"

TWO SIDES TO ISSUE

There is much to be said on each side and in the saying considerable feeling has been generated.

The chain banks, by virtue of larger membership, will control the convention and the dependents have little to hope for in the way of local legislation. Hence, they have fixed their eyes on Washington. They are well organized and have a good general idea of where they are going.

At today's session of the League, President Whipple reviewed the work of the organization during the year and the present status of the controversy. He said greed and fear held a prominent place in the attitude of both sides; greed on the part of the branch banker for size and on the part of the unit banker for the fat pocketbook, which, he said, comes from selling out to the branch banker. He said the independents have grown rapidly and now were almost equally divided in membership between National and State banks. He sounded a note of warning to the branch banker, which was in effect a challenge not to press too heavily on the independents.

ILL FEELING AVOIDED

"Branch banking and unit banking," he said, "can not live side by side in the presence of unlimited ambition for expansion on the part of branch bankers. The people of California should understand that without additional capital, branch bankers can slowly but surely assume control over the credit structure."

Speakers were R. E. Easton, of Santa Maria; N. D. Vaughan, of Fresno; E. L. Bickford, of Napa; R. D. McCook, of San Bernardino, and A. W. Quinn, of Exeter. The session was devoid of scrimonious discussion and the election occured with due cohesion to the preliminary arrangements.

Four hundred delegates to the regular convention already are here and another 200 are expected tomorrow in time for participation in the trust session in the afternoon. Leo S. Chandler, of Los Angeles, slated for the presidency, arrived today. Henry M. Robinson, of Los Angeles, and Walter W. Head, of Omaha, president of the American Bankers' Association, are due tomorrow. The usual conferences, exchanges and group meetings are under way. The assemblage is more like a big family party than a formal gathering of financiers and because of the concentration of delegates at one center, it is proving one of the most interesting and worthwhile conventions in the recent history of the organization.

RENO, June 3.—A crew of men working at the paper mill at Floriston, Cal., twenty miles west of Reno, has been fighting a forest fire which has burned to within 2000 feet of the town. The mill was idle while 300 men joined in efforts to check the fire before it reached the company property.

Would Start on Amendment Printing Early

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SACRAMENTO, June 3.—State Printer Frank J. Smith is making an effort to get an early start on the tremendous job of printing the 1924 constitutional amendments. "The last time this big job was printed," said Smith, "the copy arrived so late that it was impossible to print the entire number at the State plant, and 786,740 copies were printed by a San Francisco firm and $93,000 by the State."

The 1922 constitutional amendments made 144 pages and the total cost of the job was $81,668.61.

The State printer says if he can get the copy in time to start the job through the State plant by August 1, that $15,000 can be saved for the taxpayers.

The number to be printed this issue will probably exceed 3,000,000.

House resolution and moved that the Senate concur. When the La Follette resolution, outlining a program of legislation, was read Senator Norris suggested that Muscle Shoals be given a place on this list also. Senator Lodge said that it was all against the rules anyway as legislation could not be governed by such methods. Senator Pat Harrison, chief of the Muscle Shoals advocates, wanted to put that bill number one on the La Follette list of legislation. Mr. La Follette accepted the amendment. Senator Frazier of North Dakota moved to amend the resolution to make adjournment until the 21st inst. This was defeated by 53 to 35. There was no debate on the La Follette resolution The Muscle Shoals Democrats, added to the Western Senators, could not get enough support to carry the measure.

Following the announcement of this vote Senator Underwood asked for consent to make Muscle Shoals the next subject of consideration in the Senate, but Senator La Follette objected. The forces to block adjournment had already disintegrated.

Mr. La Follette again called attention to the distress of the farmers in the five States that he has in mind, South Dakota, Colorado, North Dakota, Wyoming and Montana, and said that until something was done to relieve this situation he could not approve consideration of any other legislation.

MONEY BILLS WAIT

In the four days the session still has to go, the most important business awaiting action are the conference reports on the Army, District of Columbia and Independent offices appropriation bills, the passage of the general deficiency bill carrying more than $150,000,000, and the naval construction and repair bill, which appropriates $150,000,000 for the construction of cruisers and the bringing up-to-date of some of the first-line battleships of the fleet.

Legislation which will fall, according to all the signs, includes Muscle Shoals, the Howell-Barkley railroad board bill, the bill for the reorganization of the executive departments, the reclamation bill, and hundreds of bills of minor importance.

The World Court question goes over now into the next session. There will be no effort on either side in the Senate to bring this up for consideration between now and Saturday. At least that is the way the World Court situation appears tonight.

NO SIGNIFICANCE IN WARREN TRIP

Ambassador Dispels Rumors of Hidden Meanings

Asserts Harmony Now Exists Between Governments

Question of Treaty Will Be Considered on Return

[BY JACK STARR-HUNT
BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MEXICO CITY, June 3.—On the eve of departure for the Republican National Convention in Cleveland, Ambassador Warren dispelled rumors that his visit indicated some prerecognition problem was unsettled.

The fact that he is able to make the trip, Mr. Warren stated, is proof that absolute harmony exists between the two governments. He said he expects to return about the 20th inst., about the same time that President Obregon will get back from his Sonora trip. Mrs. Warren will remain here.

Further proof that the Ambassador's departure has no hidden meaning, he indicated, is seen in the enlargement of the embassy building and the increases in the staff.

NO DATA ON LOAN

Following a conference between Mr. Warren and Foreign Minister Pani, it was learned that the latter informed him that the suggestion that the two countries form a new treaty will be considered upon the Ambassador's return. There has been no treaty since 1868.

Questioned regarding reports from New York that loan negotiations have been suspended until after the Mexican Presidential election, the Ambassador declared he had no information on the subject. Finance Minister Pani is still exchanging messages with New York bankers, although no statements are forthcoming from the ministry.

SHIP STATUS TOLD

Regarding the detention by Mexican authorities at Frontera of the American-owned banana boats Whipple and Truxton, Mr. Warren said the Foreign Office has informed him that the Whipple has left for Vera Cruz. The Truxton is being held on account of difficulty in communication, he said.

The Foreign Office, Mr. Warren said, told him that export or State taxes already paid to rebels by merchants there would be credited to them when the Federals recapture Frontera and other southeastern points.

SHANGHAI HOP IS ESSAYED

Two Planes Start on Flight; Leader Held Back by Engine; Smith Supersedes Martin as Chief

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

KAGOSHIMA (Japan) June 4.—Two of the American around-the-world planes left here at 8:30 o'clock this (Wednesday) morning for Shanghai. The third plane refused to rise owing to engine trouble.

TOKIO, June 3.—Dispatches from Kagoshima indicate that the American Army around-the-world flyers made an attempt to hop off for Shanghai this morning. The airplane of Lieut. Lowell H. Smith, commander of the flight, who is accompanied by Lieut. Leslie P. Arnold as mechanician, developed engine trouble and did not leave.

SMITH NOW LEADS AT REQUEST OF MARTIN

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Acting upon the personal request of Maj. Frederick L. Martin, former commander of the Army around-the-world flight squadron, Maj.-Gen. Patrick, chief of the Army Air Service, today designated Lieut. Lowell H. Smith to be permanently in command of the globe-circling flyers.

A plan to have Maj. Martin resume command during the later phases of the flight was abandoned after he had conferred with the air service chief and other War Department officials.

Lieut. Smith was placed in charge of the flight temporarily when Maj. Martin's machine was wrecked in Alaska and he and his mechanic, Staff Sergeant Alva T. Harvey were lost in the wilds.

The plan which had been proposed by Gen. Patrick and tentatively approved by Secretary Weeks provided for sending Maj. Martin with a new plane to Europe, to rejoin the flight there and resume command during the trip across the Atlantic. Final decision was withheld, however, until Maj. Martin arrived in Washington and today he sent a letter to Gen. Patrick in which he said:

"It was my misfortune to meet with an accident and since then Lieut. Smith has had to carry on. The responsibility for a perilous part of the journey has rested on him and he has borne himself well.

"While there is nothing I should like better than to rejoin the flight and again take command, by that time a considerable part of it will have been accomplished without me."

Californian Favored for Prohibition Ticket at Columbus Convention

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

COLUMBUS (O.) June 3.—Leaders of the prohibition party were gathering here tonight for the State and national conventions of the party. Headquarters were opened today with the arrival of E. L. G. Hohenthal of Connecticut and Dr. B. E. P. Prugh of Harrisburg, Pa., national committee members.

The State convention will open tomorrow morning with sessions throughout the day. The national conclave will open Thursday morning and continue through Friday. Candidates for President and Vice-President will be chosen and a platform adopted at Friday afternoon's session.

Charles H. Randall, former Congressman from California, is being mentioned by party leaders as the party's choice for the Presidential nomination.

About 1000 delegates are expected to attend the conventions.

Plain Clothes Highway Patrol is New Ruse

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SACRAMENTO, June 4.—The plain-clothes traffic "cop" is the latest ruse of the State Division of Motor Vehicles to teach erring California motorists to obey the law.

Will H. Marsh, chief of the division, announced today that he had deputized twenty-five plain-clothes men in all part of the State to assist the regular highway patrol in catching violators, and that more are to be added from time to time. These men will co-operate in the regular law enforcement campaigns launched from time to time by the division, and have been given authority to make arrests or to issue warnings to violators.

FUMIGATION BAN REMOVAL URGED

Highway Board's Message to Two Counties

Decrease in Travel Cited to Mono and Alpine

Washington Cheered Over Check of Disease

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SACRAMENTO, June 3.—Pressure is being exerted by the California Highway Commission to induce the Boards of Supervisors of Mono and Alpine counties to remove the fumigation stations being operated within their boarders by officials of the State of Nevada in connection with the Nevada foot-and-mouth disease quarantine.

W. F. Mixon, secretary of the Commission, wired the two boards from San Francisco yesterday afternoon that the decrease of travel reported to be resulting from the fumigation measures will force the Commission to cease the expenditure of any more State funds for the maintenance or improvement of the State highways in Mono and Alpine counties.

The telegrams were addressed to the chairman of the Board of Supervisors, Bridgeport, Mono county, and to the chairman of the Board of Supervisors, Markleeville, Alpine county. They were identical and read as follows:

"We are advised that fumigation stations are established on all California roads leading into your county and that your practice in fumigation exceeds regulations established by the United States Department of Agriculture. Intrastate travel is seriously inconvenienced and it is reported to us that traffic is decreasing to an extent which will not justify expenditure of State funds for highway maintenance and improvements this season. Decrease of travel will force use to cease all expenditure in your county. Wire action."

WASHINGTON HOPEFUL

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, June 3.—The foot-and-mouth disease among cattle in California appears to have been checked, Department of Agriculture officials announced today, but they declared they could not be certain of complete eradication for several months. All diseased herds were underground at the close of last Tuesday and no new infection appeared on the two days following, but on Friday three infected herds were located.

Flare-ups of the disease are expected and the absence of new contagion for a few days, though encouraging, should not give livestock owners the erroneous belief that the disease is entirely eradicated, officials pointed out. The continued improvement has made possible release from quarantine of additional territory.

Warning was issued by officials of the Bureau of Animal Industry against placing confidence in alleged cures for foot-and-mouth disease. There is no dependable cure, not even a method of treatment which will aid in eradicating the disease, they asserted.

McAdoo Leading in Florida Vote on Early Count

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

JACKSONVILLE (Fla.) June 3. First unofficial returns from Florida's primary today showed William G. McAdoo of California polling an almost two-to-one vote over Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama for indorsement for the Democratic Presidential nomination. These returns were meager, however, covering only eight precincts out of a total of 1104 in the State and gave McAdoo 975, Underwood 510.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

The home, of two-story, Spanish type construction will be built upon an estate of 100 acres which the Swift family has owned and held for several years and will be when completed, one of the show places of the district, it is stated. Swift was in Santa Barbara last week and at that time made final arrangements for the starting of work. Contracts have been let and lanscaping of the grounds will start simultaneously with construction.

John C. Freund, Noted Musical Editor, is Dead

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, June 3.—John C. Freund, editor of "Musical America" died today at his residence, "Gray Rocks" in Mount Vernon. He had been ill for some time, but his death was unexpected. He was 76 years of age. He is survived by his wife and three daughters, Mrs. Florence Schappert, Mrs. Annette Gallagher and Miss Marjorie Freund of Mount Vernon.

Mr. Freund, who was one of the most widely known musical men in America, came to this country many years ago from England. He was a great supporter of American music and students of music, and always urged artists to use their own and not adopt foreign sounding names.

AIR MAIL PILOT LOOKS LIKE HOUSE OF DAVID

WIFE BOBS HAIR, HE GROWS BEARD, TRIES TO TALK THROUGH MATTRESS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, June 3.—When Pilot Randolph Gilham Page of the air mail service gets aboard his ship he looks like the House of David out for a spin. But Mrs. Randolph Gilham Page of Maywood does not give a snap of her fingers. She will continue to bob her hair, despite the caustic protests of her husband.

"Wait until the hot weather comes," she predicts defiantly. "After he has carried that mattress around on his chin all summer he'll know more about how I felt before I bobbed my hair. The debate began last November, when Mrs. Page decided she would have her hair shingled.

"If you do I'll let my beard grow," warned her husband.

"Well, your face is your own, my dear," she said. "Spite it if you feel that way."

Her only concern in the matter is the fear that his flowing beard will get tangled in the propeller of his airplane and muss things up, but—"he's a fine husband, but he's stubborn—and I'm—firm."

Page says—but nobody knows what he says. He is trying to talk through a mattress.

Fred Gunther will act as installing officer, representing the Grand Worthy President.

SAN FERNANDO, June 3.—Violations of the provisions of the Volstead Act netted the city $1200 today as a result of the casting of the police net over Sunday. Pablo Gutierrez and Porfiro Moreno were each assessed $150. Margarito Gonzales and John Petris were fined the same sums. T. Estrada and R. P. Sloat were each called upon by City Recorder Schwinger to contribute $300 toward the support of the municipal government.

FISKE POINTS TO NAVY WEAKNESS

Says Fleet Is Not Better Than That of Japan

Cites Possibility of War Over Alien Question

Sees Trouble in Retention of Philippine Islands

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, June 3.—Rear-Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, retired, in a letter to Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, which he made public tonight, called attention to the present comparative strength of the American and the Japanese fleets for operations in Far Eastern waters, which he said was gravely misunderstood by the public.

"Possibly, if our people were told the truth about the naval situation, they would not be as indifferent as they are to the diplomatic situation," the letter said.

"Of course, I do not mean to suggest that war is even possible, but nevertheless it may be pointed out that the Japanese and the Americans have taken attitudes that are irreconcilable and that the Japanese virtually have broken off diplomatic relations, giving their ambassador a 'vacation.' Such attitudes and acts have usually preceded wars, though they have not always been followed by wars."

Though the American people imagine, he said, that as a result of the naval treaty the United States fleet is superior to the Japanese navy in the ratio of 5 to 3, "this is the reverse of the truth."

LACKS IN RESERVES

Even if the American Navy were superior in capital ships, he asserted, it is far from being superior in that ratio in active personnel and it is far "inferior" in reserves.

"If Japan should go to the extreme of taking the Philippine Islands and thus force us into war," the letter said, "we should find ourselves in a deplorable condition because of the lack of trained men as well as of other requisites."

Referring to his service on the general board of the Navy in 1910 and 1911, Admiral Fiske said:

"We believed that Japan would take the Philippine Islands if ever the resentment of the people against us should reach a height sufficient to assure the government of their support. That Japan could take the Philippine Islands we all agreed at that time; but that we could retake them, no officer was then willing to declare. Nevertheless, every man with whom I then talked, no matter what his occupation or political creed, declared that if the Japanese should take the Philippine Islands, the United States would be bound by every principle of honor and international respectability to try at least to retake them."

ADVANTAGE TO "ENEMY"

The admiral then discussed the prospect of the American fleet operating in Asiatic waters, more than 5000 miles from "our inadequate bases on the West Coast" and more than 3000 miles from the drydock in the Hawaiian Islands. It would have to engage the Japanese fleet close to the latter's own bases, harassed by submarines and aircraft, he said. "Our fleet could not get near the coast of Japan because of the mine fields; and in case of injuries to ships it would have no drydock to go to that was less than 3000 miles away."

The admiral thought it impossible to say whether the recapture of the Philippines from Japan would be more difficult now than it would have been ten years ago, though he believed the improvements in submarines and aircraft would prove more advantageous to Japan than to the United States in such a struggle.

The obstacles to a Japanese assault on the islands would be increased by the additional defenses, but would be decreased by aerial advances which would enable them to do effective bombing, especially at night.

LOOMIS FAVORS BAN BY TREATY

Californian Comments on Japanese Issue

Sees Hostility Fanned by Jingo Politicians

Woods Urged to Work for Eased Alien Bill

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, June 3.—Exclusion of Japanese from this country should have been undertaken by treaty instead of by legislation to avoid ill-feeling between the United States and Japan, in the opinion of Francis P. Loomis of California, who arrived from a world tour today on the steamship Majestic.

Mr. Loomis, who was special envoy to Japan in 1908 when the American Fleet made its trip around the world, said that many jingo politicians in Japan probably would inflame their adherents by anti-American sentiments and teachings as a result of the exclusion provision.

HONORS FOR WOODS

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

TOKIO, June 3.—Bombardment with requests that he continue in America his work for modification of the new United States immigration law, that the Japanese exclusion clause may be removed, marked the farewell luncheon given here today by the Pan-Pacific Club to retiring American Ambassador Woods.

Viscount Shibusawa, widely known financier, referred to the immigration matter as "only temporarily settled" in a speech in which he extolled the work of Ambassador Woods in Japan. Three Japanese speakers, including Shibusawa, while praising the American Ambassador in the highest terms, dwelt at length on the subject of immigration, referring frequently to "damage to Japan and America's friendship" and "hurt racial pride."

Ambassador Woods, in replying to their compliments, avoided all direct reference to the immigration dispute.

FRIENDSHIP TESTED

Instead Mr. Woods reiterated his praise for the American aviators who recently crossed the Pacific Ocean on a 'round-the-world flight and paid tribute to the reception given them by the Japanese.

An indirect reference to the controversy was made by the Ambassador in closing.

"Our friendship is being put to the test," he said, "but friendship which can not stand such a test is not worth having. The friendship of Japan and America is supremely worth having, not only for ourselves but for all the world. Such friendship, I trust, will come through this test strengthened and purified."

Iowan Sues for Damages After Ruin of Pants Before Public

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

DUBUQUE (Iowa) June 3. If your trousers were ruined right out in public how much damages would you demand?

Charles Rann, editor, of Manchester, Iowa, believes $10,000 is the proper figure. He presents his view in a $10,000 suit for damages against the city of Manchester, the Bryant Paving Company and others, it became known today.

Rann charges he was standing on a Manchester street corner when he received a public dousing; his trousers were ruined and he was subjected to public humiliation as a result of the bursting of a water-pipe line used by the Bryant company.

CRISIS REACHED IN COTTON WAR

Today Limit in Destruction of Arizona Crops

Ranchers Have Not Complied With Weevil Edict

No Plants Will be Killed Unless State Acts

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PHOENIX, June 3.—Tomorrow is the date on which the farmers of the Postvale farming section, near Tucson, must have finished destruction of their young cotton plants if they are to receive compensation from the State. As far as can be learned, no cotton has been destroyed and none will be, unless by the State.

A board of survey has fixed the damage, computed on the probable crop and its net profit, at $33.75 an acre, or a total of $300,000 for the 9000 acres. Half of the 200 growers are said to demand $150 an acre and most of the others want $100, a total of $1,200,000.

Apparently, it is said, the demand makes no deduction for costs, fixed by the board at $80 an acre.

GOVERNOR REVEALS ROW

Gov. Hunt today revealed the row that precedec the resignation of E. W. Samuell from the offices of Secretary of the Commission of State Institutions and Director of the State Highway Department. Samuell now is an announced candidate for Governor and probably will oppose Hunt in the Democratic primary. Gov. Hunt declared that the resignation was proffered after he had refused to take summary action on charges made by Samuell that George V. Eberle, purchasing agent of the Highway Department, had received $1500 in commissions on purchases made from the Texas Company for gasoline and oils, this at the rate of a half-cent per gallon. C. M. Zander, a close political associate of the Governor's, then was appointed to the vacated place, with instructions to suspend Eberle till investigation had been made. As a result of such investigation, the Governor today directed Eberle's reinstatement, with a declaration that he had been entirely cleared. It is stated that the department books show purchases from the Texas Company on which a commission of a half cent a gallon would have amounted to only $88.

FEAR FOR SAN CARLOS DAM

Apprehension is expressed in Phoenix, Florence and Casa Grande that the House of Representatives, adjourning on Saturday, will fail to take up the Senate bill appropriating $5,500,000 for construction of the San Carlos dam on the Gila, especially for the benefit of the Pima Indians. The measure is on the unanimous consent calendar, is said to be favored by President Coolidge, and is backed by strong Eastern elements that consider it an act of justice to friendly Indians. Representative Hayden has been concentrating on the measure for six weeks, but it has been sidetracked by legislation of national scope. President O. J. Baughn of the San Carlos Association, states that he has received assurances that it will be passed before adjournment.

ORANGES, LEMONS SCARCE

Although the Arizona market is stripped of oranges and lemons, no receipts of either are at hand, despite the Governor's proclamation admitting them the 1st inst. Local dealers, prepared to handle them in carload lots, state that delay has been due to demands made by State officials for certificates covering every phase of the shipments from Southern California points.

Elephant Death Not Due to Last Ton of Peanuts

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, June 3.—Duchess, the 95-year-old elephant who recently died at Lincoln Park Zoo, was not the victim, as previously stated, of the last ton of peanuts. An autopsy shows Duchess died of Addison's disease, a rare malady that turns the skin to bronze.

Human beings are subject to Addison's disease, but cases are very rare.

In the case of Dutchess, the bronze tint had to travel through a hide six or seven inches thick and it was not discovered until after the laboratory anatomists, armed with fire axes and saws, had opened the carcass and made it possible for experts to step inside.

The autopsy also showed that Duchess had suffered an intestinal inflammation, which, in extent and effect resembled a cave-in in a subway.

TWO JAPANESE DIE AS AUTO IS HIT BY TRAIN

NO FIRE DAMAGE

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

HUNTINGTON PARK, June 3.—Huntington Park has made a good record in May with two fire calls and no fire damages, is the information that has been given out by City Fire Marshal Scott Resley. On May 22 the department was called out to extinguish a brush fire and four days later another call came to extinguish a fire at the Home barber shop. Someone had evidently, thrown a cigar stub in a waste-paper basket, which caused the room to fill with smoke before a discovery was made.

CONFESSES AFTER NIGHT IN JAIL

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SANTA ANA, June 3.—Away from nurses and companions in the County Hospital here and faced only with the black walls of the solitary cell in the jail at night during which his brooding brought about the desired effect, Wallace R. Berry of Los Angeles, 22-year-old suspect, this morning confessed to deputy sheriffs that wounds he was carrying were received when he fled under fire from a chicken coop of M. C. Chase at Cypress, near here.

Unable to obtain an accurate description of the miscreant that fell when hit by shotgun bullets, then recovered and fled, nor to wrest desired information from from the pirsoner, deputies here the prisoner, deputies here ment" as a last resort.

Berry admitted, the officers said, that his remorse shattered the reserve he maintained since his arrest at a Los Angeles roominghouse the day following the shooting, May 29.

He was taken to the County Hospital to recover before prosecution is begun on a charge of burglary.

DEMPSEY STOPS THREE IN VERNON RING

CHAMPION'S TERRIFIC PUNCHING EFFECTIVE

Stragmalia, Ryan and Stanton Are Stopped; Jimmy Duffy Wins Fast Bout from Wells

BY BILL HENRY

Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, last night put three alleged fighters to bed for an early nap before a capacity crowd at Doyle's Vernon Coliseum. Thirty-five thousand dollars, it was announced, was raised for the Milk Fund of the Los Angeles Philanthropy and Civics Club. Rocco Stragmalia, Joe Ryan and Eli Stanton were laid away in succession by the terrific hitting of the champion. None of the three was capable of protecting himself, much less doing any damage to Mr. Dempsey.

VICTIM NO. 1

Rocco Stragmalia, the mysterious author of a cut over Dempsey's eye in a training bout at Great Falls, was first to enter the ring, closely followed by the champion. Dempsey stripped to a pair of passionate lavender trunks, while his opponent featured a pair of black trunks and a pair of eyes to match. Dempsey came from his corner like a tiger and smothered Stragmalia with a whirlwind of rights and lefts. Stragmalia went to his knees with the round half over, and again just as the round ended, being saved from a clean knockout by the bell.

Stragmalia came up groggy for the second round, and Dempsey chased him relentlessly. Rocco refused to open up and fight, spending his time trying to last out the round. Jack seemed inclined to let him live, but after one minute of the second round put him down for good with a left to the solar plexus. Rocco slept peacefully for several minutes.

VICTIM NUMBER TWO

Joe Ryan was the next victim. He was a strapping big fellow and after Dempsey had hit him a couple of good lefts, seemed perfectly willing to call it a night. He went down once, but Jack wouldn't let him stay, lifting him to his feet. A minute later he went down again and Dempsey obligingly stood him up once more. He weathered the next round, thanks to Billy Coe, who rang the bell at the end of one minute.

Ryan decided he had had enough and refused to come up for the second round.

VICTIM NUMBER THREE

Eli Stanton was the third and last sacrifice on the altar. Eli looked like a fighter and danced around the ring showing a good deal of class. Dempsey backed off to do a good job on this one. He measured his man carefully and knocked him as cold as a cucumber with a terrific left hook.

Oakland Jimmy Duffy outpointed Billy Wells of England in one of the greatest welterweight fights in the history of the Coast. Duffy elected to carry the battle to Wells, and kept the Englishman busy in taking a flurry of rights and lefts, mostly on his gloves, but some on his anatomy. In the third round Wells showed his only real burst of speed, but was soundly booed by the crowd for heeling Duffy at close quarters. Duffy smothered the Englishman in the final round, and had him in a very bad way for a minute.

Duffy's edge was clear, but some of the crowd seemed to feel badly about the decision.

It was a typical Los Angeles cosmopolitan crowd of 8000 people who jammed the Vernon Coliseum to capacity. There were bankers in hand-me-down shirts sitting next to movie extras in Tuxedos, society women trying to look bored were rubbing elbows with hand-painted movie stars who were trying to look interested. Every decision was violently cheered by some, and booed with equal violence by others.

Babe Herman won an easy decision over Willie O'Brien. He rushed Willie from the very start. O'Brien seemed to be lying in ambush for the Sacramento Italian behind his elbows, waiting for a chance to knock him dead. But apparently Willie's chance never arrived.

Larry Murphy's fighting Irish instinct, which wouldn't let him back up, earned him a draw in his fight with Johnny Adams. Larry had a good edge in the first round, but Adams evened things when he caught Murphy coming in and stood him on his head in the second. Murphy had a slight shade in the third, but Adams had the fourth all to himself. The draw decision was very well received.

Don Davis weakened badly in the fourth round under the ten-pound weight advantage of Dode Bercot, and Bercot took a very unpopular decision. Davis's best round was the third, when several snappy rights staggered the northern fighter. Bercot continually forced the fighting and had Davis weak at the bell.

NEW YORK, June 3.—Bud Taylor's next battle will be a fifteen-round decision bout against Pancho Villa, the flyweight champion. This bout will be held at the Henderson bowl arena ni Brooklyn on the 10th inst., and it will be their third meeting. Their previous engagements were ten-round no-decision scraps, and in the last encounter, Taylor won the popular verdict.

HUGE ENTRY LIST FOR SWIM FINALS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

INDIANAPOLIS, June 3.—One hundred and twenty-five aquatic stars of the country are entered in the nine events of the Olympic swimming finals to be held at the Broad Ripple pool here Thursday, Friday and Saturday, it was announced today by Paul R. Jordan, in charge of the meet. The entries include practically all the eligible swimming stars of the country, among them being Johnny Weismuller, Duke Kahanamoku, Warrean Kealoha, Norman Ross, Buddy Smith and F. W. Grant.

ANGELS GIVE THREE PLAYERS RELEASES

Josh Billings, Lyle Bigbee and Bob Wallace were yesterday given their unconditional releases by Marty Krug, manager of the Los Angeles Coast League baseball club. This was in order to get the Angel roster down to the playing limit. Billings, a catcher, was obtained from the St. Louis Browns in the Lyons-Rego deal. Bigbee has been used as a utility man, being both an outfielder and a pitcher. Wallace has been with the club for two years, but has had indifferent success as a pitcher.

MORTON KAER AND CLIFF ARGUE LEAVE

Morton Kaer and Cliff Argue, Southern California's main hopes in the pentathlon and decathlon tryouts for the Olympic team, to be held next Tuesday and Wednesday in New York, left here yesterday. Local officials are of the opinion that Kaer stands a fine chance of placing at least second in the pentathlon. Argue, if he shows his customary form, should do equally as well. Chuck Lewis, who won the decathlon trials here, left last week for the East.

TO SETTLE TITLE MONDAY

Midwick and Los Angeles Women Golf Teams Meet to Break Tie for S.C.G.A. Honors at Annandale

BY CHARLES WEST

Following the lead of the men, who had a terrible time unscrambling the golf team situation, the feminine golfers have finished the schedule in a tie, players from the Midwick and Los Angeles country clubs having an equal number of points after the latter team was defeated, 5½ to 3½ by Midwick representatives Thursday. The tie will be played off Monday, Annandale having been selected as a neutral course.

Before the Beverly players lost to Midwick they were leading by a scant two points, and needed only to hold the Midwick players even to win the Southern California Golf Association team title. Mrs. Dorothy B. Hill and Miss Margaret Cameron unexpectedly won from Los Angeles' first twosome, composed of Miss Doreen Kavanagh, State champion, and Mrs. John Worley, Jr. The Midwick pair won 2½ to ½, Mrs. Hill scoring an 83 on the South course to help matters along.

Mrs. Guy Cochran and Miss Maude Bell further padded Midwick's lead by defeating Mrs. G. M. Midgley and Mrs. H. D. Hammond, 3 points to 0, and Mrs. F. S. Hardin and Mrs. C. K. Moore won from Mrs. Ann Wolverton and Miss Mae Bush 3 to 0 in behalf of Los Angeles.

HACIENDA

Yesterday was the first Ladies Day at the Hacienda Country Club, an affair which will be held weekly in the future. Contests in putting, approaching, and driving were on yesterday's schedule, Miss Maude Swain winning the putting event by holing out three balls in 7 strokes from 20 yards. Mrs. Lee Smith was second with 8 strokes.

In the approaching Mrs. Carson Albright and Miss Beatrice Calnon tied with 3 strokes each for pitching and holing out one ball, the former winning in the playoff. Mrs. A. R. McGregor won the driving contest, clouting a ball 205 yards. Mrs. S. B. Seay was second, her ball stopping only 5 yards to the bad.

Hacienda's handsome pro, Harry Pressler, played the Ojai course over the week-end, and joins the enthusiastic chorus in praise of the lay-out. He scored a 78 on his first trip around.

HOLLYWOOD

Bill Amor, Hollywood's accomplished professional, led the way in a high-powered foursome yesterday, scoring a 72 on the par 70 lay-out. George Cornes scored 80, Jack Knudson 79, and James chelew 85.

Hollywood's club championship tournament opens this week-end when qualifying rounds will be played.

BRENTWOOD

Indications are that the invitation tournament for women at the Brentwood Country Club tomorrow will draw a large entry list, many of the South's best players being expected to compete for the Harry Ham trophies. Competition will be medal play at handicap, the victor winning a leg on the Ham Trophy, which will go to the player winning it three times.

KANT SKORES PLAY AT PALMDALE ON SUNDAY

The newly organized Palmdale Athletic Club will play host to the Kant Skort Piston nine at Palmdale Sunday afternoon in one of the fast semipro games carded. The Kant Skore nine will be strengthened by the addition of several local college and prep stars.

EYE OPERATION SUCCESSFUL ON OLD THAM LANGFORD

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, June 3.—A drama of the prize ring reached a happy ending in a hospital here today. The principals, a veteran negro pugilist, an eye specialist, and a sport writer were supported by boxing fans of Los Angeles and New York.

Sam Langford, once considered unbeatable by any pugilist of his poundage in the heavyweight ranks, was discovered desolate and all but blind in Los Angeles. Consistent effort by Hype Igoe, a local sporting writer, resulted in Langford being sent, on funds furnished by Los Angeles boxing fans, to New York, where Dr. James W. Smith, an admirer of the fighter in his prime, performed a free operation.

Today the bandages were removed. Sam saw and was happy.

GOLFERS PRACTICE FOR OPEN

Cream of American Talent at Oakland Hills for Big Championship Tourney

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

DETROIT, June 3.—Practice rounds at Oakland Hills Country Club preparatory to the play of the national open golf championship Thursday and Friday ended today and tomorrow in the tournament preliminary the East will meet the West in team play for the benefit of the Professional Golfers' Association.

Each team will consist of twelve players, ten pros and two amateurs. They will play in foursomes.

Bobby Jones, defending champion, and Jess Guilford, Boston, are the amateurs who will play with the East and Chick Evans and Dave Herron of Chicago are the western amateurs.

The professional line-up includes MacDonald Smith of San Francisco and George Kerrigan of Los Angeles.

Racketers Ask for a Delay in Tilden Case

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, June 3.—A letter signed by Maurice McLoughlin, former national champion, and ten other prominent players, past and present, urging that the executive committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association which meets in New York tomorrow should not call a special meeting during the present playing season to reconsider the player-writer interpretation of the amateur rule, was made public today by George Wightman, president of the association.

The communication stated that such a meeting was unnecessary because all leading players, including the champion, William T. Tilden, II, were eligible to play in all important national and international tournaments during the summer without hindrance to their writing and that their work on the courts would be impaired by a controversy which should be postponed until a "more appropriate time when the matter could be debated more upon its merits."

The letter also stated that injection of the player-writer issue into the actual playing season would "be embarassing to players of other nations would also write for newspapers."

MADDEN TO FACE WILLS ON MONDAY

Ban is Finally Lifted on New York Bout; Heavies Start Work Today

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, June 3.—The Queensboro Stadium at Long Island City, which was adjudged a firetrap by Chief Commissioner Thomas J. Brennan on May 10, last, the eve of the Harry Wills-Bartley Madden bout, today received a thirty-day temporary permit from the Board of Standards and Appeals.

This means that the long-deferred encounter will be held next Monday night. No sooner was the permit handed to Promoter Simon Flaherty than he announced the new date. Flaherty fought his own case before the board through his attorney, Formre Supreme Court Justice Daniel F. Cohalan.

Flaherty expended $50,000 in the erection of the fight arena. Chief Klenon reported to Commissioner Brennan that he could not allow the place to be opened for the public until some changes had been made. These Flaherty quickly corrected.

The advance sale at the time the place was condemned had reached the $40,000 mark.

Wills will begin hard training again tomorrow and Madden will repair to his camp to put on the finishing touches.

ALEXANDER AND BURNE TOP COMPTON CARD

Victor Alexander and Sailor Jimmy Byrne are training hard for their main event at Compton Friday night. The two big fellows head the ten-bout card for the benefit of Ray Coffey, who is seriously ill in the General Hospital. Coffey has been in and out of the fight game for a number of years, and is well known to all the boxers and managers of Los Angeles. Roy Moore and Mack Spaw will fight the semi-wind-up at 142 pounds. Pedro Villa takes on Art Springer in the special event at 114 pounds. Other bouts are as follows: Battling Vargas vs. Danny Herrera, 120 pounds; Jimmy Walker vs. Young Alexander, 128 pounds, and Rex Felix vs. Young Jolla, 145 pounds. The four added bouts will be made up the night of the fights. Matchmaker Barney Meyers plans to have the best boys available to step in the extra bouts.

Senators Get Runs in First and Second Frames

BY ROBERT E. RAY

Bill Prough may give one the impression that he is in dire need of a rocking chair when he walks back to the bench from first base after being put out, but Bill can pitch and that's just what he did yesterday. Prough, who is just a little old to be termed what Eddie Frayne calls a "flushed young athlete," blanked the Angels, 2 to 0, giving Col. Pick's Sacramento warriors first blood in the series.

Prough let the Angels down with six scattered hits and refused to let any of them but Bill Whaley get to third. The only reason Whaley got to third was because he plays there. The Solons gave Prough, whose name is pronounced by some like through and by others like the front end of a ship, perfect support, getting him out of the hole on a pair of occasions by turning in fast double killings.

ROOT MAKES MISTAKE

Charley Root started for the Angels and hurled good ball for the eight innings he was in, but made the mistake of allowing the Solons to score one run in each the first and second frames. Root retired in the home half of the eighth to let Jacobs single for him. Nick Dumovich got into the picture by hurling the last inning.

Before the game Business Manager Oscar Reichow announced that the Los Angeles club has given Bob Wallace, Lyle Bigbee and Josh Billings their unconditional release. After purchasing Catcher Joe Jenkins from Salt Lake, the Angels decided to let Billings go. The Seraphs are now trimmed down within the player limit.

The Senators arrived here chuck full of two-base hits, five of their ten safeties being doubles. Probably the Senators' stay in the small San Francisco park last week got them in the two-base hit mood.

PORTLAND (Or.) June 3.—The Beavers suddenly came to life today in the grand marathon for Coast League cellar honors and whacked the offerings of Boehler, the speed king, for seventeen runs, of which sixteen were earned. BABE RUTH SUFFERING FROM GASTRONOMIC INDISCRETION

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, June 3.—Babe Ruth, an examination this morning proved, has not a fractured rib on his starboard side, but the pain in his chest is due to a bruised ligament, hurt when he collided with Ernie Johnson at the Yankee Stadium last Saturday. The slugger's side was improved today, however.

Dr. Woods explained that Ruth's gastronomic indiscretion frequently results in discomforts. Ruth will submit to an X-ray examination tomorrow, should the pain fail to ease further overnight.

PITCHES:

1. IN BED BY 11 PM
2. UP AT 7 OR 8 AM

What sort of schedule of sleeping and eating do you use for the twenty-four hours preceding a game?

Answered by
ED ROMMEL

Pitcher, Philadelphia Athletics: Allowed only 3.27 earned runs per game last season.

I always make it a point to get in bed by 11 p.m. if I am to pitch the next day and usually I rise about 8 a.m. These hours give plenty of rest but not enough to make you feel dopey or dull. I do not do much in the forenoon and then eat a light lunch. After lunch I go out to the ball park, put on my uniform and warm up a bit. Then I am ready for work and believe me, a pitcher must work hard all through the game, win or lose.

OSNER AND SPENCER TANGLE AT VENTURA

Frankie Osner and Jack Spencer, classy bantamweights, have been signed by Matchmaker Pop Hanlin to clash in the main event at the Ventura club tonight. Osner and Spencer are speedy boys and hard-hitting, so should put up a fast battle. Bud Cicerone and Bud Sharkey, lightweights, hook up in the semi-final. Young DeLeon and Kid Ponce, 112-pounders, meet in the special event. In the preliminaries Paul Berlenback faces Jack Martin, Young Firpo tangles with Billy Tinkle and Mike Flories battles with Paddy McKeen.

Rugby is played in virtually no part of the United States except California.

SEATTLE (Wash.) June 3.—Seattle stepped within one game of second place in the Pacific Coast League standings today by defeating Vernon 7 to 3 in the first game of a series with the Tigers here this week.

Percy Jones, who opposed Cadore and Vines on the mound, and Brady, Indian second-sacker, each hit a triple in the sixth inning for Seattle.

Andy Anderson's high-powered Taft salesman pulled a big surprise last night in the Hollywood Twilight League when they defeated the powerful Sash and Door nine by a score of 10 to 6, Paul Greene's playing at short and his hitting was one of the features of the contest.

The game was won by Taft in the fifth when they knocked Reese off of the rubber, in justice to Reese it might be said that four errors in this inning caused his downfall.

Bill Stevens also played a good game at short for the losers, and Butler's hitting also featured.

In today's game F. A. Hartwell will lead his gang of Oak Crest Indians against W. F. Peck's Cementers, in what should turn out to be a real battle. Manager Hartwell, has not received the breaks in the last three games played and is all ready for a strong comeback, he is not out of the running as his remaining games will be with teams at the bottom of the league. The Oak Crest stars will be near the top soon if present indications turn out right.

Riverside Nine in Finals for Prep Ball Title

Riverside High School baseball team trimmed Santa Paula at Santa Paula yesterday, 6 to 0, in the semifinals of the Southern California Interscholastic play-off. The pitching of McMurty was too much for the home club and although they got five bingles none of them came when hits meant runs.

Riverside started scoring in the fourth inning and a number of costly bobbles by the Santa Paula lads helped make the score what it was. The winners will meet either the Sweetwater or El Monte nine for the championship. These two teams are to play this week.

Competition in Davis Cup Tournament Promises to be Hot, Says Tilden

FOREIGN TEAMS THREATENING

Tilden Foresees Hard Battle for International Cup

Shows Australia Presents Strongest Line-up

Loser of Tennis Trophy is Host in Johnston's Hands

BY WILLIAM T. TILDEN, II
National Tennis Champion

The discussion of the Davis Cup competition for 1924 has reached the all-important question to the United States of "What will we do in the challenge round?" The lack of confidence that has characterized the United States Davis Cup Committee in past years is slightly tinged with a justifiable anxiety this season. There is every reason to believe that we should hold the cup, yet certain underlying factors of 1923 must be taken into consideration. What must the United States do to hold the cup? First of all the quality of play among the nations is higher than in 1923. Spain, with Manuel Alonso, Kinsella, with Shimizu, Okomoto and Fukuda; France, with Cochet, Brugnon and La Coste, are all stronger than Australia was last year. Australia, itself, is stronger with the dangerous threat of J. B. Patterson and O'Hara Wood. With the dangerous threat of J. Anderson joining this pair at the last moment cannot be minimized.

If J. Anderson should come, then Australia would have the finest team of her history, except that formidable pair, Norman E. Brooke and Anthony F. Wilding. Should Anderson, Patterson and O'Hara Wood challenge, they would have at least an even chance against the team in the world.

There are other factors to consider. The defeat of Little Bill Johnston by J. O. Anderson last summer is regarded by many as the beginning of the end of Johnston as an internationalist. Personally I do not hold this view and I fully expect to see Johnston once more our mainstay in 1924, yet I realize that I may be wrong and the "calamity howlers" right. If so, then indeed we face a serious situation. If Johnston regains his form there is no doubt in my mind that America will hold the cup. If he does not, or if he should not come east, although there seems no reason to question his coming, then I believe that the cup is in grave danger.

I am a year older, a year less keen. This year, I might add, has been a severe strain on the tennis patience of both the United States Tennis Association and myself. One cannot continually disagree, heckle, hold controversies and argue at length without losing interest in sport. My tennis days are nearly over, and I would rather close them in peace than in war. The ability to stand the strain of Davis Cup play may be affected by this year of strife. However, I am still in the ring this year if needed for the Davis Cup.

Vincent Richards remains a puzzle. Last year he seemed on the road of retrogression. This year while he has had a very successful early season, he has not flashed anything to make one believe that he has gone forward. R. N. Williams II, has played very little and one cannot do more than hope he will be his old self this year, no better and no worse, always dangerous, yet erratic. Francis T. Hunter has played little or no tennis this winter. I cannot believe that Hunter will keep to a position where he will prove the savior of the Davis Cup, should our first-string fail. I think Hunter a very reliable player and one who could be counted on to make a gallant defense if needed. But should it come to a question of a great star to plug a hole in our team, I fear that inherent defects in Hunter's game might hold him back.

The younger element has no outstanding figure of promise except Richards, whose promise seems destined to be delayed or never filled. Carl Fischer is our best bet, yet he lacks a stability of judgment and determination of purpose that is absolutely necessary to successful international competition.

The Kinsey brothers are too soft in their games. One group of young stars, Arnold W. Jones, J. M. Davis, Phil Neer, Philip Bettens, Edward Herndon and A. H. Chapin, Jr., are still too immature in their tennis to be of value this year.

Frankly, I think the Davis Cup is in real danger of leaving our shores. The crux of the situation lies in the hands of Billy Johnston. I am confident that he will as always in the past, rise to the moment and come back, the "Little Bill" of old. I sincerely hope so. If I am to be ruled out of tennis in 1925, as a professional because I write of it, I want one more year with "Little Bill" as my teammate in the Davis Cup and, as my "friendly enemy" in the championships.

Tennis in the United States would be a pretty dead thing without Little Bill. He has cut his own niche, from which no one can topple him, and I hope he will not decide to leave it empty for many years to come. It is up to Little Bill, with the help of Richards, Williams, Hunter and others, to hold the Davis Cup in the United States in 1924.

HOW CARDS COULD HAVE WON

How Stanford might have won the I.C.A.A.A.A. track meet last Saturday by taking one other man was being discussed in athletic circles yesterday. The gentleman in the case is Mr. Evers, the Card javelin thrower. Mr. Evers didn't do a thing all year, being beaten in every meet by good margins, but he showed enough promise to be sent up to the Pacific Coast Conference meet anyway. What does Mr. Evers do but toss the well-known toothpick 185ft. 6in. Mickey Reed, the former Stanford sprint star, took a look at the summary of the Boston meet and discovered that the athlete who won third place in that event hurled the spear 184ft. 8in. A Yale man took fifth place. Now if Mr. Evers had been taken to Boston and if he had tossed the spear the same distance he did at the Coast meet he would have won third place and three points, bringing Stanford's total up to 27½. Yale won the meet with 28 points, but if Mr. Evers had hurled the weapon as above Mr. Bench of Yale would have been shut out of fifth place and one point, making the score Stanford 27½, Yale 27, Princeton 27. What do you know about that?

Track Stars Due to Arrive Here Tomorrow

BY BRAVEN DYER

Coach Sid Foster and his Manual Arts High School track performers arrive from Chicago either late tonight or early tomorrow morning, and enthusiastic supporters of the Toiler stars will lose no time in staging a big welcome, Friday evening being set aside for a special "home-coming" program in honor of the Artisans. Officers of the Manual Alumni Association are in charge of the evening's entertainment, which will be put on in the school auditorium, and have arranged an attractive and spicy menu.

The big event of the night will be the speeches by Coach Foster and Lee Hansen, track captain. Both men will tell what happened at Chicago when the national inter-scholastic meet was staged, and those who like inside dope will undoubtedly get an earful. The Toilers tied for sixth place in the meet and would have done much better had not Hanford and Requa been forced to gallop through a whole flock of heats in their two events.

Sheriff Bill Traeger and Undersheriff Eugene Biscailuz will be present, but not on the official mission of keeping order. Speeches by the two well-known public men will add dignity to the program and their presence will undoubtedly prevent any serious outbreaks among the overzealous admirers of the Toilers.

Boxing and wrestling bouts will be staged, the Manual band will blare, embyro vaudeville artists will attempt to make the assembled spectators laugh and it is expected that a general good time will be had by all.

The "blowout" comes as a fitting conclusion to an unusually successful year for the Toilers, not only in track, but in all branches of sport. Last fall Coach Foster's gridders tied with L. A. High for the football title, and it was the general belief that only the great strategy of Coach Herbert White in pointing his men to the Manual tilt prevented the Artisans from winning, as they were admittedly the stronger eleven. Hollywood was disposed of in winning the basketball championship, and the same held true for track, although the Foothillers pulled a comeback when they copped the Southern California title after losing the city meet to the Toilers. Manual still has a chance to tie for the baseball championship, provided Poly trims Jefferson next Monday.

The general public is invited to Friday night's affair.

TILDEN TO PLAY IN LOS ANGELES

William T. Tilden II, national tennis champion, will take part in one of the Los Angeles tournaments this summer, according to word given out yesterday by Harvey Snodgrass, assistant secretary of the Los Angeles Tennis Club. Tilden has filed his entry for the Southern California championship tourney to be held here in August.

Snodgrass also announced that a new president of the local club will be elected next Monday night. Nat B. Browne, who has headed the local body for many years, is now in business in the East.

PETTICORD IN NEW CAR

Canadian National Champ to Drive Miller Chariot in Sunday's Big Race at Ascot Speedway

Receiving yesterday afternoon the first installment of an estate left him by an uncle a few months ago, Jack Petticord, Canadian national champion, immediately put a chunk of the money into the purchase of a 183-inch Miller car, formerly the property of "Hollywood Bill" White.

It has long been Petticord's ambition to drive one of Harry Miller's space-annihilating creations, but until yesterday Jack's bank roll kept him at the wheel of a "jazzed-up" Ford, mate to the five Henrys participating in the recent 500-mile race at Indianapolis. Petticord will make his debut with the new Miller at the Ascot Speedway next Sunday afternoon, having nominated himself to participate in the Jack Doyle handicap and the Italian Victory Crown dash. Always a spectacular figure on the Ascot programs, Petticord will probably make many new enthusiasts for his colors, as the new car will give him an opportunity to battle hub-to-hub with Leon Duray and Ralph De Palma.

DE PALMA ENTERED

De Palma's entry in Sunday's races was in doubt for a while yesterday. The Italian flatly refused to start if he is to be given a start over Leon Duray in the handicap event. "I will give up racing before I will publicly admit before a race that any driver has the edge on me or my car," said Ralph to Referee Charlie Keppen. It was not De Palma's threat, however, which caused Ascot officials to change their decision as to the handicapping, but the time made by De Palma in practice late in the afternoon, his ten-lap drive being faster than the same distance was covered on Sunday by Duray at the wheel of his supercharger Miller. Both Duray and De Palma will start on scratch.

Keppen announced during the afternoon that "Pop" Evans, Glendale daredevil, whose reputed 60 years have not dimmed his courage to the extent of taking the steep banks of Ascot in a manner befitting a man of his age, will be barred from further competiton. Keppen declared that although "Pop's" appearance at Ascot was usually wildly acclaimed by the speed fans, the officials decided that they would not hazard the chances of his getting hurt in an accident.

USES PACKARD CAR

Following a drawing among representatives of five high-grade cars yesterday to decide what car Ralph De Palma will use in his stock car exhibition drive of a portion of the Thanksgiving Day road race course on Sunday afternoon, the Italian announced that his mount will be a Packard roadster. Racing experts declare that the perilous drive over the temporary, and necessarily rough, surface of the course will be spectacular in the extreme. De Palma himself admits that he will have never taken such chances as he will experience on Sunday during his entire racing career. Some of the descents he will be called upon to make will amount to almost a plunge. For the big race safety embankments of baled hay will safeguard the drivers on the sharp turns, but on Sunday De Palma will have to take the land as it lays.

Another event has been added to Sunday's program. The Mack Sennett surprise sweepstakes will be contested, and its sponsors are emphatic in the promise that nothing like it has ever been witnessed on a speedway or other race course. Charlie Murray will act as starter of the Sennett race. Entries for Sunday's races closed last night. Eddie Meyer, Redlands favorite speeder, was the last pilot to enter the Jack Doyle handicap.

DERN WINS MATCH

MEDFORD (Or.) June 3.—Ira Dern, Salt Lake City grappler, won the second and third falls in a match at Gold Hill last night with Ralph Hand, Cottage Grove. Hand took the first fall in thirty-four minutes.

Frankie Farren and Dick Hoppe in Feature Go

Dick Hoppe, a son of Glendale, and Frankie Farren, from San Francisco, are the principals in the feature at the Hollywood American Legion stadium Friday night. The bout is one of the elimination affairs in the championship division of the lightweight tournament now under way at the Movie City arena to determine the true champion of the Pacific Coast.

Since draw verdicts are nil as far as tournament matches are concerned one or the other of the boxers will be out of the race for the belt to go to the winner of the competition, the emblem offered significant of the title by Hollywood Post No. 43. The fans will undoubtedly most of them string with Hoppe in that he is a local boy, but Frankie is not without supporters in the south by any means.

Sailor Ashmore and Young Datto, lightweights, are slated to box one of the AA elimination scraps in the semi-final spot. Both Ashmore and Datto are capable boys and should unfurl an attractive bout.

Frankie Dolan, for the first time in several months, is back on the card, this time in the special event against Jockey Joe Dillon at 115 pounds. Both boys are favorites with the Hollywood regulars. Billy Young tackles Young Bello at 130 pounds, Red Uhlan and Harry Ritzer mix at 150 pounds, Sailor Fernandez and Battling Ward will mill at 130 pounds and Eddie McAuliffe opens the show against Sailor Reed at 130 pounds.

ANAHEIM TO STAGE SWIM THIS MONTH

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ANAHEIM, June 3.—The showing of the Anaheim swimming team has been so impressive in the dual meets with other schools of the county that Coach Sutherland is having trouble lining up other schools to compete in the first Orange county interscholastic meet that is to be held in conjunction with the big invitational meet in the municipal plunge here on Flag Day, June 14.

Sutherland is receiving favorable replies to his invitations and the big meet promises to go over with a splash that is going to be heard in swimming circles all over the country.

To date the swimming teams of Pasadena and Los Angeles high schools have signified their intention to take part in all the events, and Venice and Hollywood are also expected to send their entries.

PICKS STOCKTON FOR TRAINING CAMP

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

STOCKTON, June 3.—Manager Branch Rickey of the St. Louis National League baseball club has submitted a definite proposition to establish his 1925 training camp in Stockton if this city will guarantee him a $10,000 gate for six exhibition games to be played here next March. The Chamber of Commerce will act on the proposition next Friday.

Rickey's proposition has been submitted to Morsing Brothers, owners of the Sacramento club, and to George A. Putnam, secretary of the San Francisco baseball club, and both of them have promised to play games in Stockton against the Cardinals if the $10,000 is guaranteed by local interests.

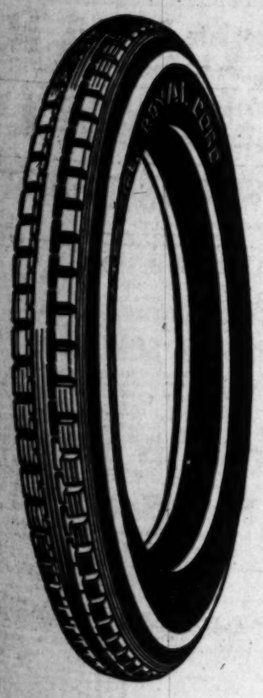
UNITED STATES TIRES ARE GOOD TIRES

Tapping rubber trees for latex on a United States Rubber Company Plantation in the Far East



United States Tires are the only tires in the world made of cords solutioned in raw rubber latex.

Latex—The New Word in Tire Building

UP to a short time ago very few tire users had ever heard of latex.

Now as most all car owners know U. S. Tires are being made of cords solutioned in this milky-white liquid from the rubber tree.

They are as yet the only tires in the world that enjoy the advantages of the latex treatment but this new and better method gives so much added strength and wearing quality to tires that it will undoubtedly supersede all other methods.

The use of latex is peculiarly and solely to be credited to the makers of United States Tires.

The methods developed for bringing latex to the tire factories in this country from its rubber plantations in the far east is one of the greatest achievements of U. S. Rubber Engineers.

The processes and equipment for using latex in tire building are the exclusive property of the United States Rubber Company and are patented.

The source of supply of latex for U. S. Tires are the United States Rubber Plantations in Sumatra and on the Malay Peninsula. They cover 172 square miles of rich fertile land and contain 5,000,000 rubber trees.

Conference Stars Finish Brilliant Athletic Careers This Month

SEVEN DIAMOND ARTISTS TO GO

Fred Groat and Holly Moyse to Leave Caltech

Grizzlies Will Feel Loss of Long Al Montgomery

Don Thompson Graduation to Hurt Redlands

The closing of the Southern California Intercollegiate Conference baseball season last week marked the passing of a number of well-known athletes who have made themselves known not only on the diamond, but also in other sports. Outstanding during the past four years have been Fred Groat, Holly Moyse, Al Montgomery, Don Thompson, Herb Mooney, Cliff Argue and Ed Suggett.

Groat and Moyse, who will be graduated this month from Caltech, have starred on Engineer athletic teams ever since their registration at the Pasadena institution and their departure will leave two big holes to be filled. Groat has been the mainstay of the baseball team because of his ability as a pitcher and hitter, while he also played football, performing in the backfield. Moyse earned letters in football, baseball and track during the past year and would have had one in basketball if time permitted. He was regarded as one of the best hitters in the conference and as a tackle had few peers in the south. His work in the hammer marked him as the best man in Southern California in this event.

Al Montgomery pitched the local University of California nine to its first baseball championship this year. The tall southpaw was easily the best heaver in the conference and should go well in professional ball if he decides to give it a trial.

Don Thompson, Redland's giant, has not been so well known on the diamond as he was on the gridiron and basketball court. Several coaches rated him the finest tackle in this neck of the woods, while his defensive ability made him a great basketball player.

Mooney played third for Pomona during part of the past season, but had his greatest success in football, captaining the Sagehens in 1923. He also played basketball.

Argue was generally too busy with track to give much attention to baseball, but always made good whenever called upon. He starred on the Oxy football team for two years and when paired with the fleet-footed Tony Spangler made up the fastest pair of ends in the West.

Suggett only recently attained fame as a baseball artist at Whittier, but his work on the Poet football team two years ago caused Walter Camp to give him honorable mention when selecting men for his mythical all-American eleven.

MOONRAKER WINS LATONIA CLASSIC

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

LATONIA (Ky.) June 3.—Moonraker scored an easy victory in the inaugural handicap, the feature of the opening day of the Latonia meeting today, when he was eased up by four open lengths, from Audacious and Glide. The race was worth $5700 to the winning owner. Chilhowee, Rinkey and Barracuda also started.

WELSH TO LONG BEACH

Former Syracuse and Oberlin Star Succeeds Arthur Schuettner and Will Coach Jack Rabbits

Yale's great football coaching system will be reflected in the Long Beach Poly High gridiron machine of 1924 as a result of the selection today by the Board of Education of Hugh Emerson Welsh as the head athletic mentor, to succeed Coach Arthur E. Schuettner, resigned. Coach Welsh is at present head of athletics at Santa Maria High School of Santa Maria, where he turned out a league championship football team last year that met defeat only at the hands of Long Beach Poly in the State playoffs.

Coach Welsh is a track and football letter man of Oberlin College and Syracuse University, receiving the bulk of his gridiron training under Tad Jones, the great Yale pigskin mentor. The new Jackrabbit coach worked as assistant under Tad Jones and Howard Jones at Syracuse in 1909, and is thoroughly conversant with the famous eastern systems of training and developing gridiron athletes. Welsh received his early training at Oberlin. He was graduated from Syracuse in 1910, a track and football letter man. For a time he was assistant coach at Syracuse, and in 1914 assumed the coaching duties at Oberlin in track and football.

During the war he acted as physical director at Camp Sherman in Ohio. In 1921 Coach Welsh directed the destinies of the Reno (Nev.) High School, turning out a State championship team his first year. In 1922 he won all games played while at Reno, the final championship contest not being played that year.

Welsh has a pleasing personality and is a good mixer, although an exceptionally strict disciplinarian on the field. He possesses another attribute in that he always receives newspaper men with courtesy and attention.

double to left center. McNeely took third on Kopp's sacrifice and romped home on Hemingway's one-base knock. Hemingway stole second, but remained at the halfway station while Siglin and Schang went out. The Solons got their last run in the second, when Claude Rohwer and Prough grouped a pair of doubles to left field, the former scoring.

Some good pitching by Root prevented the Senators from scoring some more runs in the sixth, after they had put men on second and third, with only one out. After Hemingway had flied to Hood, Siglin doubled to left, Schang singled to right, Siglin stopping at third, and took second on Twombly's throw to the plate. Then Root forced Cochrane to hit a dinky fly to Hood and retired Mollwitz on a roller to Cruise, who filled in at first for the locals.

The Seraphs got their first man up on base in the sixth, seventh and eighth frames, but double plays nipped any plans the locals might have had for scoring in the first two-named innings. In the eighth Beck led off with an infield single, but Joe Jenkins, batting for batting for Beck, singled to right and things looked a little better for the home guards. But Prough decided to let everybody go home as early as possible, and retired Whaley and Twombly.

In today's game Krug plans to shoot Doc Crandall at the visitors, while Bill Hughes will probably start for Sacramento. The score:

CALIFORNIA PROSPECTS IN OLYMPIC GAMES DISCUSSED

BY BOYD COMSTOCK,
Former Coach University of Southern California and Yale University

Hill of Pennsylvania was mainly responsible for Pennsylvania's splendid showing in Saturday's intercollegiates. Hill was allotted fourth in the 100 yards and second in the 220. He added four points to Penn's estimated score by winning both sprints.

Owens and Sherrill added an additional four points to the total by placing so well in the polt vault. Wolf of Penn won two points in the high hurdles, although Bugbee of Dartmouth was the logical winner over Wolf. Scattergood was picked over both hurdlers. Pennsylvania should have placed fourth or fifth in the hammer on the basis of the year's comparative performances, although the upset in this instance was not so pronounced. Borsen jumped true to form in the running broad. The Penn high jumpers failed to come up to expectations, although Casson of Penn tied with several others for second place.

Pennsylvania was given a score of twenty-odd points. The additional seven points were well earned by placing men in difficult events.

RUN TRUE TO FORM

Southern California ran true to form in all events save the low hurdles and the 440. Wilson's place in the broad jump was less certain than Anderson's place in the hurdles, and this fact is borne out by the final time in the hurdle race. Anderson placed in the shot against terrific competition, while Marts failed in a field that lacked real championship ability. This fact is also verified by the time.

Southern California was given a possible twenty points. The six-point loss could easily have been nullified. Dye's best time was not equaled in the hugh hurdles, while Marts and Anderson should have made up the additional six points.

Princeton ran true to form by gathering three additional points. Gibson's unexpected win in the javelin and Croft's place in the 440 compensated for Scattergood's showing in the two hurdle events.

Johns Hopkins practically made the fifteen-point score predicted, although Clark's inability to compete with Hill and Norton was unexpected, particularly in the furlong.

Penn State exceeded its fifteen-point margin by six points. This was principally due to Helffich's win in the 440 and, incidentally, it must be added that this was totally unexpected. Conway should have placed in one of the sprints because of his consistent work this year, plus his long experience in metropolitan circles. Moore exceeded his best hurdle mark in the highs, although he was rated as a contender for first place. His fourth place in the lows made up the loss of points in the sprints.

TAKE SLIGHT DROP

As was predicted, Harvard and Cornell fell slightly below the fifteen-point class.

In spite of the fact that it is almost impossible to successfully select in advance the five place winners in a large sectional meet comprising fifteen events, it might be well to consider the fact that the outcome did not vary greatly from the prediction. For instance, four of the sprint favorites placed in the 100 yards; three of the favorites placed one-two-three in the 220; four of the suggested men placed in the 440 (the event was won by an unexpected entry;) five of the favorites placed in the 880; four of the favorites placed in the mile; four of the favorites placed in the two-mile (the added place-winner was selected as a winner in the mile;) five of the favorites placed in the shot, five in the high jump, five in the bread jump, four in the pole vault, four in the hammer, three in the discus, four in the high hurdles and two in the low hurdles.

The favorite was not placed in the high jump and the same holds true in the low hurdles. A non-favorite won the latter event, while the javelin throw went the same way. Arthur of Stanford proved a surprise in the discus.

To summarize again, it is well to consider that fourteen of the fifteen events ran true to form and that only one event ran the other way.

REVEAL FAVORITES

The foregoing resume has been inserted because it proves that the mathematical system of computing the possible place winners in any meet will at least reveal the favorites.

Picking the actual winner requires more than a list of the individual stars, because winning depends upon "condition," and it follows that it would be impossible for any dopester to acquire in advance such a vast amount of knowledge. This "condition" can be estimated by referring to the record book, but it often happens that the athlete in question has no record.

Comins, for instance, was a 21ft. jumper last spring and at the close of the season he cleared 24ft. 4in. It is impossible to gauge this sort of progress. Murchison was rated to be the best sprinter—exclusive of Paddock—and it will be remembered that he barely placed in the 1922 sprints. His 1923 comeback was surprising, to say the least. Woodring ran last in a heat of the 440 nationals and a year later placed first in the intercollegiate quarter.

Barnes of Hollywood High School has vaulted 13ft. and better in his last three Coast meets and then tied for first at 12ft. 4in. in the Chicago interscholastics last Saturday. Nichols, the interscholastic record-holder, did not place Saturday. Daggs stumbled and fell in the last Southern California meet. The dopester has no way of estimating such mishaps unless an athlete has a string of such accidents to his credit. In such a case he can make allowances for a fall.

Murchison was left on his marks in the last Olympic sprint and this may happen in any meet. A quarter-miler may draw a poor position or he may be elbowed. The decision may be at fault. Certain athletes compete well in the sectional meets and fall in national contests.

MANY INSTANCES

There are numberless instances of this sort and naturally it is almost impossible to allow for this sort of thing. Osborne, the holder of the new world's high-jump record, has been beaten consistently by Brown of Dartmouth, although his records have topped Brown's yearly marks. Certain athletes make phenomenal marks in indoor competition and fall miserably when they run or jump in outdoor meets.

Owens of Pennsylvania, the intercollegiate vault champion, failed at 11ft. in the 1923 nationals after tying for first place in the 1923 intercollegiates. The matter of age enters in the situation, and it makes a great deal of difference as to whether a man is jumping for a college team or an athletic club. Some athletes reach their peak when they graduate while others fade rapidly as soon as they leave college. Some athletes retain their interest and others lose it, and then, too, the mental hazard plays a most disconcerting part in every meet.

TEE, FAIRWAY AND GREEN BY CHARLES "CHICK" EVANS

THE DRIVER

I grasp this club in the middle of the leather grip with the fingers, never the palms, and the hands are close together, working as one large hand.

Fingers are firm, but not tight, and I feel the club swing easily, with the club-head acting like a weight on the end of a string. The thumbs are down the shaft with only a slender inner section of them resting upon it. If you are not hitting very well, or if you want to be sure that your hands won't be ahead of the ball on the address, shorten your grip a little. You should feel the club confidently in the fingers, balancing it, as it were, in your hands, and you should also be able to feel the wiggle-waggle movement of a weighty club-head, which is a very helpful thing.

I place my toes on a straight line with my feet far enough apart to give a feeling of solidity. This is the square stance. If motion is not free, I open my stance somewhat, but not enough to let the right shoulder interfere with the stroke. My stance is firm and comfortable with both heels lightly on the ground. There is one way of standing which gives you better direction, find it through practice, and I advise you to beware of the tendency to open the stance too much. It is the easiest thing in the world to work around unconsciously to a too open stance and in my opinion if there is one act which takes the pace off the ball it is this undue opening of the stance.

Physiques vary and therefore it is up to you to find the correct square stance. In fact, even though I consider the square stance best, if you can just open it enough to feel good and comfortable, you will be conforming to my ideas. However, I think that you should say to yourself often: "stand more nearly square." The feet themselves are a general rule should be a little wider apart than you might imagine. Of course, if you are playing in a wind you should have a fairly wide stance. The right heel should not be off the ground at the beginning of the stroke. The comfort of the feet has much to do with a golf stroke, and a part of this feeling is the sensation of a solid grip on the earth. The toes should not be turned in, neither should they turn out too much; you use common sense.

The position of the ball should be about off the left heel. I play it sometimes a little further forward, but not forward enough to cause it to slice, and never too far back. I try not to get the weight of the body ahead of the ball, but I stand at a medium, easy distance from it; a little nearer in a high wind. This is an important adjustment for the average player and all I can say and emphasize is that you must not stand too close or too far away from the ball. There is a correct disance for you. I advise you, however, to be very careful not to stand too close to the ball because if you do the face of the club is apt to curve out at contact and create a bad slice.

If the distance of the ball is too far from you you should bring your hands closer to your body. Stand closer in a wind. Don't rush the ball; it will not run away. Play with a clean ball; if you are not allowed to remove the mud, hold tight and hit firmly. It will probbaly go wrong but don't lose your temper.

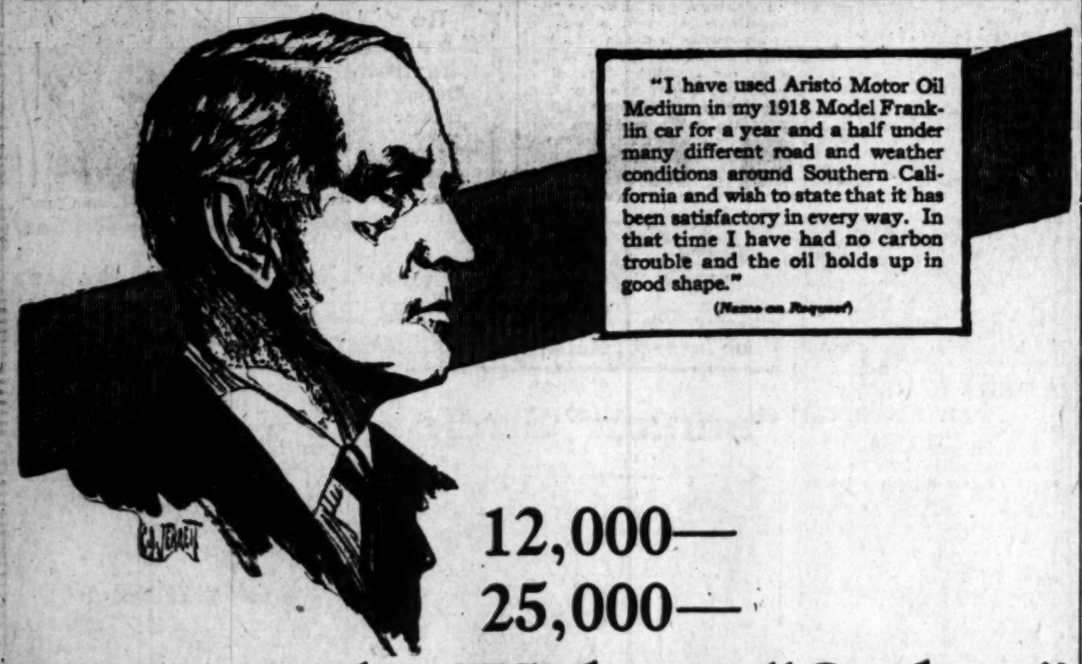
An Exact Science

The professor of mathematics and his fiancee were out roaming in the fields when she plucked a daisy and looking roguishly at him began to pull off the petals, saying, "He loves me, he loves me not ——"

"You are giving yourself a lot of unnecessary trouble," said the professor. "You should count up the petals, and if the total is an even number the answer will be in the negative; if an uneven number, in the affirmative."



"I have used Aristo Motor Oil Medium in my 1918 Model Franklin car for a year and a half under many different road and weather conditions around Southern California and wish to state that it has been satisfactory in every way. In that time I have had no carbon trouble and the oil holds up in good shape."

(Name on Request)

50,000 Miles Without "Carbon"

FROM time to time, we print testimonial letters from users of Aristo Motor Oil.

They tell of long-time running without "carbon" troubles, — 12,000 — 25,000 — 50,000 miles.

What It Saves

All motor oils deposit a carbonaceous residue in motors.

Some of this "carbon" is hard and flinty. It has a tendency to cling.

It causes power leaks through badly seated valves. It is an abrasive, a danger to cylinders and pistons. It coats spark plugs and short-circuits them so they miss.

It becomes incandescent, causing pre-ignition, which means "knocking."

This Is Soft, Fluffy

But the residue from Aristo Motor Oil is so soft and fluffy that most of it blows out with the exhaust.

The motor stays cleaner, runs thousands of extra miles without "carbon" removal.

This kind of residue is softer than the metals in a motor, so cannot scratch them.

Records of from 12,000 to 50,000 miles without "carbon" indiciate a motor oil of high lubricating quality, plus a saving of time and expense in motor operation that every motorist will be glad to effect.

Motorists everywhere are making these mileage records with Aristo Motor Oil. See what your car can do.

All first class garages and service stations can supply it.

Union Oil Company of California

ARISTO Motor Oil

Avoid Motor Oils containing paraffin or asphalt or any other non-lubricating substance. Aristo Motor Oil is refined by the most advanced processes designed to eliminate everything in the crude which has no lubricating value.

BROOKHART IS RENOMINATED

Iowa Senator is Named by 30,000 Majority

Most of Strength Gained in Rural Areas

Democrats Pick Steck for Senatorial Race

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

DES MOINES, June 3.—United States Senator Smith W. Brookhart was renominated in the Republican primary election in Iowa Monday by a majority of more than 30,000 votes. Returns from 2272 precincts out of 2412 in the State tonight gave Brookhart a total vote of 187,252 and his opponent, Burton E. Sweet, 157,379. The precincts yet to be reported were for the most part in Brookhart territory and probably will tend to increase his majority.

WINS SIXTY-NINE COUNTIES

Senator Brookhart gained a majority vote in sixty-nine of the ninety-nine counties of the State, according to almost complete returns. Two or three counties still are doubtful. Sweet carried the First, Third and Fifth Congress districts by substantial majorities and ran his opponents a neck and neck race in the Sixth and Ninth districts. Brookhart gained most of his majority in the rural districts.

No nomination was recorded in the Republican contest for Governor. John Hammill of Britt, Lieutenant-Governor, led the field, with W. J. Burbank, State Treasurer, who has the backing of the Ku Klux Klan, second. Joe H. Anderson, speaker of the Iowa House of Representatives, finished third, with Glenn Haynes, State Auditor, in fourth place. J. D. Buser and A. J. Banks, farmer candidates, were far in the rear.

DEMOCRATIC CHOICES

In the Democratic contests, Dan Steck of Ottumwa, was the winner for United States Senator over Charles Keyes and John Denison of Des Moines, on the basis of incomplete returns. J. C. Muragh of Waterloo was nominated for Governor on the Democratic ticket over D. K. Unsicker of Mahaska county.

Clem F. Kimball of Council Bluffs, was an easy winner over John R. Price of Albia for the Republican nomination for Lieutenant-Governor.

The influence of the Ku Klux Klan was evident in many of the contests, the organization showing considerable strength in both city and rural districts.

R. A. Jaffray, Canadian head of the Christian Missionary Alliance at Wuchow and D. H. G. Miller, an American attached to the same organization, who were also captured by the bandits, were reported to have been released, in a message from Shanghai Sunday.

LAKE TAHOE WATER RIGHTS FIGHT BASIS

NEVADA FARMERS MAY USE FLOW IF THEY DON'T DRAIN RESERVOIR

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—California is not disposed to deny the farmers of Nevada and other interests the right to the outlet waters of Lake Tahoe as long as such water use results in no drainage of the lake, E. G. Schmiedell of San Francisco, head of a committee named to conserve the waters of the lake, said today. The statement followed a conference held yesterday in which the farmers, conservation and other interests, participated, with Gov. Scrugham of Nevada.

A committee was named at the conference to draw up a concrete plan calling for the aiding of the interests involved in a manner that will not drain the lake. This committee will meet here next Thursday or Friday with Gov. Scrugham.

The final plan will be presented to the Department of the Interior, for its approval, Schmiedell said.

JAPAN BANS "KISS" FROM PUBLIC EYE

"Unclean Habit," Say Police, Who Put Screen Around Rodin Masterpiece

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TOKIO, June 3.—"Kissing is an unclean habit, the introduction and encouragement of which is not desired by the Japanese," the Chief of the Metropolitan Police of Tokio said today in explaining why a bamboo screen was erected around a bronze reproduction of Rodin's "The Kiss." The work was one of several French masterpieces banned from public sight by the police censor.

When the art exhibit loaned to Japan by the French Academy of Art opened yesterday those attending were astonished to find Rodin's "The Kiss," "Spring" and Raphael and Collins's "Sleep" covered up.

A representative of the French Embassy called at the Foreign Office to learn the reason for the ban on the bronzes and canvasses, which were the pride of France. He was referred to the police, who gave the above explanation.

Man Made "Young" At 84 Tells How He Regained Vigor

Another remarkable report of being made "young" without a gland operation comes from J. L. Rowell, 84, of Kaw City, Okla.

"It has simply been wonderful!" says Mr. Rowell. "My eyesight is clearer and my muscles feel supple. I walk with a firm, springy step and now can do a man's work. I am enjoying a remarkable re-invigoration and restoration of gland and nerve activity, and I feel as young and vigorous as I did at 30. I have found a real 'fountain of youth.'"

Mr. Rowell says he "rejuvenated" himself in only ten days by taking the recently discovered korex compound in tablet form. Many others—young and old—make similar reports of their experience with this compound in cases of nerve weakness, lost vigor and premature age. In fact, letters praising korex are being received in such volume that it has been made available to all. It is distributed in this territory by McColloch Drug Co., (4 stores) 600 So. Alvarado St., 559 So. Vermont Ave., 833 W. Sixth St., 6th and Western Ave., McKay & Monkman (2 stores) Cor. Daly and No. Broadway, Cor. 9th and Broadway; Ever Ready Drug Co., Hollywood Calif; Patterson Drug Co., 902 Fair Oaks Ave., South Pasadena, Cal. Anyone feeling the need of increased gland activity, vigor and nerve force can now test this sensational new discovery at small expense. Just ask for korex, full strength.—[Advertisement.

SETTLER RELIEF BILL REPORTED

House Irrigation Committee Speeds Measure

Legislation Has Approval of the President

Congressional Action Sought at This Session

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, June 3.—A bill designed to afford relief to settlers on reclamation projects and to provide sweeping changes in the reclamation laws was reported today by the House Irrigation Committee.

The measure is in line with the recommendations of Secretary Work's fact-finding commission on reclamation, which has been approved by President Coolidge.

The vote was 12 to 1.

House action on the bill will be sought before adjournment, Chairman Smith being instructed to use every effort to call it up under the suspension of the rules, which would shut off amendments, limit debate to forty minutes and require a two-thirds vote for passage.

Committee work on the bill was speeded in view of the numerous demands in both House and Senate that reclamation legislation be enacted before adjournment. The measure introduced by Mr. Smith would provide for the establishment of a Bureau of Reclamation in the Interior Department and readjustment of water charges, which would be based on the average estimated crop value extended over a period of years. Settlers on new projects would be given thirty instead of twenty years in which to pay off charges.

Representatives Raker, Democrat, California, opposed the bill in the committee. He said he expected to file a minority report. The committee eliminated a proposal which would have enabled the extension by the Secretary of the Interior of short-time loans of $600 to settlers for the purchase of live stock and equipment and another provision which would have authorized him, after an investigation, to charge off the cost of land not suited for irrigation. The cost of charging off such lands had been estimated at $28,000,000.

Merrimac Hero Given Pardon in Desertion Case

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, June 3.—An act of heroism when the collier Merrimac was sunk deliberately in Santiago Harbor by Lieut. Richmond P. Hobson has won a Presidential pardon on this twenty-sixth anniversary of the Merrimac's sinking for Francis Kelly, an enlisted member of the crew captured by the Spaniards when his ship was sunk.

For his heroism, Kelly was awarded a Congressional medal of honor, and later honorably discharged. He then re-enlisted but in 1902, according to his application for a pardon was "shanghaied" and then spent nineteen years seeking to return to the United States.

His request for clemency on the technical charge of desertion was indorsed by Capt. Hobson, his former commander and by Sectary Wilbur.

WILSON & CO. MAY AVOID RECEIVERS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CHICAGO, June 3.—There has been no agreement for a voluntary receivership of Wilson & Co., the $121,000,000 Chicago packing corporation, and hope is entertained for a reorganization without such action, Frank O. Wetmore, president of the First National Bank and chairman of the bankers-creditors committee announced today. Published reports were that the company would seek a voluntary receivership.

Approximately $25,000,000 of the $30,000,000 floating indebtedness of Wilson & Co. has been renewed, Mr. Wetmore said.

CHANCELLOR OF AUSTRIA SINKS FAST

Little Hope for Life as Condition Grows Worse in Last Few Hours

BY JOHN CLAYTON

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

[Copyright, 1924, by the Chicago Tribune.]

VIENNA, June 3.—Chancellor Seipel is reported sinking. During the last few hours his condition has become steadily worse. Complications from his old illness have sapped his strength to such an extent that it is considered hardly probable he will recover.

The correspondent at Budapest telephoned that the Hungarian police believe the attempted assassination of Chancellor Seipel was part of a great anarchist plot to kill several European political leaders. The police declare that the band which is organizing the attempts are anarchists from the spinning districts of Austria.

According to the police, two agents are already on the way to France to attempt to kill M. Poincare and President Millerand. It is said that Chancellor Marx of Germany is also on the list of those slated for assassination. The Budapest police telegraphed a warning to all the police in European capitals to look out for members of the band.

REPUBLICAN STAGE IS SET

Everything Is Settled for Convention Week From Today Except Vice-Presidential Choice

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CLEVELAND, June 3.—One week from today the Republican National Convention assembles for business and everything has been practically settled with the exception of finding a nominee for the Vice-Presidency.

It is a situation without a parallel since 1904, when the Republicans marched to Chicago and nominated Theodore Roosevelt by acclamation. Inasmuch as no arrangements have been made to place Senator Hiram Johnson of California in nomination for the Presidency, there is no doubt that President Coolidge could be chosen by acclamation were it not for the presentation of the name of Senator La Follette by the Wisconsin delegation.

The last important details for the convention machinery were perfected today, so far as they can be in preconvention arrangements by party leaders, with the selection of former Congressman Frank W. Mondell of Wyoming as permanent chairman of the convention, and the choice of Charles B. Warren, Ambassador to Mexico, as chairman of the resolutions committee, which will draft the party platform.

Aside from the presentation of La Follette's name, and assured proposal by the Wisconsin delegation of certain substitutions and changes in the platform as it will be sent to the convention by the resolutions committee, there isn't a ripple in sight for the Coolidge forces. What at first looked like a five-day convention, ending on Saturday, the 14th inst., now promises to be a three-day affair, winding up with a night session on Thursday, the 12th inst. Nobody wants to nominate a Presidential candidate on Friday, the 13th and nobody sees the need of prolonging the business until Saturday.

Unless unforeseen hitches develop, and there are none in sight, the program will be about like this:

Tuesday—Preliminary short session, perfecting the temporary organization and to hear the keynote address by Representative Theodore E. Burton, of Ohio, temporary chairman. Early adjournment to release delegates for service on the resolutions, credentials and rules committees.

Wednesday—Probably two sessions, morning and afternoon, to perfect the permanent organization, hear the speech by Permanent Chairman Hondell, adopt the reports of the rules and credentials committees, hear the report of the resolutions committee; receive the platform in final form.

Thursday—Two long sessions, or possibly three, with one at night, but not the latter if it can be avoided. Hear the speech of Dr. Marion LeRoy Burton, president of the University of Michigan, placing President Coolidge in nomination and nominate President Coolidge on the first ballot, which according to all estimates will give him all but possibly forty of the 1109 votes in the convention. Then the convention will proceed to the nomination of a Vice-President.

If there be the makings of a contest anywhere in the life of the convention, it will come on the Vice-President, but even that seems unlikely.

"Coolidge for Country"---New Party Slogan

"The country for Coolidge as Coolidge is for the country," is the slogan of two prominent Nevada delegates to the National Republican Convention, who arrived in Los Angeles yesterday en route to Cleveland, O. The delegates are Mrs. Frank Ellis Humphrey and Col. H. B. Maxson, both of Reno.

Mrs Frank Ellis Humphrey

Col H B Maxson

Mrs. Humphrey, who is chairman of the Industrial and Social Relations Committee of the General Federation of Women's Clubs and attending the biennial convention here, will depart tomorrow evening. She is a guest at the Biltmore.

Col. Maxson, who is here to visit his sons, H. H. and E. L. Maxson of Eagle Rock, will leave next Friday evening. Col. Maxson was for eight years secretary of the Nation Irrigation Congress and one of the pioneers in the movement to reclaim the arid areas of the West.

Mrs. Rush Wins Women's Press Club Majority

Mrs. Emma Matt Rush defeated Mrs. Clarence Van Graham by a two-to-one vote in the race for the presidency of the Southern California Women's Press Club at the election held in the Ebell Club yesterday afternoon. The other officers elected are: First vice-president, Mrs. Anna Nissen; second vice-president, Miss Rose Ellerbe; recording secretary, Clara Greening Creager; corresponding secretary, Iva Whitman Robinson; treasurer, Senah B. Keenan; auditor, Lily Josephine Lewer; historian, Emma Seckle Marshall; parliamentarian, Mrs. Fannia Mattoon Gleason. Directors elected from the floor are Mary Clough Watson, Clara Spalding Ellis and Myra Caine Grant.

SUSPECT IS ARRESTED ON BAD-CHECK CHARGE

M. L. Good's asserted facile penmanship caused his arrest by Los Angeles police yesterday on bad-check charges. Good, who is 35 years of age, was taken into custody at 3800 West Twenty-seventh street, by Officers Casey and Brown of University station. The officers said they had evidence he had passed checks aggregating in excess of $2000. The Sheriff of Riverside county telephoned last night that he held a felony warrant for Good on fictitious checks and a little later the Sheriff of Orange county telephoned that he also wanted the man on bad paper charges.

SCORES SEE WOMAN DIE UNDER CARS

Policeman Makes Heroic But Futile Attempt to Save Mrs. Mary Smith

A horror-stricken crowd in front of the Pacific Electric station at Sixth and Main streets last night witnessed the heroic but futile attempt of Police Officer Barrada to rescue Mrs. Mary Smith, 45 years of age, from death under the wheels of an oncoming train.

Apparently confused, the woman broke loose from the officer's grasp and fell under the train. Her body was mangled as the front truck passed completely over her.

Shouts by the officer and screams of women eye-witnesses brought the train to a stop. The woman's body was cut in half and was removed from the trucks with difficulty.

The victim was identified at the Receiving Hospital by R. A. Murray, 920 East Ninth street. The body is being held at Connell's Undertaking Company.

WIFE'S SUIT ANGLE GIVEN IN SHOOTING

Girl in Whose Home Man Attempted Suicide Was Co-respondent

Lillian Warnes, 18 years of age, in whose home here Dana C. Stewart, 30, shot himself Monday night, was the co-respondent in a suit in which Mrs. Stewart obtained a divorce last March in Liberty, Sask., a dispatch from that city last night stated. Stewart's recovery is doubtful, General Hospital physicians report.

Stewart, a wealthy Saskatchewan rancher, left Liberty May 26, last, after receiving a telegram from Miss Warnes saying that she had changed her mind and would not marry him, according to the dispatch. They had planned to marry in a short time when Mrs. Stewart's divorce became final, it was reported.

Stewart fired a bullet into his chest at the girl's home, 752 Magnolia avenue, when police called to question him because of asserted threats against the girl. Soon after the Stewarts were divorced Miss Warnes came to Los Angeles and went to work in a beauty parlor, it is said.

MAN CAUGHT IN DRUG NET IS WEALTHY

Large Property Owner is Held in Asserted Sale of Narcotics to Officer

Manuel Silva, 28 years of age, said by the police to be a wealthy property owner, was taken into custody last night in Lincoln Park by Detective Lieutenant Littlejohn and members of the narcotic squad.

Silva was booked for violation of the State Poison Act after it was asserted he sold a small quantity of narcotics to a plainclothes officer.

According to the police, they have been attempting to trap Silva for several months. He is said to own a rooming-house at Los Angeles Harbor, several blocks on North Broadway and two expensive automobiles.

Officers declared they watched Silva make four narcotic sales in the park before they arrested him.

Capt. Hepburn is New Staff Chief of Battle Fleet

Capt. Arthur J. Hepburn, the man who, with Admiral Samuel S. Robison, brought radio to its present efficiency in the Navy, yesterday relieved Capt. Leonard R. Sargent on the U.S.S. New Mexico as chief of staff to Vice-Admiral Henry A. Wiley, commanding the battleship divisions of the battle fleet.

Capt. Hepburn comes to the battle fleet after two and one-half years in Turkish waters as chief of staff to Rear-Admiral Mark L. Bristol, United States High Commissioner to Turkey.

The new chief of staff was advanced in grade during the war with Spain for "specially meritorious service," and for his experimental work with submarines during the World War he has been awarded the Distinguished Service Medal by the Navy Department.

Lieut. John R. Redman relieved Lieut. Jennings B. Dow as aide and radio officer on the staff of Admiral Wiley. Lieut. Redman has been on instruction duty at the Naval Academy for the last two years.

PEGGY JOYCE WEDS COUNT

Heroine of Tempestuous Love Affairs in Europe and America Won by Swedish Nobleman

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, June 3.—Peggy Hopkins Joyce, internationally known for the turbulence of her marriages and her heart conquests on two continents, is married again. Her latest catch is a member of Swedish royalty, Count Carl Gustaf Morner, 29 years of age, an athlete, with the proudest of royal ancestry, living in Chicago.

The marriage took place yesterday in Atlantic City, and the pair now are honeymooning "somewhere in the United States."

CAUSES SENSATION

When word of the wedding reached here today it caused a sensation. Friends recalled that a short time after her sensational divorce from Stanley Joyce, multimillionaire Chicago lumberman, that Miss Joyce had stated she would never marry again.

It was also remembered that Miss Joyce has been variously rumored during the past two years to be engaged to nationally known millionaires in America, and leading lights and aristocracy of a half dozen nations of Europe.

But in the list of rumors which coupled her with perhaps a dozen other eligible suitors for her hand, Count Morner of Sweden did not appear.

MANY SUITORS

The Count and Mrs. Morner undoubtedly will make their home in Chicago where the bridegroom is president of a newly organized toothpaste concern with a plant at Highland Park, Ill., known as the Stomatol Company of America, making a European toothpaste by that name.

Since her divorce from Stanley Joyce, Peggy has been reported at intervals to be engaged to Lou Tellegan, stage star; Charley Chaplin, film actor; Winfield Scott, 23, son of a Ft. Worth millionaire; Pierre Merrilon, son of a New York-Paris banker; Henri Letellier, a Parisian, called the world's greatest judge of feminine beauty; Prince Lubermirsky and others.

She also was reported at one time to be the "apple of the eye" of Count Ludwig Salm Von Hoogstraeten, who married Millicent Rogers, daughter of the Standard Oil multimillionaire.

VOTE DETAIL IN STATE PRIMARY

W. H. Crocker High Man on Coolidge Ticket

Defeated Johnson's Best by 49,327 Votes

Record Ballot Cast for Presidential Choice

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SACRAMENTO, June 3.—William H. Crocker, Republican national committeeman for California, who was "high man" on the Republican list of delegates representing President Coolidge at the May 6 Presidential primary in this State, defeated Frank P. Flint, "high man" on the delegation pledged to support Senator Hiram W. Johnson, by 49,327 votes, according to the official tabulation made public today by Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan.

McADOO STRONG

Senator Johnson carried thirty-six counties in the State and President Coolidge twenty-two. The President derived practically all his majority from Los Angeles county, the vote there being 135,706 for the President and 64,263 for Senator Johnson.

William Gibbs McAdoo, seeking the Democratic Presidential nomination, received 111,798 votes as represented by former United States Senator James D. Phelan, his highest delegate. Charles A. Barlow, highest delegate on a list of delegates uninstructed but opposed to McAdoo, received 19,287. McAdoo delegates carried every county in the State.

RECORD PRIMARY

The total vote cast by all parties was 743,827 out of a total registration of 1,499,895. This was the largest vote ever polled in a Presidential primary in California. It exceeded the 1920 vote by 125,946, and represented a percentage of just under 50 per cent of the registered vote cast. The Prohibition candidate received 7336 votes and the Socialist 6296.

Little difference was shown in the number of votes received by any of the delegates in either of the two Republican tickets. Clancy was lowest on the Coolidge ticket with 209,859 votes, and Mrs. Woodbridge was lowest on the Johnson ticket with 260,922.

AUSTRIA'S BUDGET IS TOO SMALL

Increase From 350,000,000 Kronen to 530,000,000 to be Asked of League

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

VIENNA, June 3.—Dr. Zimmerman, the League controller here, is making full preparation for the League Council meeting in Geneva June 10, when the final stage of Austria's reconstruction will be decided.

The most important change sought by the Austrian government is the recognition of a state expenditure of 530,000,000 gold kronen instead of 350,000,000, as fixed under the agreement with the League delegates in the summer of 1922. The Austrian government argues the entire complex of expenses could not be forseen and also that the state's income has been successfully increased higher than its expenditure and the budget balanced favorably, although not within the originally planned figures.

Dr. Zimmerman is willing to grant an expenditure of 500,000,000 kronen, but objects to the additional 30,000,000 and insists on cutting down administration expenses. The fight will be carried out before the League. Dr. Zimmerman gave a long statement to the press, declaring he was eager to shorten the period of control, but his duty obliged him to insist on complete fulfillment of the reconstruction scheme.

"The figures which Finance Minister Kienboeck has submitted require further elucidation," he said, "but I hope to reach an agreement with the government before the League Council meets."

WOMAN RED RAILS ON REICHSTAG FLOOR

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BERLIN, June 3.—The leader of the Communist party, the only woman in Germany who is really feared even by her male compatriots, Ruth Fischer, took the floor of the Reichstag today to speak for nine Communist Deputies of the Reichstag who are in jail. The president of the Reichstag threatened her with immediate explusion from the Reichstag for insulting that august assembly as a "much honored monkey show." She changed this to "much honored Punch and Judy show," whereupon the president beckoned to the guards of the Reichstag. She continued, calmly, "much honored burlesque theater," which the president allowed to pass.

Reed Furniture, Ever the Ally of Her Who Would Bring Summer Indoors

If one's family, for instance, does not take seriously the "early to rise" adage, and lag to breakfast, one might exert her diplomatic prowess and make the breakfast room such an interesting place, there would be no laggards to its sunshine. To say nothing of the day-long satisfaction the home-keeper fiinds in the possession of such a place. A reed breakfast set—extension table, $35, chairs $10.75 each. These are lovely in their natural state, or may be finished in any color you like for a nominal charge.

NEWS OF SOUTHERN COUNTIES

FACES JURY IN TRIAL FOR LIFE

Murder Case Comes Before San Bernardino Court

Accused Takes Little or No Interest

Defense Prepares to Wage Stubborn Fight

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN BERNARDINO, June 3.—Joseph Kretschner, a tall and broad-shouldered Austrian, taciturn and sullen, went on trial today in Superior Judge Olney's court as the slayer of N. N. Lucasen, an aged Oakland resident, whose body was found in a shallow grave in Cajon Pass last August.

As court adjourned late in the day the jury had not been selected. State's witnesses were waiting to tell the jury a weird story, almost fictional in character, of Sheriff Walter A. Shay beginning at the grave and chasing Kretschner for months before his arrest in Salt Lake City early in February.

No case in court history in the county will equal the Kretschner trial for thrills. Kretschner admits that he camped with Lucasen in Cajon Pass on the night of the slaying, but declares that he awoke on the next morning on the outskirts of San Bernardino, twenty miles away, dazed and without memory of what transpired during the night. Lucasen was gone, he says.

The State will introduce testimony showing that Kretschner forged Lucasen's name to a bill of sale in disposing of Lucasen's automobile at Needles a few days before Lucasen's body was found by motor tourists, who were hunting a camp ground along the National Old Trails Highway.

Kretschner also admitted that he left Oakland with Lucasen, an itinerant molder, three weeks before they encamped in the mountains. Dep. Dist.-Atty. Stanley Mussell indicated in his questioning of veniremen that the State's evidence will be circumstantial, but will point strongly at Kretschner as the slayer.

Kretschner appeared to be little interested in the court proceedings during the day, rarely looking up from the floor and but once around the courtroom.

Prisoner Makes Quick Getaway From Officers

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, June 3.—After he had been held for Superior Court on a robbery charge, Charles B. Myers, 23 years of age, a Mexican, strolled out of Justice Brayton's court today and disappeared. He was arrested May 17, last, by Detective Sergeants Kirkpatrick and Smith, with Richard Carroll, 19, and the two were identified, according to the police, by eight victims of hold-ups.

The specific charge on which they were held was the robbery May 14, last, of a local candy store, in which they got $43 after firing several shots to frighten the proprietor. Myers is asserted to have done the shooting, and also to have fired in the direction of two boys who entered while the hold-up was in progress.

They were in charge of Deputy Constables Gibson and Hawkins, who are said to have turned their backs on them momentarily while commitment papers were being made out. Myers took advantage of the opportunity.

ARCHITECTS PLAN NEW CIVIC GROUP

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

MONROVIA, June 3.—Contract for designing the new civic center group of buildings was informally awarded to the firm of Nigg & Williams of Los Angeles by the City Trustees last evening. The group includes the administration building, fire hall and garage and police building. The contract will not be formally consummated until the architects make certain modifications in the arrangement of rooms in the buildings.

The police building and the fire hall and garage will be built at once, the cost to be about $50,000, for which sum bonds were voted last October.

The buildings will be erected on the civic center site on Ivy street, formerly the site of the La Vista Grande Hotel, which burned down some time ago.

ANOTHER TRIAL FOR STORE PROMOTERS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SANTA ANA, June 3. — O. C. Hardabeck and Glenn B. Churchill, accused Los Angeles chain hat store promoters, again were lodged in the County Jail here today after a jury, after deliberating six hours, for the second time failed to reach a verdict of their guilt of obtaining money under false pretense.

Judge R. Y. Williams of the Superior Court set the 24th inst. as the date for a third trial, asked by the prosecution.

The two men were trustees of the Keen Hat Stores Company, with stores at Bakersfield, Fresno, Long Beach and Alhambra.

G. H. Kuebler of Anaheim, complaining witness, swore to a complaint charging the asserted stock sale fraud when a petition in bankruptcy was filed in connection with operations of the Anaheim store.

Blow Safe at Oxnard and Get But a Small Amount of Money

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

OXNARD, June 3.—Authorities throughout the Southland were warned today to be on the lookout for two men who early this morning blew open the safe of the A. J. Dingeman garage here and are believed to have made their escape on a Southern Pacific freight train headed for Los Angeles.

Sheriff Clark of this county and local officials are working on the case this afternoon. The Dingeman garage is the local Ford agency, a beautiful building on Oxnard Boulevard. How the yeggs entered the place or made their exit remains a mystery as every window and door was locked this morning when employees opened the place.

Nitroglycerine was used in blowing the safe, the thugs using soap to retain the high explosive in the crack around the door. The blast was not muffled and fragments of the big safe door were hurled ninety feet, the entire distance of the main salesroom. Considerable damage was done by bits of flying metal.

The noise of the blast was heard several blocks away but no one thought anything of it at the time. The cash drawer in which was a small amount of cash and a number of checks was taken. It was found this morning by workmen in the Southern Pacific yards in a gravel car. The Sheriff believes the men threw it in the car as they escaped on another train. Finger-print experts are here today examining a crow-bar and an automobile axle used by the men in prying the drawers open. It is difficult for them to make any progress as, according to the Sheriff, the men wore gloves and were experts at their work.

FEARED TO FACE COMING OLD AGE

LOS ANGELES MAN DIES BY OWN HAND IN SANTA ANA CEMETERY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SANTA ANA, June 3.—Hounded by the horror that in his old age he would become helpless, that condition apparently being, to his mind at least, hastened by recent financial reverses, A. A. Kraft, 61 years of age, 543 North Arden Boulevard, Los Angeles, sought out a lonely place in the old Santa Ana Cemetery and shot himself, according to an investigation made today by Deputy Coroner A. E. Koepsel at Orange.

In a note addressed to the Orange county Coroner, Kraft said that he had always had the horror that he would be at the mercy of others when he came to be an old man, and that inasmuch as he was facing such a situation he might as well leave now.

In another note, addressed to a local undertaking firm, he asked that he be buried in the local cemeter where his body was found, near the grave of Mrs. A. J. Padgham, his sister-in-law, who died about a year ago. Mrs. Kraft and her four grown children, including twin daughters, arrived here today to attend the private funeral to be held Wednesday.

Mrs. Kraft admitted that her husband had worried some recently concerning finances, but was not willing to say that his act had been directly caused by monetary reverses. She said she was not familiar with his business affairs.

Kraft came to Los Angeles from Spokane, Wash., about four years ago. In Spokane he was engaged in the wholesale leather business.

Claire Head of Garden Grove, who was visiting the cemetery at dusk, found the body. Beside it was a revolver. There was a bullet wound in the head.

QUIZ STUDENTS AS TO BOOZE PARTIES

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

FRESNO, June 3. — Testimony of students as to where they procured liquor was taken today by the grand jury. It is understood that indictments may be voted against those who are accused by the students of furnishing the liquor for parties. The indictments, it is understood, will charge the defendants with violation of the Prohibition Act.

Six boys and two girl students appeared as witnesses before the inquisitors. Three students were suspended at the Fresno High School recently, following disclosures made to Principal Delbert Brenton that they had secured liquor.

SALESMEN UNDER FIRE

Solicitors for Legal Journal With Selling "Protection"

BAKERSFIELD, June 3.— Felony complaints or grand larceny indictments will be asked against J. V. Eddy and E. O. Haney, pro-vic-ing the investigation of a committee of the Southern California Minor Judiciary merits their issuance, according to a statement today by Justice Edward V. Jones, who stated that he had evidence to believe that the men had misrepresented the organization "in soliciting advertising matter which could not possibly be used."

Justice Jones made the further explanation that the two men, as advertising salesmen for the Journal of the Minor Judiciary, may have offered "police protection" at a certain establishment in Taft while ostensibly soliciting advertising for the magazine.

The matter came up during a convention of the Minor Judiciary at Los Angeles during the week-end. Detective J. N. Pyles, of the Pyles Detective Agency, a member of the association, made the charges, according to Justice Jones, that the two salesmen had sought ads which the Journal would not use and that there was evidence that they had solicited money for police protection.

Immediately after it was learned of the practice of the men in Taft, their badges and credentials were taken away from them, said Justice Jones.

The committee investigating the actions of Eddy and Haney is composed of the following, appointed by Justice Jones: Judge McIvor of Redlands, Justice D. D. Heagerty of Maricopa, Justice Jones of San Bernardino, Constable Cosby of San Diego, Bert Tibbets of the Pyles Detective Agency, Deputy Sheriff Phil Fickert of Bakersfield, Justice Jones of this city and Constable William Crossen of Bakersfield.

WELL-KNOWN WOMAN DIES IN THE EAST

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, June 3.—Mrs. George C. Thomas, widow of the late George C. Thomas, multimillionaire of Philadelphia, died at her home, 301 South Twenty-first street, Philadelphia, at an early hour this morning, according to word received by friends in this city. Mrs. Thomas, who was 80 years of age, was well known in Los Angeles and Pasadena where she had spent her winters for years.

For years Mrs. Thomas resided at the Hotel Green in Pasadena and last year was a guest of the Beverly Hills Hotel of Los Angeles. She was a philanthropist and an active worker in the Episcopalian Church. Together with her husband she established a church in Philadelphia, it is said.

Mr. Thomas up to the time of his death was a prominent banker and for years was associated with J. Pierpont Morgan.

Mrs. Thomas is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Walter Schuyler Volkmer, formerly of Pasadena and now residing in Philadelphia, and one son, Leonard V. Thomas of New York City. Funeral services will be conducted next Thursday.

APPOINTMENT ENDS POSTOFFICE FIGHT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PORTERVILLE, June 3.—Nomination of Edward F. Halbert as postmaster at Porterville was sent to the Senate this afternoon for confirmation, according to telegrams received by local business men from Washington. Mr. Halbert has not yet been officially notified.

This ends a long controversy between two factions of the Republican party. Halbert, a Johnson man, was indorsed by the Tulare County Republican Central Committee and recommended by Congressman Barbour. Friends of Edgar W. Lloyd, a Coolidge man, sent protests to Washington which delayed the appointment. Karl Bergloff, third man, remained quiet. George C. Murphy, whose term expired February 11, has continued on the job. During the "war" several postal inspectors visited Porterville.

SEAL BEACH, June 3.—Elaborate preparations are being made here to entertain the grunion hunters on Thursday night of this week. According to schedule of those who have made a study of grunion runs they will begin coming in at about 10:30 that night.

A novel program has been prepared for entertainment of the grunion hunters earlier in the evening, one of the big features being the marriage of Miss Sealette Beach to Mr. L. O. N. B. Beach. Mr. Huntington Beach will be the best man and the bride will be attended by Miss Pamadena, Miss Santa Monica, Miss Ocean Park, Miss Venice, Miss Whittier, Miss Santa Ana, Miss Fullerton, Miss Anaheim and others will be among the bridesmaids. Miss Redondo Beach is to be the ring bearer.

The wedding party will leave the Chamber of Commerce in Long Beach at 7:15, headed by Chief of Police Yancy of that city and Sheriff Sam Jernigan of Orange county. At the Seal Beach city limits they will be met by members of the City Council and police, who will escort them to the raised platform on the ocean front where the ceremony will be performed by Judge G. R. Morrison.

Free dancing on the board walk, a big bonfire and community singing will follow the ceremony.

YOUNG ORATOR WINS CONTEST

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

ONTARIO, June 3.—Thomas Drake, clever young orator, who recently distinguished himself and Chaffey High School in the preliminaries of the National Oratorical Contest, was today proclaimed winner of the eleventh annual Richardson Oratorical Contest, which was staged at Chaffey Auditorium. Young Drake's subject was "A Successful Life."

Other contestants and their subjects were Ralph Arnold, "The Right of Philippine Independence;" Boris Ulmar, "The Importance and Future of Self-Government;" William Fenwick, "A Plea For the Soldier Bonus," and John King, "Our Constant Inspiration."

The Richardson contest was founded by the late N. R. Richardson, former commander of Ontario Post, Grand Army of the Republic, to stimulate patriotism among high school pupils. The winner is entitled to have his name engraved on a handsome sterling shield donated for the purpose by the late Mr. Richardson.

Ontario Post, G.A.R., the Ontario Woman's Relief Corps and other patriotic organizations and members of the late Mr. Richardson's family were special guests at the oratorical event.

PAY MORE MONEY TO STOP FLOODS

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

SAN BERNARDINO, June 3.—Increase in the annual appropriation of from $3000 to $5000 for the Tri-Counties Reforestation Committee budget probably will be voted by the Board of Supervisors this week.

A request for greater appropriations for flood control and to provide a fire patrol on the watersheds feeding the basin used for artesian water supply in San Bernardino, Riverside and Orange counties, has been forwarded to boards of supervisors of the three counties. The committee has also inaugurated a water conservation program to prevent the run-off of water in the Santa Ana River and its tributaries.

RESUME CONSTRUCTION

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

OWENSMOUTH, June 3.—Construction activities have been resumed on the American Legion clubhouse, after a delay of several weeks. This was occasioned by the fact that the building plans in some minor particulars did not meet the requirements of the Los Angeles building ordinance. Work will now be rushed, to the end that that building may be used at the earliest possible date.

RECEIVE BIDS FOR BIG IMPROVEMENT

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

SAN BERNARDINO, June 3.—Bids for the construction of a bridge across the Big Bear Valley Dam and two stretches of mountain highway included in the Deep Creek cut-off project and involving the expenditure of approximately $135,000, have been received by District Engineer C. H. Sweetser of the United States Bureau of Public Roads.

Although the contract for the construction of the projects has not been awarded, C. L. Robinson of Sherman was announced as the low bidder for the highway and Frank Bryant of San Francisco on the bridge. Robinson's bid of $102,477 is $11,000 below the engineer's estimate for the building of the roads, each approximately one mile in length, but penetrating virgin and rocky country.

The program calls for the construction of a road from Doerlick in the Fredalba district to the Deep Creek cut-off on the Crest Road, a mile to the east, and another highway leading from the dam in Big Bear Valley to the western teminus of the Bear Valley Boulevard, now being paved by the county at a cost of $175,000. When completed the route will include a scenic road around the lake.

The bridge across the Bear Valley Dam will be one of the most picturesque structures in Southern California, crossing the dam from the north. The road will be 100 feet above the canyon on the west and along the water's level on the east. It will cost $31,013.

The Deep Creek cut-off, an eleven-mile road between a point on the Crest Road near Fredalba at Big Bear Valley, traverses the south side of the crest of the San Bernardino Mountains, winding in and out of scenic canyons heretofore inaccessible to the motorist. In all, the Deep Creek project will have cost the county, State and Federal road bureaus more than $400,000—one of the largest mountain-road appropriations in the State's history.

The Deep Creek cut-off road was constructed last year and is one of the most popular roads for tourists and vacationists in the mountains.

DR. WAYTE TO HEAD HOSPITAL STAFF

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN BERNARDINO, June 3.—Appointment of Dr. Edwin Wayte, assistant superintendent and medical director of the Southern California State Hospital at Patton, as superintendent of the Norwalk State Hospital, was announced today. Dr. Wayte's appointment is effective July 1. He succeeds Dr. C. F. Applegate, who resigned after twenty-five years' service with State institutions.

Dr. Wayte has been on the staff at Patton for fifteen years. Coming to the institution from Exeter, where he was engaged in private practice, he was formerly an alienist at the Minnesota State Hospital, and is one of the best-known authorities on mental diseases in California, being a member of a number of medical societies.

Appointment of his successor has not been announced, although Dr. J. A. Reilly is in Sacramento conferring with the State director of public institutions.

One was released before Judge Edward Miller yesterday and the other, giving his name as Manuel Torres, was placed under a bond of $1500 and will be given a hearing in Huntington Park on a larceny charge.

Delegates in Favor of Big Dam Project

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

KERMAN, June 3.—Two hundred delegates representing twenty chambers of commerce and many irrigation district boards in Fresno, Tulare and Kings county meeting here last night strongly indicated approval of the contemplated $15,000,000 Pine Flat irrigation project to be built at Piedra, Cal., on the Kings River.

B. T. White of Kerman estimated that the benefits to be derived from the reclamation of underground water in a dry season such as the present year would total $18,000,000, more than $3,000,000 in excess of the dam's cost.

George Swendsen, chief of the Pine Flat engineering board, gave data collected from twenty-eight years' study of the Kings River in which he stated the contemplated reservoir would store 600,000 acre feet and power developed by the dam would reclaim an additional 300,000 acre feet of underground water

JUDGE RULES IN TAX CASE

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

ANAHEIM, June 3.—Judge Charles Kuchel handed down his decision in the occupational tax test case brought by the Anaheim Realty Board questioning the legality of the city levying a city tax on all business establishments, yesterday morning. The court ruled in favor of the city and the defendant was fined $10.

The question of carrying the case to the higher courts will be decided by the realty board at once, but notice of appeal by Attorney Leonard Evans, representing the board, has already been served, and ten days time is allowed in which to file it. The case has been the point of keen interest throughout this section, since its outcome, if favorable to the board, will probably have the effect of the same action being taken by boards in incorporated cities throughout the State.

The realty board maintained that the city tax was a duplication of the State tax that was already being paid and that the city had no legal right to levy such an assessment.

One Year to Live!

by John Hunter

SYNOPOSIS

Tom Kendrick, a young American of whom she has dreamed since she met him in the days of her poverty, has returned to Paris and sought out Elise Duchanier. When he knew her she was maid to Lolette, the celebrated dancer. Now, because Lolette's jealousy has miscarried, Elise is La Phalene, whose fame as a dancer outshines that of her former mistress.

Dr. Lapierre, who loves Elise, has warned her she has one year to live. Elise, sole support of an invalid sister, has sought security in the number of her suitors, playing one against the other. They include Count Mordac and her manager, Maurice Brunel. Also Ahmed, Arab Prince, and Donatelli, who because of her fought a duel of dice and poison. Ahmed lost. Kendrick found Elise at the dueling ground, whither she had gone in a vain effort to stop the strange contest. Elise tells Brunel she must rest and break her contract with him. She goes south.

Chapter LI

BOUND SOUTH

If Elise, in fleeing from Paris, imagined she was escaping her fate, she made a mistake. She had planned to drop out of the life had created for herself as La Phalene and live one gloriously exciting period at Monaco before death claimed her. But fate was too strong for her.

Mordac's statement to Brunel that he went south was an unfortunate one. In this matter of Elise Duchanier he and Brunel had been rivals, even enemies, and it was not like a man of Brunel's caliber to stand aside at the last and see his foe win.

The more Brunel thought about it the more he determined, whatever it cost him, to go south. After all, it was really a convenient time. The show at the Internationale finished after two more performances. The show at the Joyeuse was going with a bang, and he calculated that even the absence of La Phalene would not kill it immediately. He took Lolette out to dinner in order to break the news to her. They dined in a private room in a quiet restaurant, for Brunel did not wish the probable scene to be a public one.

Lolette herself introduced the subject of La Phalene.

"I understand that woman is upset because Ahmed and Felice quarreled about her. So she shows no more at the Joyeuse?"

"Not for the moment. Probably not at all, as I shall take the show off when my new production for the Internationale is ready."

"I see." Lolette was watching him in that heavy-lidded way of hers, while the cigarette smoke wreathed up before her face from between her fingers. "There is a good part for me in that new show?"

"Fine!" Brunel developed a forced enthusiasm. "Better than the last one."

"When does the show start?"

"I don't know. It is indefinite. There is some difficulty about the costumes, and little things like that. I shall probably go to the Riviera for a little while."

Lolette smiled. "And La Phalene—she goes to the Riviera, too, eh?"

Brunel contrived to look most innocent. "She may. She tells me nothing, except that she wants a rest."

Lolette laughed contemptuously. "Tell that to your grandmother, my friend. Do you think I don't know? The great entrepreneur and his little protege wintering together in the sunshine. Oh, la! la! And she so sweet and virtuous!"

"Anyhow—we do not sit here to discuss La Phalene. I should like to talk to you about yourself, cherie."

Lolette blew three distinct smoke rings toward the ceiling.

"Charming!" she said. "I thought I was not longer sufficiently interesting to be discussed. Well—what is it?"

"The show at the Joyeuse runs till the new show at the Internationale starts."

He fiddled with his fingers and found his tongue less facile than usual. "La Phalene is unable to dance. You are free, and——"

Lolette waited to hear no more. She stood up and, with one sweep of her hand, knocked the champagne bucket off the table, ice, bottle and all.

"Cochon! You think that I should understudy that girl! Suggest it to Lolette——"

At that moment the waiter came into the room to see who was being killed. Lolette ordered him out. The order was comprehensive and annihilating.

Brunel sat still. He had failed. He had seen Lolette like this before. She would listen to no urging, no reason. He had now to endure the storm and make for shelter at the first opportunity.

Lolette continued. It was startlingly orginal in is phraseology and dreadfully vugar. A liqueur glass missed Brunel's ear by millimeters. She quieted suddenly, and in her quietness was more menace that in her blazing wrath.

"I am finished," she said. "Finished! You have insulted me; I could kill you for it. You hear that, Brunel? I have cared for you once. Now it is ended."

He had expected either agreement or rage, but not this cold decision. He stood up. "It was a business proposition," he said. "I find myself in a difficulty. It seemed the way out. I thought you would willingly do it for me."

She leaned across the table, stabbing at her white bosom with her finger. "I am no makeshift. You know what that woman has done to me! I admit it! I am not vain, like some of them. Where Lolette stood, she stands—she who was my dresser. You ask me to understudy her!"

"Understudy is the wrong word, Lolette. I ask you to dance in her place. You have done it before for others."

"Others! Yes. I would do it now—if any of the others had failed you. But not her—By God! And that you should ask me!"

In the little silence which followed this outburst he said: "So there is an end to it. The Joyeuse will have to find another dancer. I will telegraph for Benita. And you will rest until the Internationale reopens."

"The Internationale will reopen without me, Brunel." She spoke very evenly. "I can sign a contract now to dance at the Piccadilly Theater in London. I shall sign it. When you come back you will find me gone."

"But—Lolette——"

She brushed his protest aside. "I tell you I am finished." She walked across the room and stabbed the bell-push.

When the waiter returned with her cloak she snatched it from him and huddled it about her shoulders.

"Good night, Brunel," she said.

He did not answer. She went out, with the waiter bowing after her as though she had been a queen.

Brunel seated himself at the table, his fists clenched before him. Yet still he was determined to go south after La Phalene. The madness was on him.

TORRENTIAL RAINS SWEEP GULF COAST

UPLANDS OF MEXICO ALSO DELUGED AND MANY RAIL WASHOUTS

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MEXICO CITY, June 3.—Heavy winds accompanied by torrential rains have been sweeping the gulf coast and uplands of Mexico since Saturday. There have been many washouts on the lines of the National Railways, which are in danger of having to suspend traffic. Scores of bridges have been swept away, and numerous stations badly damaged. Much destruction to barns, houses, cattle and other ranch property is reported. The station at Bajan, on the National Railways, was completely destroyed by a hurricane, and the goods in the shed swept away by floods. A torrential rain fell here this morning, which is rare, as rain in the morning is most unusual.

FRASER RIVER FLOOD REPORTED RECEDING

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

VANCCUVER (B. C.) June 3.—Floods in the Fraser River are abating but the water did not recide before several barns found their way down the stream past New Westminster toward the mouth of the river. One large barn about seventy-feet long and fifty feet wide, floated nearly fifty miles and arrived at New Westminster bridge today, where it was captured and taken in tow by a tug. Huge logs extended under the barn and made a huge barge to the entire structure. The cattle had been removed from the barn but the hay and feed was still in the mangers and mows.

MAY WEATHER FAVORS FARMS

Windstorm Only Damaging Factor, Says Réport

Fruit and Grain Suffer But Slightly, Check-up Shows

Cattle and Sheep Hold Good Condition on Range

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SACRAMENTO, June 3.—Aside from the damaging windstorm that occurred in the northern half of the State on May 27, 28 and 29 last, weather conditions during the last fortnight generally were favorable to all lines of agriculture, says the semimonthly report of E. E. Kauffman, Federal agricultural statistician, made public today.

The condition of pastures, however, has shown no improvement, the report states, but in Southern California the supply of range feed is better than it is north of the Tehachapi. Stockmen have been successful thus far in keeping their cattle and sheep in fairly good condition, considering the continued drought.

Last week's hot north wind, according to the report, did some damage to the grain in Northern California.

Regarding the plum, cherry and other tree fruit, which was reported last week to have been seriously damaged, the report says:

"In Placer county where about 27 per cent of the State's plum crop is normally produced, it is estimated that from 10 to 20 per cent of the plums were blown from the trees. It is reported that pears suffered to the extent of about 10 per cent in the Sacramento River district. There also was some loss to pears in other districts in Northern California, but when considering the State as a whole the damage to the pear crop was small. While a good part of the cherry crop already has been shipped, some of the later varieties, especially the Royal Anne, were injured to some extent by being bruised as a result of the wind. The damage in per cent of the total crop cannot be ascertained, however, it will not be great."

El Congreso Clausura sus Sesiones el Sábado

WASHINGTON, Junio 3.—El actual Congreso clausurará sus sesiones a las siete de la noche del próximo sábado, habiéndose dejado en el tintero toda la legislación radical sobre auxilio a los agricultores. La moción de clausura aprobada por la Cámara fue votada esta tarde por el Senado, habiéndose aprobado por 53 votos contra 36 la suspensión de las sesiones hasta el próximo mes de Diciembre.

Las fuerzas de La Follette recibieron su derrota con la sonrisa en los labios. La moción del Senador de Wisconsin de que se aplazara hasta Julio 7 la clausura fue desechada por la votación referida.

En tal virtud, los radicales tienen ya plataforma para su campaña, la que ya puede considerarse iniciada en el oeste central. Para llenarles la copa de la felicidad a los que están tratando de pescar los votos de los agricultores, la Cámara de Diputados rechazó hoy el proyecto de ley McNary-Haugen por votación de 221 por 154.

Esa era la medida que el bloque agricultor había pedido con cuanta fuerza pudo reunir en sus vacilantes filas.

"Dadnos esto o nada", dijeron hace dos semanas. La respuesta será probablemente "nada"; aunque en el Senado dijo hoy el Senador Brookhart que trabajaría en favor del proyecto de ley Norris, por el que trata de crearse una compañía con $100,000,000 para comprar y vender productos agrícolas. El Senador Norris dijo que consideraba sin remedio la situación.

El Canciller Austriaco Se Agrava por Momentos

VIENA, Junio 3.—Llegan noticias de que el Canciller Seipel sigue más grave. Ha estado empeorando continuamente su condición en las últimas cuantas horas. Complicaciones que proceden de su antigua enfermedad han venido minando sus fuerzas a tal grado, que se considera de lo más improbable su alivio.

El corresponsal de Budapest telefonó que la policía húngara cree que la tentativa de asesinato contra el Canciller Seipel forma parte de un gran complot anarquista para matar a varios líderes políticos europeos. Declara la policía que la banda que está organizando los atentados se compone de anarquistas de las regiones hilanderas de Austria.

Según manifiesta la policía, dos agentes de la tal banda están ya de camino rumbo a Francia, donde intentaran matar al señor Poincaré y al Presidente Millerand. Dícese que el Canciller Marx, de Alemania, figura también en la lista de los sentenciados al asesinato. La policía de Budapest ha advertido ya por telégrafo a las policías de todas las capitales europeas que estén sobre aviso, y se guiden de los miembros de la repetida banda.

Actos Vandálicos de un Velador de Los Inválidos

PARIS, Junio 3.—Hoy fue arrestado un velador empleado en el Palacio de Los Inválidos, pues se le acusa de haber cortado pedacitos de las banderas de batalla de Napoleón el Grande, que cubren la tumba del Emperador, y haberlos vendido como recuerdos a los turistas americanos, a razón de $10 el pedacito. Calcúlase que el velador ha consumido de tan sacrílega manera dos banderas de batalla, cortando pedacitos cuadrados de la descolorida tela manchada de sangre y desgarrada por la metralla, para ponerlos en manos de cualquier turista que aceptaba pagar el precio de venta de la reliquia.

No se ha Fijado la Responsabilidad del Incendio

Después de que terminó en la encuesta del Forense el interrogatorio de unos veinte testigos del holocausto que la noche del sábado destruyó la Hope Development School, de Playa del Rey, consumiendo igualmente las vidas de veintitrés de las educandas, el Fiscal Keyes ordenó ayer la convención de una sesión especial del gran jurado del condado, para que se dicte una indagación de las condiciones que guardan todas las instituciones de servicio social del condado de Los Angeles.

El gran jurado va a reunirse hoy en la mañana, y desde anoche expidió citatorios a quince directores de asilos o casas para niños y niñas subnormales. Y el cuerpo investigador mencionado, al que prestarán su concurso el Fiscal, el Subjefe de Asuntos Penales Fitts, y el Teniente Fiscal Richardson, ha anunciado su decisión de "proveer al remedio de las malas condiciones que existan en todas las demás instituciones similares de este distrito."

Parece que Triunfarán los Bonos Escolares

Anoche declararon los miembros de la Junta de Educación que, según noticias de la votación en las 454 mesas electorales, donde se jugaba ayer la suerte de los bonos escolares por valor de $24,640,000, parece que se aprobará la expedición de los citados bonos, a pesar de que no ha sido grande el número de los votantes. Por el carácter y la actitud de éstos, ha inferido la junta la conclusión que dejamos apuntada.

Aunque fue bien escasa la votación durante el día, hubo afluencia de votantes a eso de las seis de la tarde. Las mesas quedaron abiertas hasta las 8 p.m., a fin de que tuvieran oportunidad de votar los obreros.

DEPORTES

Baseball

Bill Prough le da a uno la impresión de que necesita urgentemente una silla mecedora, cuando regresa al banco desde la primera base, después de haber sido arrojado; pero Bill es buen tirador, y eso es justamente lo que ayer demostró. Prough, que es un poquitillo viejo para merecer el nombre de "animoso joven atleta", con que Eddie Frayne lo designa, derrotó a los Angeles por 2 a 0, haciendo que sacaran la primera sangre de la serie los guerreros de Sacramento, a quienes manda el Coronel Pick.

Autódromo

Habiendo recibido ayer tarde el primer pago a cuenta de la herencia que le dejó su tío hace unos cuantos meses, Jack Petticord, campeón nacional canadiense, invirtió inmediatamente parte de su dinero en la compra de un coche Miller de 183 pulgadas, que fue antes propiedad de "Hollywood Bill" White.

ALIEN LAW TO BE ENFORCED

War Declared on Smuggling of Immigrants

Special Appropriation for Border Fighting

Mexico Offers Hardest Task to Federal Men

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, June 3.—An intensive campaign to combat the bootlegging of aliens, lately grown into a highly organized and lucrative business, is soon to be undertaken by the immigration service. With a special appropriation of $1,200,000 provided for the purpose, hundreds of new patrol stations are to be opened along the Canadian and Mexican borders, while the immigration forces in those districts are to be greatly increased. At the same time, it is probable that the State Department will enter into treaty negotiations with Canada, Cuba and Mexico with a view to making life more difficult for immigrant smugglers.

Although the smuggling of orientals into the United States has always been carried on with more or less energy, it was not until the quota limit act went into effect that the smuggling of all nationalities began on a large scale. Since then, it is estimated, about 200,000 aliens have been bootlegged each year.

CANADA NOT DIFFICULT

The Canadian border, while requiring vigilant watching, presents the fewest difficulties. This is partly because Canada has practically the same immigration restrictions as the United States, and partly because Canada offers greater inducements to immigrants than does this country. The smuggling of aliens from Cuba to Florida, moreover, has been curtailed to some extent by the alertness of the Coast Guard Service and the Florida immigration police. But the Mexican border, with its long stretch of dense wilderness offering excellent cover for smuggling activities, is an extremely serious problem. Here the bootlegging of aliens has become an extensive industry.

There is now, and has been for years, the immigration service says, a band of criminals on this border, known as "coyotes," who live by preying upon persons wishing to secure an easy entrance into the United States. The "coyote" is extremely dangerous to deal with. He goes "armed to the teeth" and does not hesitate to fire upon officers at sight. As he works in a district where there are thousands of miles of winding, twisting river front, traversing for the most part a lonely, almost uninhabited country covered with dense brush, the advantages are all on his side.

HIGHER TYPE APPEARS

In addition to the "coyote" band, however, a higher type of criminal has recently appeared on the Mexican border, attracted evidently by the large financial rewards in the immigrant smuggling game. Under the skillful direction of this keener brain, there has grown up a far-reaching organization that "takes the alien from his home in Europe; secures a passport for him (a fraudulent one, if necessary;) purchases his steamship passage to Mexico; places him on a ship; arranges for his entry into Mexico at Vera Cruz or Tampico; conducts him north to the Rio Grande, and delivers him into the United States —all for a fixed price.

TWO TYPES OF VICTIMS

The aliens falling into the clutches of these smugglers are of two types—those who are inadmissible to this country for various reasons, and those who are deceived into believing themselves inadmissible. The former type includes not only the diseased and feeble-minded, but anarchists and criminals who have been unable to obtain visas from American consuls to enable them to secure steamship passage. The latter are simply the ignorant, who are imposed upon by dishonest agents in Europe receiving a commission for the sale of steamship tickets to Mexico.

Upon their arrival in Mexico, the deluded aliens at once become inadmissible to the United States over the land boundary, under a special proviso of the immigration law, whereas if they had applied in a regular manner at a seaport they would probably have had no difficulty. The fees extorted from immigrants of both types have in some cases been as high as $1500.

WATCHING CHINESE

In the old days before the war when Chinese smuggling was the chief nuisance along the border, the government forces were almost, if not wholly, equal to the situation. There were river guards to catch the aliens and smugglers in the act of illegal entry; mounted men to pursue them if they succeeded in stealing over the border; men to open and inspect freight cars just before they left the border towns, and men to inspect the passenger trains.

With this complicated network of defenses, very few contraband Chinese—as compared with the large numbers of European aliens —succeeded in eluding capture. Through its efficiency, the bootlegging of orientals was cut to an irreducible minimum. But the same force has not been equal to the task of checking the rapid rise of a new immigrant smuggling boom.

Rockefeller Aid Allows Repairs for Cathedral

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, June 3.—Work of rebuilding the war-ruined Rheims Cathedral has started as a result of John D. Rockefeller, Jr.'s, gift of $1,000,000 for repairs to the martyred church. Scaffolds are being built hurriedly around the building while scores of workmen are busy with stones and mortar.

"Rheims once more is saved by Americans," declared an official today.

A committee slowly and laboriously is collecting funds to rebuild the cathedral, but with small results, as all money is needed to build homes in the devastated area. News of Mr. Rockefeller's gift started the committee upon the work, delayed six years.

Napoleon War Flags Clipped for Souvenirs

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, June 3.—A watchman employed in the Invalides today was arrested, charged with clipping bits off of Napoleon's battle flags draped over the Emperor's tomb and selling them as souvenirs to American tourists at $10 apiece. It is estimated that the watchman entirely disposed of two battle flags, cutting off a tiny square of the faded, bloodstained, shell-tattered bunting every time a tourist was willing to pay a sufficient price.

ART SALE FATTENS REPARATION COFFERS

GERMAN COLLECTION NETS $700,000 AT PUBLIC AUCTION IN PARIS

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, June 3. — Fourteen million francs (about $700,000) were added to the coffers of the Reparations Commission today by the sale at auction of extremely valuable paintings of old masters, most of which were bought by representatives of American and Dutch art lovers. The sale comprised eighty-seven paintings belonging to Herr Ridder, late German art collector, who sent his collection to Paris to be sold at auction just before the war.

The war came and the pictures were seized and sequestered by the French authorities. The highest price paid at today's sale was $105,000 for Franz Hals's "Portrait of a Young Lady." Another sale brought $46,000.

A Van Dyke portrait of a man brought in $4300 and a Rubens cost $13,750.

CHANGE OF VENUE FOR COURT OFFICIAL

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CASA GRANDE (Ariz.) June 3. A change of venue to Maricopa precinct, Pinal county, has been granted Grover M. Allen, bailiff in the court of Judge Stephen H. Abbey of Pinal county. Allen has been charged with carrying a concealed weapon. Judge Abbey, arrested on a similar charge, was released in Phoenix by Judge Struckmeyer, but the Phoenix jurist then decided that a bailiff was entitled to bear arms only while on duty, with assumption that this was only during the time that court might be in session.

TROTZKY SEEN AS PARTY JINX

Moscow Papers Say He Heads Communists' Foes

War Lord Astounds Russia by Reiterating Stand

Declares Complete Collapse of Movement Needed

BY DONALD DAY
[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

RIGA, June 3.—The thirteenth congress of the Communist party is headed by Leon Trotzky, according to the Moscow papers, which report that M. Trotzky still leads the opposition in the central committee of the Communist party. According to M. Trotzky, the Communist party has developed into a bureaucracy, and nothing short of a collapse of the Communist movement could dislodge the inefficient, patient officials who are nullifying the government's attempt to run the nationalized industries.

The Russian war lord astounded the conference by his unrepentance and by his previous stand, which resulted in his vacation, telling the conference that the Communist party must not retain important officials solely because they are known Communists, but must replace them with more efficient members of the party who have joined the Communist movement since the revolution.

"Today we have received word that China has recognized Russia," declared M. Trotzky. "China is the fourteenth country with whom we have negotiated. Thirteen nation have recognized us, but no loans are forthcoming. Russia must have private capital and also foreign loans. The only way to obtain private capital and foreign loans is efficiency, which is lacking within the Communist party."

The differences within the Communist party are emphasized by the fact that correspondents are not permitted to attend the meetings for the first time. The followers of Russian events in America will be surprised to learn that there are only two American newspaper men in Moscow, the other four men representing American syndicates of newspapers in English and German with pronounced soviet sympathies, by which they are enabled closely to co-operate with the Communist censorship.

DEMOCRATS DELAY CONVENTION ACTION

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Democratic party leaders who assembled here today to allocate patronage for the national convention decided to postpone definite action until the 16th inst. when they will reassemble in New York. Two appointments tentatively were agreed on, those of J. J. Hughes of Iowa, to be sergeant-at-arms, and J. J. Sinnott, former door-keeper of the House of Representatives, to be chief door-keeper.

TOKIO PAPERS LESS BITTER

Main Dailies Regard Exclusion in More Temperate Light; Hope for Change in American View

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TOKIO, June 3.—Comment on the Japanese protest against the United States immigration exclusion law in three of the main Tokio dailies this morning was temperate, the principal contention of the editors being that Japan must not cease "striving to obtain justice."

The Yorodzu, which usually is fire-eating in reviewing the exclusion case, questions the power of public opinion to influence legislation in America. It concludes:

"It is now up to the Japanese people to assert what they believe to be fair and just until they persuade their neighbors to repent."

SEES OPINION AFFECTED

The Asahi criticizes the form of the protest technically but believes that it will be adequate to affect American opinion. It says:

"One thing we would especially emphasize. Japan does not mean to mince matters through discussing the mere verbiage of a treaty but to base the claim to its rights on the spirit underlying the treaty. We wonder if America will reply to the protest in the same spirit."

The Jiji believes the protest exactly voices Japanese sentiments, deeming the references to the Russian Jews and the American desire to avoid discrimination particularly happy arguments.

POINTS OUT COURSE

"The wisest thing Japan can do under the circumstances is to endeavor to build up morally, intellectually and materially, waiting the time when Congress will begin to see the true light and right a wrong done," the paper says.

There have been some unverified reports that Americans have been assaulted. A representative of a Chicago manufacturer stated yesterday that employees of firms whom he had visited for years, forming strong friendships, now refused to speak to him. The people's boycott of American goods is well under way, especially among students.

STRANGE YACHT AT SHEEPSHEAD

Chinese Junk Reaches East Coast on World Trip

Bears Thrilling Tales of Pirates and Pythons

Dutch Skipper Has Oriental Wife and Son Along

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, June 3.—With tales of pirates and sea pythons, and lacking of the original crew one called a head hunter from Borene who turned back in fear of the God Tai Toa Fat, the Chinese junk Amoy bobbed up and down on Sheepshead Bay today.

The Amoy left Shanghai May 17, 1923, on its way around the world. It was probably the strangest ship with the strangest crew, Chinese or otherwise, that ever dropped anchor hereabouts.

BOY AMUSES VISITORS

On shore, testing his sea legs, was George Waard, skipper. On board the sixty-eight-foot, three-masted, fourteen-ton craft was his Chinese wife, Choyee Waard, whom he married nineteen years ago in Shanghai. And speaking excellent English, propelling his sampan skiff for the amusement of visitors from the Sheepshead Bay Yacht Club, was their 12-year-old son Bob.

On board also was Alfred Nilson, another soldier of fortune and writer of sea stories picked up at San Francisco when the Amoy arrived there on its way down the Coast to sail here via the Panama Canal. A dusky youth from Panama completed the crew.

SKIPPER A CANADIAN

George Waard, who with the assistance of his wife, steered the first Chinese junk through the Atlantic to its anchorage, is a Canadian citizen of Dutch birth. Twenty years ago he went to China where he entered the customs service of that country and fought Chinese smugglers and pirates.

Four years ago he began building the Amoy, which is of camphor wood and Chinese fir. There is not an iron nail or bolt in the whole craft, it being held together by bamboo pins. The Amoy took eighty-seven days from China to Vancouver.

LIGHT "GHOSTS" GONE, MACHINE OPERATES

RULING CONTRIVANCE IS PUT IN ORDER AFTER SEVEN YEARS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BALTIMORE, June 3. — Rowland's ruling machine, which produces the ruled gratings used for research into the fundamental nature of light, is in operation again at Johns Hopkins University, after baffling for seven years every scientist and mechanician who tried to operate it, it was learned today.

Dr. Robert W. Wood, professor of experimental physics at the university, it was announced, finally has remedied the two main troubles which kept the instrument useless. These were the need of a constant temperature, the heat of a human body in the same room being sufficient to impair its accuracy and the occurrence of a phenomenon known as "lyman ghosts"—spurious lines in the spectrum.

The "ghosts," it was found, were due to errors of a millionth of an inch between the lines on the gratings, caused by varying strains in the driving mechanism of the ruling machine. By a slight change in this mechanism and the use of rubber bands instead of a leather belt, Dr. Woods produced an even tension which dispelled the "ghosts." He also denial a thermostat of great delicacy.

The machine rules 30,000 lines to the inch, cut with a diamond point on a metal surface. The grating formed refracts light more perfectly than the finest prism.

ARMS SALE TO CHINA RAISES COMPLICATION

SOUTH PROTESTS RESALE TO NORTH; AMERICAN BAN INVOLVED

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SHANGHAI, June 3. — A serious case, involving America's embargo on shipments of munitions to China, has developed in Canton, according to a communique issued by the Canton government, protesting against the resale by American interests of arsenal machinery imported by the Canton government from America more than two years ago. The Sun Yat Sen government bought the machinery for $1,600,000 gold, but has been able to raise only $1,200,000 gold of the purchase price and the machinery has been stored in Canton awaiting the balance of the $400,000 on the deal.

According to the protest, the American interests now have resold the machinery to the northern government, acting through Japanese intermediaries and a Japanese ship, manned by a Filipino crew, now is in Canton for the purpose of transporting the material to the north.

The machinery was shipped secretly from an American Atlantic port more than two years ago, destined for Europe, but was diverted to China when at sea. Now that America has an arms embargo respecting China, the case is attracting considerable attention here.

SCHOOL GIRLS SHY OF MARRIED LIFE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SANTA ANA, June 3.—Of 2646 Orange county high school girls who answered questionnaires designed to bring out the future careers they desire, only sixty-eight favored married life, while twenty-one wanted to be beauty parlor experts and 981 sought to be school-teachers.

This was revealed today by the agricultural education committee of the County Farm Bureau, which took the census to learn how many of the maidens would stay on the farm. Eleven seek farm life.

Four hundred and five of the girls would be stenographers, approximately as many more bookkeepers and eight strive toward religious work.

The rest of the group either were undecided or preferred other occupations or professions.

RECORD FRUIT CROP FORECAST

Market Value of American Yield Hits High Point

Europeans Heavy Consumers of All Varieties

Apples and Oranges Contest for Popularity

Forecasts suggesting that the 1924 fruit crop of the United States will be the biggest ever are significant, in the opinion of fruit men, of the continuation of the huge exports from this country to the foreign consumers, who have learned to demand American fruits in the past few years. The value of the United States fruit exports in the last five years has aggregated more than $400,000,000, the Trade Record of the National City Bank of New York says, and in the fiscal year of 1924, which ends in June, the exports will approximate $100,000,000.

Official figures for the nine months ending with March, the latest available, show fruit exports of $70,500,000 value, and for the closing month of the period about $9,000,000, suggesting that the total value for the full year will aggregate about $100,000,000, against $30,000,000 in the opening year of the war.

The adoption of modern processes for the preservation of fruits in their passage from the farm to the consumer, says the Trade Record, the refrigerated car, the cold-storage warehouse, and the refrigerated ship, has enormously increased the quality and marketing value of the fruit crop of this, the biggest fruit-producing country of the world. Fruit growing has been transformed from an incidental feature of farm prdouction to a specialty, and fruit farming and distribution are now conducted with the same careful and scientific methods which characterize that of other staple crops. As a result our exports of fruits have grown from $11,500,000 value in 1900 to $22,500,000 in 1910, $82,500,000 in 1920 and seem likely to aggregate $100,000,000 in the fiscal year 1924. Improvement in the art of canning has brought the export value of canned fruits from $5,000,000 in 1913 to $22,000,000 in 1922.

FOREIGN DEMAND GROWS

Apples in the natural state alone aggregated $21,000,000 in the export records of the nine months ending with March, 1924, against only $9,000,000 in the same months of the preceding year; oranges showed an increase of 50 per cent in the quantity exported in the current fiscal year, as compared with the same period of last year, while the exports of berries, the most difficult of all fruits for long distance shipment, are 50 per cent greater in the current year than those of the immediately preceding year. These new conditions under which fruits are grown and distributed to the consumers in all parts of the world explain in large part at least the fact that our exports since the beginning of 1900 aggregated $845,000,000, while those of the like period preceding 1900 were less than $100,000,000.

The classes of fruits enumerated in our export record are a dozen in number, the largest single group being apples, which form about 33 per cent of the value of the fruits exported, canned fruits, 20 per cent; oranges and other citrus fruits, about 10 per cent, and raisins and prunes about 10 per cent each of the total for the latest available year.

Where do they go, this enormous and constantly increasing quantity of fruits of all sorts? To all parts of the world; the 1922 record, the latest of which shows details of distribution of all articles exported, shows exports of apples in the natural state to no less than sixty-five countries in every part of the globe; berries, difficult of transportation, to twenty countries in Europe, Canada and Latin America; canned and dried fruits to eighty-five countries and colonies; while the total list of countries to which fruits of some class were sent in 1922 was 100.

HEAVY IMPORTS

The sums which our own people, the final consumers, pay for fruit produced in the United States is much more difficult to estimate. The census of 1920 put the value of the fruit crop of 1919 at $702,000,000, and estimates of the Department of Agriculture are put at $692,000,000 for 1922 and $691,000,000 in 1923, these figures being the value of the product at the place of production and exclusive of movement to markets or profits of those through whose hands they pass in reaching the final consumer.

In addition to this big production we are large importers of fruit, especially the products of tropical climates. Our imports of fruit in 1923, including that from our own colonies, cost approximately $75,000,000 in the countries of production, including $20,000,000 worth of bananas, chiefly from Central America and the West Indies, and $30,000,000 worth of pineapples, chiefly from the Hawaiian Islands.

Seaboard Bank Chooses Day of Formal Opening

The board of directors of the Seaboard National Bank, at a meeting held yesterday, elected Clinton E. Miller vice-president and set the opening date of the bank for Tuesday, July 1.

Mr. Miller is a native son and is a past president of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce and past district governor of the International Rotary Clubs.

The formal opening will continue from July 1 to 8 inclusive, during which time charter members will be enrolled.

According to George L. Browning, president, the banking-room and safety-deposit vaults are practically completed.

The Seaboard National Bank now has a fully paid-up capital of $1,000,000 and a surplus of $100,000 and will open for business at 612-614 South Spring street, in the heart of the financial district.

GAS SALE DECLINE DENIED

Consumption Far Ahead of 1923; Storage Gain Due to Refining to Meet Demand for Crude Fuel

Disappointment of the stock market bulls over the reputed unsatisfactory consumption of gasoline and the large supply of storage stocks since the first of the year is unfounded on the basis of statistics by M. B. Dewar of the Union Oil Company of California. His analysis of consumption figures with especial reference to the Pacific Slope States points to marked expansion in the sale of gasoline in the first quarter of this year over the same period of 1923, and at the same time reveals the cause of the excessively high storage that has bothered the traders in the oil shares.

In the four Pacific Slope States of California, Washington, Oregon and Arizona, Mr. Dewar's compilation shows that the consumption of gasoline in the first quarter of 1924 reached the estimated total of 293,264,140 gallons, which compares with 255,521,617 for the corresponding period of last year, an increase of 30 per cent. Washington, with a gain of 40 per cent, led the Coast States, with Arizona next with 38 per cent. Oregon and California followed with estimated increases of 33 and 29 per cent. The figures are derived from the gasoline tax returns made to the State authorities by the marketing companies.

CAR INCREASE EXCEEDED

Studied in relation to the expansion in automobile registration, the consumption figures afford the basis for satisfactory comparison. The average increase in motor-car registration in the four States was 20 per cent, compared to a gain of 30 per cent in the use of gasoline. Total registration of automobiles was 1,562,746 in the first quarter of 1924, against 1,259,011 in the first three months of 1923.

The consumption in twenty States having a gasoline tax law shows that sales increased 18.4 per cent over 1923, and in March, 1924, the gain was 21.2 per cent over March of 1923. The States included in this survey are scattered throughout the country, ranging from Louisiana in the South to North Dakota on the northern boundary, and their figures, according to Mr. Dewar, go a long way toward disproving the assertions of the commentators who declare that gasoline consumption is unsatisfactory from the stock market viewpoint.

FLUCTUATION UNEXPECTED

Market dopesters have been carefully watching the fluctuations of the gasoline storage figures for indications of a turn in the oil market, but, according to the deductions made by the Union Oil analyst, they are waiting at the wrong gate. High gasoline storage, he asserts, has very little relation to the gasoline market, but it has a strong connection with the demand for fuel oil and the production of crude. Fuel oil consumption, because of the conversion of steamships, railroads and industrial establishments to oil burners, is expanding at an amazing rate. In attempting to meet this demand the large companies are refining larger amounts of crude oil, and in the process are accumulating an abnormal supply of gasoline which is backing up in storage. This oversupply creates the erroneous impression that a poor gasoline market exists.

Coincident with the demand for fuel oil a decrease in the production of heavy crude oil has occurred, which is the base from which the heavier oils are obtained in the refining process. Light crude oil output has increased, and in putting this grade through the refineries to obtain fuel oil the gasoline yield is much greater than from the heavy crude. The result is that the supply of gasoline is swelled to a greater extent than if an adequate amount of heavy oil existed for the fuel oil market.

FARMERS HELPED

Rate reductions up to 51 per cent on fertilizer shipped in less-than-carload quantities have been announced by the Western Trunk Line Committee, representing twenty-six railroads operating throughout Western trunk-line territory. The new rates become effective at once, will continue until May 1, 1926, and constitute an important concession to many thousands of western farmers.

The revision in the rate schedule especially benefits the small farmers who have found it almost impracticable to buy fertilizers involving long shipments because of the high transportation costs. The result has been a loss of business for the manufacturers, and, incidentally, a smaller volume of traffic for the railroads in that particular commodity.

CITIES SERVICE

Gross earnings of the Cities Service Company for the twelve months ended April 30, last, were $16,705,004 as compared with $16,003,548 in the corresponding period of the preceding year. In the same twelve months net earnings amount to $16,178,645 as compared with $15,528,247, and net to common stock and reserve was $8,787,859 as compared with $8,050,881. This was the equivalent of $19 a share earned on the average amount of common stock outstanding. In the twelve months ended April 30, 1923, $17.28 a share was earned on the common stock. Preferred dividends were earned 2.75 times as compared with 2.63 times in the twelve months ended April 30, 1923.

In April, gross earnings amounted to $1,791,322 as compared with $1,738,106 in April, 1923. Net was $1,732,301 against $1,690,189 and net to common stock and reserve was $1,149,740 against $1,043,426 in April, 1923.

PURCHASING POWER

The Credit Clearinghouse weekly report shows a continuance of almost the same level of purchasing activity as has existed throughout the month of May, with a slight decrease, equal to 0.2 per cent for the country as a whole. For the last week in May, the Pacific Coast section recorded an increase of 2 per cent over the previous week, while the mountain section pursued the opposite course, decreasing 0.4 per cent.

The north agricultural section, like the Pacific Coast, after a decrease, records an increase of 0.8 per cent. The middle agricultural section shows a decrease of 1.4 per cent and the south agricultural again records a slight decrease, equal to 0.8 per cent. The east section, similar to the north agricultural, registers an increase of 0.8 per cent, following a decrease in the previous week.

OIL DIVIDEND

Directors of the Midway Northern Oil Company have declared the regular monthly dividend of 1 per cent per share, payable the 30th inst. to stock of record the 20th inst.

ELECTRICAL APPLIANCES SHOW GAIN

Western States Absorb Heavy Amounts of Total Production

Nearly $300,000,000 will be expended this year by residents of the Western States for electrical products, it is estimated by the Journal of Electricity. The West is one of the most fertile markets for the sale of electrical appliances, according to a survey made by this publication, even though it only has 40 per cent of the total area in the country and but 8 per cent of the population. It possesses 17 per cent of the total number of wired homes and uses 20 per cent of the central station electrical energy.

The survey shows that of the estimated total domestic consumers of electrical products for 1924 in the eleven Western States, California will have 1,068,000 out of the total of 2,093,580. This is an estimated increase of 123,547 for California over 1923 and 196,697 for the combined Western States.

Because of the relative cheapness of electrical energy in California, this State shows a somewhat higher rate of consumption than the remainder of the West in the field of domestic electrical appliances. No less than sixty-six vacuum cleaners per 100 wired homes are now used in California, while the number of the eleven Western States as a whole is slightly below this mark with fifty-three.

The toaster and the percolator seem to rank next in the order of their popularity, with sixty-two and forty-three per 100 wired homes in California, respectively, and forty-four and thirty-four, respectively, as the number in the eleven Western States.

The same markets apply in a large degree to electric water heaters, with 0.8 per 100 wired homes in California and 1.3 per 100 wired homes in the eleven Western States. This market, too, is still in the pioneer stage with its greatest possibilities in the future.

The sales of electric ranges and electric water heaters during 1923 have been tabulated as have also the number of these appliances in use on the lines of central stations, reporting as of January 1, 1924. This investigation shows that only 4.4 per cent of the consumers own electric ranges and only 1.3 per cent of the consumers own electric water heaters.

SPOT COTTON DOWN; FUTURES PHLEGMATIC

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, June 3.—Spot cotton closed at 32.30, or 45 points net lower.

Price movements were narrow in a featureless session in the cotton futures market today.

Traders were generally cautious and business was chiefly of local character. Outside interest continued small, owing to the fact that speculators are inclined to await more definite crop news before committing themselves extensively for either side.

Under scattered selling by commission-house interests and the South, the list went off 15 to 20 points early, but thereupon encountered good support from local bulls, which steadied the market and led to a moderate recovery subsequently. Trading, however, remained dull and to the close, which found prices 3 to 8 points net higher, quotations fluctuated within a narrow range.

The Objective of A Real Investor—

The real investor buys primarily for safety and income. Naturally there is little reason for being concerned about day-to-day price fluctuations.

The speculator, who buys and sells for profit, watches most carefully market fluctuations—haunts brokers' rooms—fingers the tape—and is always looking for "tips."

Many investors fail to discriminate between their objective and that of the speculator. They attempt to follow his practices—and the result is considerable harmful effects.

Sound investment contemplates only security of principal and interest producing a fair return on the capital invested. Profit resulting from an appreciation in price should be incidental.

Buy bonds for safety and income—not profit.

We recommend the following conservative bonds for investment:

YOUR building is safe only in so far as your foundation is strong. Your investment is likewise safe in proportion to the strength of its foundation —the security back of it.

The security of a Street Improvement Bond is indestructible—it is land. A definite and specific piece of land which you can see and judge for yourself secures each bond.

The value of the land is so many times the amount of the bond that the element of chance is eliminated.

The hold of the bond is relentless. It stands ahead of the mortgage and all other claims except general taxes until the entire bond is paid.

We have Sold Street Improvement Bonds and are now handling collections for these bonds in 65 cities of California. We have specialized in Improvement Bonds for twenty years, with satisfaction to our clients.

BRITISH BANKING PATTERN URGED

America's Inexperience in Finance is Cited

New York Expert Compares Countries' Systems

Credit Control in England Wins High Praise

In attempting to solve our important monetary problems, two courses are open to us, according to Dr. Henry A. E. Chandler, economist of the National Bank of Commerce in New York, in discussing the British and American money markets in the June issue of Commerce Monthly. If we are not to work out our problems by the laborious and costly method of trial and error, we must adopt practices that long experience in other countries has proved to be sound, he continues.

"Our success in drawing largely upon the experiences of other countries in the construction of our Federal Reserve system clearly suggests the advantage of utilizing in connection with our present problems the longer European experience where possible. In turning to other great industrial countries, we find no more successful banking system than that of Great Britain."

SIMILARITY SEEN

The marked success of Great Britain in working out important monetary problems, still unsettled in the United States, makes the British banking experience of very great value to the United States, the expert believes. In comparing the two systems, Dr. Chandler takes issue with those who suggest that the dissimiliarities are such as to make British experience inapplicable to our conditions. After recognizing the essential dissimilarities in the two systems, he points out that most of the alleged differences are superficial, and he emphasizes both, "the similarity of the principal banking operations, and the similarity of the underlying principles that determine the nature and scope of nearly all of the larger banking and credit problems of the two countries.

"We find in each country a commercial banking system composed of three great separate institutions, namely, a great commercial deposit banking system, an important open commercial money market, and a great reserve banking system. We find the commercial banking operations based upon the same general theory with respect to the necessary self-liquidating character of their advances. We find the commercial banks employing their funds in substantially the same ways, and in distributing their funds in about the same proportions among cash reserves, combined loans and discounts, and investments. Moreover, in their relations to their customers both in treatment of deposits and in method of making advances the final accomplishments after looking behind the superficial differences are essentially the same.

BOTH UTILIZE CHECK

"From the point of view of the larger banking and credit problems, however, another similarity is of even greater significance. The practice of both the United States and Great Britain; unlike that of important continental countries where the bank note is utilized to meet the larger currency needs of commerce, is to utilize the check as the great medium of exchange in business transactions. The existence of a deposit banking system (resting upon the wide use of the check,) by means of which a tremendous volume of credit can be extended to business, when backed by only a relatively small volume of cash reserves, in both countries gives rise to currency problems of similar nature and magnitude.

"This capacity for bank credit expansion plus the tendency of business in a great industrial country to overexpand unless wisely guided, places upon the bankers of the country a great responsibility. Notwithstanding the high degree of intelligence associated with commercial banking in both countries, it is impossible under our modern competitive banking system that an adequate control of credit always be maintained by the more or less independent actions of separate banking institutions. History has demonstrated that there must be developed a measure of co-ordinated control and that co-ordination must be accomplished largely by a separate reserve banking institution.

"The co-ordination of banking control of credit, however, is a problem of great complexity. Especially is this true in Great Britain and in the United States where the commercial banks possess such large resources and such possibilities for extending credit to a considerable degree independently of the reserve institution. Upon the success with which this co-ordination is accomplished, however, depend in a large measure the soundness of credit conditions and the prosperity of the business of the country.

"For many years Great Britain has been developing a system of credit control and for a considerable period before the war it was recognized that the Bank of England had attained the most successful co-ordination to be found in any great industrial country. It is the recognized success of the Bank of England, together with the fact that the British commercial banking system is more like ours than that of any other great industrial nation, that suggests that Americans can gain much from the rich experience of the Bank of England."

STATE FRUIT OUTPUT GAINS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—Carload shipments of fresh fruits and vegetables from California during the first five months of 1924 increased 11 per cent over a similar period in 1923, figures compiled by the Pacific Fruit Express reveal.

BOND QUOTATIONS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, June 3.—A combination of favorable Washington developments and easy money today contributed to moderate improvement in bond prices. The effect of the President's action in signing the tax bill and promising further relief at the next Congressional session was most noticeable in the Liberty bond list, with one issue setting a new 1924 top price and others selling around the best levels of the year.

Price fluctuations of domestic corporation liens generally were narrow and unimportant. Virginia-Carolina 7s, with an advance of 2 points, and Wilson convertible 6s, which gained fractionally, however, responded to elimination of the uncertainty regarding interest payments.

Under the leadership of Norfolk and Western convertible 6s, which jumped 3½ points in line with the strength of the stock, most railroad liens pointed higher. Hudson and Manhattan income 5s rallied briskly and substantial gains were recorded by St. Paul, Frisco and New Haven mortgages.

Sale of New York City's $67,400,000 corporate stock and bonds today at a premium which netted the city $800,000 commanded interest of investment circles. The award was made to a banking syndicate headed by the National City Company of New York on a bid of 101.1861. Public offerings of the bonds will be made tomorrow at prices ranging from 100.731, including 3.50 per cent for short maturities, to 102.800, yielding 4 per cent, for the long-term issue. The stock will be sold at 102¼ and interest, yielding about 4.15 per cent.

Following are closing quotations on bonds listed on the New York Stock Exchange, furnished by Logan & Bryan, 630 South Spring street.

NEW YORK CURB

Firmer Tone

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, June 3.—Curb securities generally displayed a healthier tone in today's trading, in keeping with the fairly vigorous revival on the "big board" and in contrast to the dullness of the day before, public utilities shares continued their showing of strength, Commonwealth Power scoring a gain of 6 points and American Gas and Electric more than 5 points.

Conflicting movements characterized the oils, most of which, however, showed advances toward the stronger close of the market.

Prairie Oil and Gas lost 3 points on the day, but Prairie Pipe Line and Vacuum Oil each closed a point higher, while fractional gains were made by Standard Oil of Indiana, Mutual Oil and other leading issues.

Dealings started today in the 1500 shares of new stock of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company's on a "when-issued" basis. The first sale was made at 120¾.

Industrials also displayed a firm tone, Lehigh Valley Coal closing 2 point higher and Doehler Die Casting and Dubilier Radio advancing fractionally. The motor shares were inactive.

Following are the closing quotations on the New York Curb market, furnished by Logan & Bryan, members of the New York Stock Exchange, 630 South Spring street.

BY HOWARD C. KEGLEY

After drilling four wells to an average depth of 5000 feet in the Dominguez field, the General Petroleum Corporation finally is convinced that its Gardena, White and Austin leases are on the edge of the structure and, according to reports, it is not unlikely that a halt will be called on operations there in the near future.

The Austin No. 1, after finding a supposed oil sand at 5450 feet, is idle. The White No. 1, finding the sand at about 4850 feet, is still drilling, below 5000 feet, and the Gardena No. 2 is drilling at below 4900 feet. The Gardena No. 2 found showings at 4860 feet, sixteen feet deeper than in the Gardena No. 1, but the showing is said to be unsatisfactory. The Gardena No. 1 is still flowing about 300 barrels of oil and water a day.

Further development in this field is not contemplated by the General Petroleum Corporation it is said. The three leases in the northern area, constituting a single block of acres, are the only holdings the company has in Dominguez.

To Drill Offset

The Petroleum Midway Company probably will start an offset well to the Standard Oil Company's Patton No. 1 in the Rideout Heights district of North Whittier in the near future, officials report. The Patton is about 3500 feet deep, it is said. The well is near the shoestring extension of the Petroleum Midway's Rideout Hamburg lease, which extends in a narrow strip to the southeast.

Find Oil Showings

The Brown No. 1 wildcat well which is being drilled in the Wheeler Ridge district by the Petroleum Midway Company is down about 2700 feet officials report. Some showings were found at about 2600 feet, the depth where the Standard's wells in this area found production, it is said. The Petroleum Midway has 160 acres in the Brown lease, but production is considered probable only in the southeastern corner of the tract.

Visits Scotland

A. C. Galbraith, manager of the publicity and advertising department of the Union Oil Company of California, left yesterday morning for a three-month visit with relatives in Scotland. During his absence V. L. Ehrenclou will be in charge of the department.

Start in Rosecrans

The General Petroleum Corporation will start building rig on its Amistoy lease in the Rosecrans field in the near future, according to reports. The Amistoy tract comprises about ten acres and is located southwest of the Athens No. 1, and northwest of the Rosecrans No. 1. It will be the most westerly project in the field. The lease adjoins the Bank of Italy tract held by the Union Oil Company, and under the terms of their contract with the lessors, the Union will be required to start an offset well immediately, it is reported.

O'Donnell to Speak

Thomas A. O'Donnell, president of the American Petroleum Institute will be the principal speaker tonight at the regular meeting of the Petroleum Engineers' Society at the Chamber of Commerce Building in Long Beach. Mr. O'Donnell's subject will be "New Problems of the Petroleum Industry in the United States." Officials of the society have extended a general invitation to attend to all persons interested in the oil industry.

To Spud New Well

Within the next ten days the Standard Oil Company is scheduled to spud in Howard & Smith No. 2 at Montebello, after having drilled No. 1 to 5050 feet, overcoming many mechanical difficulties, but establishing the productive possibilities of the west end of the Montebello field, it is asserted. Considerable activity in leasing has been quietly going on in that district.

Use New Method

The Gilmore Oil Company's Torrance No. 3, at Redondo Road and Arlington street in Torrance, went on production Monday after a drilling history unique in the Torrance field. Hoping to secure a larger production than the average in this closely drilled area, the company used rotary equipment down to 3605 feet, where water string was landed, and then went in with cable tools. This drilling method is new to the Torrance field, although followed extensively in the northern part of the State. Completed at 3695 feet, after a bad fishing job, the well is pumping about 120 barrels a day. Other wells recently completed in the same area have made about fifty barrels a day.

Fail in Shut-off

The first cement job at the Standard Oil Company's test well on the Weston ranch in West Lomita was unsuccessful. The company landed water string at 3520 feet. It was learned Monday that showings of oil were picked up at 3510 feet. The well is the southern drilling outpost of the Torrance field.

SALE OF UTE MOUNTAIN INDIAN TRIBAL LEASES

On June 10, 1924, at 2:00 p.m. there will be offered for sale at Durango, Colorado, approximately 40 oil and gas mining leases on six tracts, five large and one small, for a cash bonus in addition to royalty on production. Full information may be obtained from R. E. McKean, Superintendent, Consolidated Ute Indian Agency, Ignacia, Colorado, or from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, Washington, D. C.

LOS ANGELES EXCHANGE

Although trading still continues on a restricted scale as the public remains aloof from speculation, prices in the oil shares were somewhat higher yesterday on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange in sympathy with the stronger tone in "big board" securities.

Standard Oil of California responded to the bullish tendency with a rise of 1 point to 57½ at the finish. General Petroleum common followed with an advance of ⅜ to 39½, and United Oil with ⅝ of a point to 25⅛. Julian Petroleum preferred pushed forward 1 point to 28, and the common finished up ¼ at 18½. Union Oil Associates was unchanged at 53¾.

Los Angeles Investment failed to attract its usual following and the volume of transactions was on a small scale. Opening prices were strong at 3.80, but final quotations were only slightly above the previous day at 3.76½.

Richmond Consolidated in the mining list slipped off from initial transactions at 18 to a closing bid of 15 cents, United Eastern sold at 60 cents.

Following are the closing quotations and sales:

METAL MARKETS

Daily Review

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CLEVELAND (O.) June 3.—Daily Metal Trade today says: "Sheet and tin plate wage conference with Amalgamated Association at Atlantic City adjourns after having agreed to accept last year's wage scale. This disposes of strike likelihood in June. Prices of pig iron say at Cincinnati, but fail to develop much additional business. Good volume of new structural steel business is promised Chicago fabricators to growing building projects. Copper is firmer at New York at 13⅞ cents. Lead is firm at 6⅞ cents, but zinc easier at 6.77½@6.80, St. Louis. Tin advances to 41¼ cents."

Lower Wool Prices

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

BOSTON, June 3.—Several lines, both of fleece and territory wools are being offered at slightly lower figures. Wools similar to Ohio and Pennsylvania fine delaines and one-half blood have been available at 52, with three-eighths blood at 50 and one-half blood about 47. Clothing wools are also slightly lower. Carpet wool has been offered 1 to 2 cents per pound less.

METAL QUOTATIONS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, June 3.—Copper steady; electrolytic spot and futures, 12⅝@12¾. Tin steady; spot and futures 41.12. Iron steady; prices unchanged. Lead firm; spot 7.00@7.25. Zinc steady; East St. Louis spot, 6.77@6.80; futures 5.80@5.85. Antimony spot, 8.40.

Barber Bandit Sent to Prison for Two Years

Salvatore Campanelli, 20-year-old barber, yesterday was sentenced by Judge Avery to serve two years in the Preston State School on a charge of second-degree robbery to which he had pleaded guilty.

The youth was asserted to have held up Virgil Atcheson, a Watts grocer. According to Probation Officer George W. Nelly, Campanelli was looking for work when two acquaintances came along in an automobile. They asked him to accompany them to Atcheson's store to get something to eat. Campanelli said he was sent back to the store with empty pop bottles and orders to hold up Atcheson.

He weakened on three trips, he said, and finally was given moral support by one of his friends, who was said to have looted the till while Campanelli held a gun on Atcheson. Campanelli was said to have surrendered himself to the Sheriff's office because his conscience bothered him.

GALLI-CURCI TO SING MRS. BOND'S "WERE I"

Galli-Curci will sing Carrie Jacobs Bond's newest song at the Hollywood Bowl on Thursday night. In so doing one of the world's most famous sopranos is paying tribute to California's most celebrated and beloved songwriter. The charming song, entitled "Were I," is replete with the melody and sentiment which has carried Mrs. Bond's name to the far corners of the earth. And its theme will prove peculiarly appropriate to the spacious open-air setting of the Bowl's surroundings. The occasion should prove mutually distinguished for both songwriter and singer in this notable combination of the

CHAMPION TO DIE ON SCAFFOLD

Maintains Innocence and Says He Was Railroaded in Goldie Slaying

A. F. Champion is to hang for the murder of James Goldie, ninety days from yesterday.

This sentence was pronounced by Judge Hardy after Champion, his last hope of appeal to the courts gone, made another protestation of innocence.

"I am not guilty of this murder," he declared when the court asked if he had anything to say. "I have been railroaded and kangarooed."

Goldie, too persistent a winner in a crap game, was shot and killed January 16, 1922. It is asserted Champion escaped through a window after the killing. At his trial he swore he was in Texas when the murder was committed, and his father, mother and a cousin swore also to the alibi. Charges of perjury were made against the three witnesses, but later were dismissed.

Champion's mother has gone to Sacramento to intercede with Gov. Richardson, asking him to spare the life of her son. She left as soon as word was received that the Supreme Court had denied the asserted slayer's appeal, and affirmed his conviction.

In sentencing Champion, Judge Hardy told him he had had all the protection that the courts can throw around an accused man and that nothing further could be done but to sentence him to death. The judge was visibly affected by what he said was a painful duty.

Southland Glee Club Leaves on Tour of Nation

The Men's Glee Club from the University of Southern California, consisting of twenty voices, will leave Los Angeles today for Santa Barbara, where it will present the first concert of a three-months' nation-wide tour, which will include every principal city in the country.

The 1923 tour lasted six weeks and extended only as far east as Chicago. The tour this year will reach to New York.

From Santa Barbara the club will journey to San Francisco and from there proceed to Salt Lake City and Ogden. The tour will terminate with a three-weeks' engagement in New York. The club will sing two weeks in Chicago where, last year, it was pronounced the best college glee club ever heard at the famous McVicker's Theater.

The tour is under the direction of Horatio Cogswell, director. The men who will make the trip are John Bodley, Charles Kahlert, William R. MacDonald, Willard Smith, Carl Groot, Harry Hardin, Earl Stone, A. W. Zahn, Cecil J. Birtcher, Howard Coy, Horace Judson, Frank Root, John Thomas, Wesley Beans, Harvey Halstain, Ernest Lewis, E. G. Pritchard and Kenneth Shutts.

SAND-LOADING PLANT IS ORDERED REMOVED

As the result of the protests of near-by property owners, Councilman Gregory put through a motion at yesterday's session of the City Council directing the City Prosecutor to take steps to bring about the removal of a sand-loading station on the north side of the Los Angeles River, near Los Feliz Boulevard bridge. No building permit had been obtained for the sand bunker, it was said by the Councilmen.

'BARON' AND 'VALET' DENY GEM THEFT

Trial of Pair Accused by Hostess of Robbing Home Set for 17th Inst.

"Baron" George Von Garden, self-styled member of the European nobility, and Dolando Dean, said to be his "valet," yesterday entered pleas of not guilty to charges of grand larceny preferred against them at the instance of Mrs. M. C. Gresley, wealthy Hollywood resident. Judge Avery set their trial for the 17th inst.

Mrs. Gresley told Dep. Dist.-Atty. Hill, according to the latter, that she first met the "baron" and Dean while on a trip through the Grand Canyon of the Colorado River. They were all bound for Los Angeles and became quite friendly, according to Hill.

The prosecutor said he intended to prove that while Mrs. Gresley was entertaining the two men at her Hollywood home one of them pretended sickness and while he gained the attention of Mrs. Gresley the other went to the kitchen, presumably for a glass of water, and in the meantime rifled Mrs. Gresley's room of $3000 worth of diamonds and jewelry.

The next morning, Hill said, Mrs. Gresley told him, her guests and gems had disappeared. Von Garden and Dean were arrested later in San Francisco and part of the plunder was said to have been found in their possession.

Driver Charged With Failing to Aid One He Hurt

Asserted indifference of Arthur Alvarado after an accident in which an automobile he was driving is said to have run down and fatally injured Mrs. Bessie Keenan, resulted in a complaint being issued against him yesterday by Dep. Dist.-Atty. MacKay charging failure to stop and give aid.

It is charged that on May 31 last, the car driven by Alvarado ran into Mrs. Keenan at Sixth avenue and Washington Boulevard, that he stopped and carried her to the side of the road and then drove away.

Later, according to Mr. MacKay, the defendant caused the car to be reported by its owner as lost. Alvarado was arrested by Police Officers Vain and Perry.

Watts Recall Drive Leads to Perjury Charge

Political differences at Watts had an inning yesterday in the District Attorney's office when Dep. Dist.-Atty. Burke issued a complaint against James Robinson charging the latter with perjury in connection with the filing of a recall petition directed against A. P. Cowell, a City Trustee.

The complaint was sworn to by Oscar E. Winburn, who charged that Robinson signed an affidavit that he had personally circulated a petition for the recall and had witnessed the signing of the names of Byron J. Bechtel and Mrs. D. Murphy to the document.

It is charged that the defendant did not circulate the petition and witness the signatures.

SCHOOL BONDS CARRY EASILY

Vast Majority is Returned for $34,640,000 Issue

Nineteen and Seventeen to One for Elementary, High

Officials Jubilant, Express Thanks for Victory

The voters of the Los Angeles school districts yesterday placed their stamp of approval by a tremendous majority on the $34,640,000 of school bond issues. At midnight with more than 80 per cent of the precincts indicated that the elementary bonds had carried 19 to 1, and the high school bonds had carried 17 to 1.

[illegible]241 elementary precincts reporting out of a total of 444, the vote stood 48,044 in favor to 2478 against. In the high school district 104 precincts reporting out of a total of 454 showed 67,437 in favor and 3915 against the bonds.

In this election the voters showed a stronger sentiment for the bonds than they did two years ago, when the bonds carried 14 to 1.

MEANS DEVELOPMENT

The result of the election indicated that the public was aware of the crowded and inefficient manner of housing the city's 150,000 pupils and therefore authorized an increase in buildings, equipment and land to take care of the 30,000 yearly growth in the school population.

The success of the bonds means that within the next three or four years more than $30,000,000 will be spent in the purchase of land and the erection of buildings, no considerable matter in the community's industrial life.

In some cases precincts reported a vote nearly unanimous for the bonds. The Laurel Canyon precinct returned 132 ballots all in favor of the bonds. Several precincts in San Pedro cast 350 favorable votes to six against the same.

Robert A. Odell, president of the Board of Education, in a statement last night, expressed his thanks to the community for the way in which it responded to the board's plea for more money.

THANKS PUBLIC

"We are deeply pleased to learn that all our efforts for the benefit of the children have succeeded in awakening the public to the need for more buildings. I wish to thank all the agencies who have assisted us, particularly The Times."

"Needless to say, we are profoundly gratified to see how the voters of the school districts have come to the aid of the schools."

Robert L. Burns, chairman of the building committee of the board, said: "For the other members of the board I wish to express my thanks to all those people and organizations who have helped us in this fight.

"We shall immediately begin to go forward through the legal process for obtaining the money and go ahead with the building campaign. We already have had the assurances of authorities upon the validity of the bonds, a necessity before they will be bought by any banks. Then we shall advertise them for sale and the other immediate formalities. In six months we expect to be well on our way in an intensive building campaign.

"At the present time we know exactly what sites and buildings we shall construct and where we shall erect them.

"As soon as we can begin to construct the new buildings and the additions we hope to alleviate the present pitiful condition of overcrowded and make-shift classrooms."

Mrs. Dorsey, the superintendent, and her aids were overjoyed at the returns, which indicated the confidence the public has expressed in the school authorities, and also in the realization that something must be done to alleviate unfortunate conditions.

RUSH OF VOTERS

Though the voting was light during the day there was a heavy rush of voters to the polls around 6 o'clock. The polls remained open until 8 p.m., thus affording workers an opportunity to vote.

The registration for the two school districts, high school and elementary, which extends outside the limits of the city, is about 80,000. Though the number of voters in the city is normally

DEATH OF PHYSICIAN MOURNED

Dr. W. W. Richardson One of Most Noted Members in Medical Circles

With the passing of Dr. William Weise Richardson, who died here last Monday, the medical profession of Southern California mourns the loss of one of its best-known members.

Dr. Richardson became president of the Los Angeles County Medical Association after serving as secretary and treasurer of the organization. He also was the first president of the Orthopedic Society, president of the Southern California Medical Association and a member of the California State Medical Society, American Medical Association, Western Surgical Society and American College of Surgeons.

Active in hospital work he was a member of the staff of the Methodist, California, Lutheran and Clara Barton, Children's Hospital and the Barlow Sanatorium.

When the war clouds lowered in 1917, Dr. Richardson promptly offered his services to the country. He served overseas and, at the time of the signing of the Armistice, was assigned to a combat unit in active service.

Dr. Richardson, a keen student of fractures, established the first fracture ward in the California Hospital and introduced the tubercular ward in the Children's Hospital.

Born in Princeton, Ill., in 1869, Dr. Richardson spent his boyhood in that State and was a graduate of the medical school of Northwestern University. He was graduated too young to receive his diploma for practicing medicine, but was admitted as an interne to the Cook County Hospital of Chicago.

Dr. Richardson later became assistant and then chief surgeon of the Minnesota Iron Company, Home Lumber Company and Indian Reservation School in Northern Minnesota. In 1901, as chief surgeon, Dr. Richardson helped establish the first modern surgical hospital in the Birmingham district of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company in Alabama.

In 1905 Dr. Richardson came to Los Angeles and, two years later, became professor of anatomy at the University of Southern California. He was made professor of surgery in the University of California in 1911.

In 1897 he married Miss Louise B. Redmond of Galveston, Tex. Two children died in infancy. The widow and one brother, Dr. G. R. Richardson, survive.

Funeral arrangements have not been announced.

BEACH RAIL YARDS ARE SUGGESTED

Project at Cabrillo Put to Harbor Commission by Pioneer Resident

City switching yards for the Cabrillo Beach site in case the proposed $250,000 pleasure park outside the breakwater is defeated, following protests of ten nearby property owners, was suggested to the Harbor Commission yesterday by Louis Hansen, pioneer Harbor citizen.

Capt. Hansen said the eighty acres to be reclaimed would be worth a dollar a square foot or $4,000,000 for city belt line switching to serve development under contemplation just inside the breakwater.

The Harbor Commission, however, took no action, having a week ago declared for the pleasure park.

Disposition of the site is expected following a public hearing Friday before Maj. E. A. Ardery, United States engineer, which will be confined to objections to navigation. The property owners are said to base their objections on the cost of the park project and not on navigation.

COOLIDGE TRAIN STARTS ON TRIP

Rousing Farewell Accorded Convention Delegates

Auto Parade and Band Escort Party to Station

Reception is Given Before the Special Leaves

The Coolidge special with Republican National Convention delegates and friends, left Los Angeles last night on the way to Cleveland in the midst of an enthusiastic farewell by Southern California Republicans.

The train is to arrive in San Francisco today and the entire California delegation will assemble, leaving the Bay City at noon.

A reception was conducted at Coolidge headquarters at the Angelus Hotel last night followed by a parade of automobiles to the Southern Pacific station.

WOMAN HEADS PARTY

The delegation was headed by Mrs. Florence Collins Porter, of South Pasadena, who attended the Chicago convention in 1912, one of the first two women ever made delegates to a Republican National Convention. It is expected that Mrs. Porter will be accorded the honor of making California's seconding speech.

At the headquarters flags were passed around with badges and buttons, the last given to each delegate and carrying the slogan "Coolidge Again."

W. E. Evans of Glendale, a delegate, rounded up his comrades and taught them a song, "California for Coolidge," which is to be the battle hymn of the delegation at Cleveland.

A brass band in a big bus led the parade to the station and was followed by scores of automobiles filled with cheering people.

C. C. Chapman of Fullerton, a delegate, who has been mentioned as a candidate for nomination as Vice-President, addressed the crowd of several hundred, who followed the delegates to the special cars.

CO-EDS CHEER, TOO

Mrs. Helen M. Laughlin was accompanied by a score of college girls, members of Sigma Alpha Kappa Sorority, who cheered until the walls of the station rang.

Mr. Chapman and Mr. Evans are accompanied by their wives. Master Irvin Chapman was also in the party. Other delegates were A. L. Rowland of Pasadena, and W.

GUARDS POSTED AT SCHOOL

Trouble Feared at Rosemead as Member of Board Quits; Principal and Teachers Give Notice

One member of the school board of the Savannah school district resigned yesterday, the school principal and all the teachers have given notice that they will not consider re-election to the district for next year and officers from the District Attorney's and Sheriff's offices were detailed yesterday evening to preserve peace in the community.

The two major issues, which have disturbed the serenity of Rosemead, a community two miles from El Monte, concern the retention, or dismissal of Janitor Brown and the appointment of the man teacher as principal next year.

A meeting at the school house was called for yesterday evening by A. Q. St. George, clerk of the board. The Sheriff's office and District-Attorney's office were notified beforehand to have officers on hand to quell expected trouble, it being reported that the populace was opposed to Mr. St. George and another school trustee, W. C. Hosking.

However, a committee of townsfolk called at Mr. Hosking's residence the night before making demands concerning the running of the school. Mr. Hosking sent his resignation to Mark Keppel, county superintendent of schools, yesterday morning. He was quoted as saying he was disgusted with the situation.

Mr. St. George was not present at the meeting. It was reported to Harry Raymond, chief of detectives of the District Attorney's office, that threats had been made against Mr. St. George.

The remaining member of the school board is Z. Bissell, newly elected member whose vote has been in the minority on school affairs.

Mr. St. George said he and Mr. Hosking had agreed to terminate the services of Janitor Brown on July 1, when the latter's contract expired. He and Mr. Hosking, also, had refused to agree to appoint a man teacher next year to take the place of the present principal, Mrs. Etta White.

Mrs. White said last night that the trouble appeared to be political, that various factions were squabbling over trivial matters

WOMEN OF WEST PLAN ACTIVITIES

Group from Eleven States Has Session; Election is Set for Friday

Sixty women, representing the eleven States of the Western Federation of the General Federation of Women's Clubs met yesterday afternoon on the mezzanine floor of the Clark Hotel to formulate plans for the activities of the western federation during the biennial.

The first regular business meeting and election of officers was set for 5 p.m. Friday at the Clark. Mrs. M. J. Sweeley of Twin Falls, Idaho, who has been president of the western federation for the last two years, appointed Mrs. P. L. Mix of Los Angeles and Mrs. P. B. Ellis of Carson City, Nev., as a nominating committee. A Monday morning breakfast in honor of the new officers is planned also.

"We want an organized effort of westren women at the biennial," said Mrs. E. J. Docker, press chairman of the western federation. "The Eastern States must know that we are active in civic affairs and we must show these eastern women that we can stand together on the issues that are before the convention."

Meetings of the western federation are held once a year, one year at the biennial and the following year in one of the eleven Western States.

CAT FIGHT NOT ACTIONABLE

Hurry Call for Shotgun Squad Leads to Perusal of Law Books by Police; Find They Can't Intervene in Aerial Attack on Feline by Mocking Bird

If a cat cannot defend itself from the aerial attack of a mocking bird it is no business of the police department.

This opinion was given to Mrs. Almeda Hamilton, 947 Grattan street, yesterday. She had called the police and requested the speedy dispatch of the shotgun squad to her home.

"What's the trouble?" asked Officer Apt of the lieutenant's office, who answered the call.

Mrs. Hamilton, in excited tones, told of a daily conflict between her cat and a mocking bird. The bird, she said, delighted to swoop down on the defenseless feline, giving vent to cries of derision and contempt for the cat's lack of flying equipment.

For a while the unusual spectacle was amusing and furnished innocent sport for the neighbors. But the daily battle, with the piercing warble of the mocking bird, finally got on the neighbors' nerves. They told Mrs. Hamilton so. She was in a pickle.

"I am afraid to shoot at the bird," she told Officer Apt, "because I can't shoot straight. I am afraid I might hit somebody. I can't scare the bird away by throwing things at it. It just sits up in the tree and laughs at me—and the cat."

After hearing her sad story Officer Apt referred the request to the proper authorities. A long and serious session ended with the official decision that under the statutes there is nothing that would give the police authority to interfere in the battle between the land and air contestants.

Mrs. Hamilton said she may find other means to put an end to the affair.

LAVISH SETTING ATTENDS OPENING OF FEDERATION

Flowers, Palms and Fruits Add to Beauty of Gathering; Women From All Climes Attend

BY MYRA NYE

A year's superb team work by the splendid personnel of 70,000 California club women saw its fruition in Philharmonic Auditorium last night when the seventeenth biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs was formally opened.

KEYNOTE SPEECH BY MRS. WINTER

The complete keynote address of Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, at the formal opening of the biennial convention at Philharmonic Auditorium last night follows:

That was a very blissful time when people were in the habit of saying that all was for the best in this best of all possible worlds. In these latter days, no one except he who is so blind that he cannot see tragedy, so deaf that he cannot hear the sorrows of the world, so dumb that his mouth fails to respond, can possibly be comfortably in ignorance of the fact that this is a world where there is wrong and stupidity, doubt and turmoil, and that the best thing that can happen to a human being is to be a part of the forces of righteousness that are at work to make things better in this very far from perfect world.—This world that in spite of its struggling and discontent has its face turned upward and its heart more keenly alive than ever before to human anguish.

DECLARATION OF FAITH

At the beginning of this convention, it seems fitting to make a kind of declaration of our faith as an organization.

In the first place, we believe in the republic of the United States. We believe in both its essential form of government and in the high ideals of human relation that brought this government into being and must continue to actuate it if it is to be kept vitally alive. We recognize in the ideals that lie behind the Constitution of the United States a wonderfully wise adjustment that is meant not only to secure liberty to every citizen and every community but also to lay on every citizen and every community a sacred responsibility to play their individual parts, while at the same time it ties us up together in the mightiest far-flung government that lies upon this whirling globe. Every man or woman, every town or State that fails to live up to its responsibility jeopardizes that imperial greatness. Our country is a demonstration that brotherhood is not an idle phrase or a far-off dream but that it is the only practical solution of the world's difficulties. And there is no brotherhood that does not entail duties as well as privileges.

Because we believe in the republic of the United States both as a government and as a social ideal, there are three groups or kinds of people that we are forced to regard as our enemies because they are her enemies.

These are: First, those who are trying either by force or by cunning to tear down this great structure that we have received from our fathers and that we must pass on as a debt of honor to our children and our grandchildren, intact, but ripened with the ripening years. These are our enemies.

SELFISH ENEMIES

And the second group consists of those in our midst who are not openly destructive but who are purely selfish—who use all the opportunity given them by our freedom, our wealth, or our social life for self-aggrandizement. These play into the hands of our open enemies by besmirching our fair name. Whether they sit like Lucifer in the high places of whether they hide in the dark spots, they give reason and excuse for the mockers to say that our government and social order are failures. They play the part of Judas to the ideals of democracy and brotherhood. They do not crucify but they poison. We count them as

IN A NEW WAY

"Often and often have we been welcomed at other biennials by gentlemen whom I had besought to make no mention of the hand that rocks the cradle," said Mrs. Thomas G. Winter in accepting the greeting thus expressed, "but you have said the old trite thing in a new way. We can never forget the beauty of this evening."

Enthusiasm pervaded the throng from the beginning when the official song of the federation, "America, the Beautiful," was sung by the audience, which reached to the topmost galleries with hundreds turned away. A dash of color was added by the women who were in evening dress. When the last strains had died away through the standing crowd came the officers, directors and members of the local biennial board with Mrs. Joseph F. Sartori leading. Each of the 130 women, handsomely gowned, carried huge sheathes of gladioli of deep pink shades. Mrs. Winter with her officers came last. They were met by little flower girls who gave sprays of blossoms to each woman. Mrs. Winter stooped and kissed a yellow-haired child, who gave her a great American Beauty rose.

WEALTH OF BLOSSOMS

Still in the rythm of the dance in which they had participated, young women of the junior auxiliaries carried forward their long garlands of sweet peas and placed them as arches across the width of the stage. At intervals other flower bearers placed silver salvers of flowers to form a beautiful symetrical bank as foreground, and in the background now seated, were the women with the gladioli placed high to form a veritable bower of blossoms. Millions of flowers all over the Southland were in the pageant which was arranged by Jessie Calhoun Anderson.

In a delightful little speech welcome Mrs. Sartori spoke of this year's work in preparation for the biennial.

"Early summertime is California harvest time," she said, "and this June and this night is the fruition of all out hope, all our endeavor. There is not a clubwoman in California who has not contributed in a measure to the beauty of this hour. In the inspiration of it I am sure there is hidden the seed of further fruition."

She told of the other biennial in 1902 when Los Angeles alone prepared for the guests and of the one in 1912 when San Francisco made ready. "Now it is all of California womanhood who greets you."

FROM ALL THE STATE

Mrs. John C. Urquhart, whose pleasure it was to introduce the most distinguished guest and speaker of the evening, Mrs. Winter, emphasized Mrs. Sartori's thought of co-operation.

"It has been indeed the superb team spirit of all—some from the mountains and foothills, some from the deserts and those who live near the sea who have accomplished, and tonight they are focusing their attention in loving thought on this event. In spirit they are with us."

Of Mrs. Winter she said: "From her we can not fail to go away refreshed. She is a giant in mentality, keen in her judgment but most of all a woman with a great heart."

Mrs. Winter, who spoke on "What Makes a Nation Great," made a stirring appeal for loyalty to country, to a better understanding of its principles and a greater foresight as to its future needs from women throughout the breadth and length of the land.

"We represent that great sound America, those myriad of homes where love rules, from which men of integrity go forth to make business sound and constructive, where children grow up to be American men and women. If we did not believe this, the great Federation which we represent would be a senseless mockery instead of the thing which shows itself more alive every day and by its very life, reveals the quality that's the most hopeful phase of civilization.

"MANY WHO CARE"

"In all the history of the past there were never so many people who cared as there are today; never so many who can not be contented while suffering and wrongs go on, can not settle back in complacency while the other half is crucified. We care. And that caring is the mightiest revolutionary force."

Rt. Rev. Dean McCormick gave

TODAY'S BIBLE TEXT

PROUD PARENTS DO THEIR BIT TO BOOST POPULATION

Stork Delivers Triplets to Hospital

When the honor roll is called for those who did more than their share to increase the population of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Myers of 931 Fithian avenue are entitled to have their names printed in bold face type.

The stork brought them last week.

Mr. Myers is a mill mechanic employed in the car department of the Southern Pacific railroad shops on North Main street. He's a good workman, his fellow employees say, and they are the best kind of neighbors. They are just as generous with their pocket books as with their smiles, too. Knowing that the three other small children to be taken care of—3, 7 and 9 years old—the boys in the shop passed around the hat to get a small token of felicitation gift. Being good, hard-headed workmen, the gift will probably be in the form of money.

Of course, the boys at the shops couldn't get very far if any other industrial Angeleno or the committees of the Chamber of Commerce would chip in to the pot.

BIENNIAL BEGUN BY CLUB WOMEN

the invocation and an organ recital by Ray Hastings preceded the flower pageant.

A reception at the Biltmore in the ballroom in honor of the General Federation was given by the local biennial board. There were eight receiving lines. Mrs. Grantland Seaton Long as chairman of hospitality headed the first one. Conspicuous in one of the lines was one of the few men present, Mr. Winter, who has come from Minneapolis to be a guest in Los Angeles during the time of his distinguished wife's last official duties as president of the Federation.

A host of California women yesterday attended the only luncheon where the women of the hostess State may be sure of getting a seat throughout the biennial convention. The function proved to be one of the largest ever held in the Biltmore with nearly 1500 all wearing the yellow poppy badge of California. So large indeed was it that an overflow meeting was held in the lounge with the speakers relaying from the ballroom as rapidly as they had adressed one audience.

Mrs. Urquhart was toastmistress. Seated with her as honor guest at the long table at the end of the gorgeously beautiful room were: Mrs. Winter, Mrs. Robert J. Burdette, Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker of Texas, Mrs. D. L. Murray of Pasadena, Mrs. Sartori, Mrs. Josiah Evans Cowles also of Los Angeles, Mrs. Philip Moore of St. Louis, Mrs. W. A. Fitzgerald and Mrs. Aaron Schloss of San Francisco, Mrs. Charles Toll of Glendale and Mrs. A. L. Miller of Colorado. The guests from outside of California were heads of departments and Mrs. Winter, as chairman of international relations instead of president of the federation, was the chief speaker.

MRS. PENNYBACKER SPEAKS

Mrs. Pennybacker, who is one of the orators of the biennial, said in relation to her work in the department of American citizenship there was but one place to begin and that is to teach the youth greater respect for age and for authority.

"We women must not be afraid to campaign in politics," she said. "But one of the greatest dangers resulting from the present methods of campaigning is the effect upon the youth. There is general complaint that the young people of America lack reverence for those in official positions. Who is to blame? We older folk. Have you not heard mothers talk of the children's teacher in a way to make your blood run cold. Have you not heard fathers talk of those in power, even the President of the United States, in a way to appall. If they were deliberately trying to undermine the influence of the teacher and the government they could not go about it more successfully.

"No one escapes from the President down to the constable. The children are listening. They hear ridicule of the Supreme Court and indiscriminate charges of graft and corruption."

CALIFORNIA LEADS

Mrs. L. A. Miller, chairman of literature, who is the poet laureate for Colorado, said that California ranked first among the State federations promoting good literature and Colorado was second.

"Our great campaign must be: More and better books in the home, greater discrimination in our reading; a better knowledge of contemporary writers."

Mrs. White, chairman of legislation, reiterated her plea that women should be more nationally minded and less provincial in their thinking when it came to lawmaking.

Speaking on conservation Mrs. Frances E. Whitley, chairman, said she had a feeling that the redwoods should be saved as though they were human. "Perhaps I am no better informed than the woman of the humane society when told that some boys were shooting craps expressed herself strongly in horror of young boys shooting to kill anything, even animals that crawled."

But the redwoods are one of the noblest works of God and women of all States should join with California women in preserving them and their grandeur," she concluded.

REGISTRATION MIX-UP

Slight, but definite trouble in registering delegates yesterday and Monday made drastic action by the board of the general federation imperative. The credential committee, Mrs. David L. Murray, chairman, was instructed to discard all credentials of women now living in California who present membership in clubs in the back-home States to which they never belonged. Also instructions were given officially by definite action that delegates who pass their badges to alternates or any others shall be deprived of voting privileges. Many clubs, it was discovered yesterday, were presenting applications for six delegates when only half that number were eligible to vote.

"Such is a serious violation of ethics," said Mrs. Winter. We are determined this shall be an absolutely clean election.

"Undoubtedly it is to be the largest biennial in the history of the federation," Mrs. Winter said yesterday. "Monday 1100 registered and today that number will be more than doubled. Already there are more, by many hundreds, than at a corresponding time at other conventions.

"We are bringing our great past to your great present," she said, speaking directly to Mrs. Cowles, and Mrs. Sartori and Mrs. Burdette.

Other official actions of the board yesterday included the election of Miss Mary Hay of New York City, prominent lawyer clubwoman, welfare worker and a pioneer in the federation, to be honary vice-president.

Virginia and Oregon were admitted as direct members, having previously held what is termed indirect memberships through clubs in these States that were affiliated with the general federation, but the States themselves not affiliated. During Mrs. Winters's regime, sixteen States have been so admitted, h having been her chief aim to knit more closely the federation, which, at the beginning of her term numbered 30,000 as contrasted to 50,000 today.

"Women are not a class," said the president in speaking of the action of the board concerning the equal rights or Lucretia Mott amendment to the constitution. "I oppose strenuously this argument of the group of women who are upholding the bill now before Congress that the protective laws we have now for women are class discrimination. Most emphatically they are not. They are race legislation, yes, but not class, for it is just as necessary to man and all humanity that women be protected in child-bearing and childrearing as that the women themselves are so protected.

STATE RIGHTS

"There are certain States where women have more advantageous civil and legal rights than men; some others where the laws are not so good for women, notably in the Southern States. It should be our work to see that these laws are more nearly equalized by State and not Federal action."

The matter was referred to the legislative committee, Mrs. Edward White, chairman, which will present a resolution the first reading to be Friday of this week and to be voted upon Thursday morning, the 12th inst.

Another resolution of import, and which is certain to be introduced, having already been drafted and presented by Mrs. E. L. M Tate-Thompson, chairman of antinarcotics and public welfare, under the division of the health department, is in the form of a letter to Stephen Porter, who has been chosen by the government to represent the United States at the opium conference, to be held possibly in Geneva, this summer. Certain clubs, including the California federation, have asked the government to see that the conference is not held in Geneva since Switzerland refuses to co-operate in international relations. The resolution further urges Mr. Porter to bring the United States into line with Great Britain which, at great sacrifice, is limiting the growth of the poppy in India.

OUTLINES DUTIES

"We do not deal with expert medical and legal matters," said Mrs. Winter. "It is our duty to create adequate knowledge concerning these matters of moment to the nation and to the world.

"It is also our duty," she continued, "to make an analysis of what creates great leadership and to help in that creation. There are three things essential in a leader: First, absolute integrity of belief in the movement that leader is promoting; second, a real love for humanity that can not be faked; and third, a wide enough intelligence to discriminate between the important and the piffle."

Mrs. C. S. Selover of Cleveland is the chairman of resolutions and is registered at the Gates. This is one of the most important committees functioning in the convention. She will make her first appearance publicly Friday morning.

Today from 4:30 to 6 in the ballroom of the Biltmore, the Colorado State Federation will give a tea in honor of Mrs. John D. Sherman, one of the candidates for the presidency. This delegation is headed by Mrs. T. A. McHarg, State president.

The Florida federation will give a tea in the music-room in honor of Mrs. W. S. Jennings, another candidate, at the same hour. Mrs. William F. Blackman is the newly elected director from Florida and heads this delegation.

RYAN PRAISES ALIEN LAW

Former Legion Official Says America at Last Is Looking After Own Interests

The most epochal legislation in this country in a generation was enacted when the recent immigration law was passed by Congress and signed by the President, says Oswald Ryan, attorney of Anderson, Ind.

Mr. Ryan, now at the Biltmore, formerly was a member of the executive committee of the American Legion, which has dealt extensively with the problem of immigration. He was also a member of the recent immigration committee, headed by Secretary of Labor Davis, which made an investigation of immigration conditions in Europe.

Mr. Ryan is here to deliver a lecture on the immigration question before a session of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, to be conducted at the Philharmonic Auditorium at 8 p.m. tomorrow.

"The new law is the first effort by our government to put its own interests above those of other nations in dealing with immigration," said Mr. Ryan. "It embodies restrictive and selective principles which it is believed will result in a class of immigrants better fitted to become American citizens than those who have entered under former laws."

The chief aim of the law, Mr. Ryan pointed out, is to restrict admission of foreigners to such racial groups as are most nearly akin to the peop'e who founded the American nation.

Mr. Ryan said the next step in the program to solve the immigration problem involves the adoption of an alien registration system, under which every foreigner will be required to enter his name and other data the moment he lands on American soil, the record thus submitted to remain on file with government authorities who will keep in touch with the alien until such time as he may be prepared for naturalization.

"A tentative plan for such a registration system has been worked out by Secretary Davis," Mr. Ryan said. "Its chief aim is to train the foreigner for American citizenship."

Mr. Ryan suggested that this system would not only produce a class of aliens better fitted for citizenship than those who have become citizens under the old methods, but that it would prove a check to the illega' entry of aliens, which he said is now quite prevalent. He added that a bill providing for a registration system and other changes in the immigration laws probably would be introduced in Congress in the not distant future.

SCHOOL BONDS CARRY EASILY

more than 900, the precincts were consolidated for the school bond election.

All during the day there were parades in which hundreds of school children took part, urging the voters to favor the bonds. Practically every school child in the city, realizing the necessity for the bond money, has been working for the passage of the bonds. Of the 150,000 pupils who make up the actual school attendance, more than 20,000 are on half-time, while thousands of others are crowded in tents, bungalows and makeshift structures. These children have sought to get out a heavy vote, favorable to the issue, to provide buildings and equipment.

School officials, led by Mrs. Dorsey and her assistant, Bruce Findlay, and members of the Board of Education, have been working for months for the success of the bonds. To them and the Citizens Committee of Ten Thousand is due most of the credit for the fight waged for additional school facilities.

ALHAMBRA, June 3.—Three bond issues and one place on the City Commission were voted on here today. The three bond issues were defeated. Twenty-three precincts out of twenty-five resulted in 1743 for the $240,000 issue for the paving of Main street and Valley Boulevard and 1811 against; 1725 for the $50,000 police station bonds and 1860 against; 1716 for the $30,000 bonds for storm drain construction and 1808 against.

P. E. Gibboney, present City Commissioner, was defeated by W. W. Nuzman by a vote of 2304 to 776.

Total registration for the city was more than 7000.

GOVERNOR IS TO LECTURE ON BOULDER

Need for Dam Will be Told to Women Today in Talk by Nevada Executive

J. G. Scrugham, Governor of Nevada, who arrived here from Carson City yesterday, will deliver a lecture on the Boulder Dam project at a luncheon to be given at 12:30 p.m. today at the Biltmore Hotel.

He appears at the invitation of the officers of the Federation of Women's Clubs, now conducting its biennial convention in Los Angeles, the Governor's lecture forming part of today's program.

While he will address himself particularly to the members of the federation, the luncheon will be a public affair, and anyone interested in the Boulder Dam development is invited to be present.

"Through the courtesy of Thomas Ince, motion-picture producer, the lecture will be illustrated with several films and slides, furnishing a visual presentation of the site for the proposed dam and other features pertaining to it," said the Governor. "Some of the photographs were taken from the air."

The Nevada executive, who is an ardent advocate of the building of the dam, said his chief object in giving this talk is to stimulate public interest in the project with a view to hastening action in regard to it.

"I consider the enterprise of the utmost importance to all parties interested and believe the misunderstandings which are delaying action should be cleared up as soon as possible," he said. "I have given the matter considerable study and in my lecture hope to present some new phases of the situation."

and that the tempest had broken two or three weeks ago over nothing of any great consequence.

The meeting last night failed to materialize. There were probably a score of persons assembled at the school building of which number six were officers detailed to keep the peace. They returned to Los Angeles with the report that all was quiet.

the nation's enemies and our enemies.

And the third group is the still larger one of the indifferent and sluggish and idle, who take the priceless gifts of American citizenship and give no thought or energy in return. They are the vulnerable part of the nation. It is on their comfortable indifference that the open enemies count when they plot. It is on their comfortable indifference that the self-exploiters count wher they scheme. They are like flabby muscles of the body, without resisting power. They are our weakness.

Plotter and schemer and sleeper, these are our enemies because they threaten the land we love.

BANDITS IN FOUR NIGHT ROBBERIES

One Mexican Stages Two Hold-ups, Police Advised; Collector is Victim

Four hold-ups, two committed by the same Mexican, were reported to the police last night.

The Mexican bandit got $12 at a Standard Oil station at Lyons and Macy street and $20 at a Shell station at 800 North Main street. He escaped on foot.

Two men in an automobile accosted Louis French, 2737 West Fourteenth street, a collector, at San Marino street and New Hampshire avenue. When he walked across the street one of the men poked a gun in his face and robbed him of $45.

A grocery store operated by C. Myers, 3701 Hallidale avenue, was held up by two men and robbed of $10 and several boxes of cigars. The pair escaped in an automobile.

OIL OPERATOR IN BALM SUIT

Woman Sues Oscar Tucker for Breach of Promise

Asks $50,000 as Result of Failure to Wed

Mrs. Opal Isaacson Charges She Lived as Wife

Declaring she acted as his housekeeper and posed as his wife for four years under his asserted promise to marry her, Mrs. Opal Isaacson yesterday filed suit in the Superior Court for $50,000 damages against Oscar Raymond Tucker, wealthy oil operator, residing in Long Beach.

According to the complaint, Mrs. Isaacson first began to keep house for Tucker in Taft, in June, 1918. She said she and the defendant became engaged February 1, 1919, but as she was not certain that she had obtained a final decree of divorce from Jack Isaacson, the date of their marriage was not fixed definitely. Mrs. Isaacson said Tucker prevailed on her to pose as his wife, and she declared it was understood they would marry as soon as the question of her divorce from Isaacson was decided.

The plaintiff said she received a certified copy of her final decree in December, 1920, and then suggested to Tucker that he keep his promise. Tucker, she said, pointed out it would be embarrassing for them to marry in a community where they had lived as man and wife, and argued the wedding should be postponed until such time as he could arrange his business affairs and they could move to some locality where they were not acquainted.

Mrs. Isaacson said she consented to that proposal, and they moved to Long Beach in July, 1922. The plaintiff averred she then insisted they be married at once, but she declared Tucker failed to give her a definite answer, and they separated in March, 1923.

MASONIC RITES FOR ROBINSON

Local Attorney's Funeral Conducted at Cathedral; Burial Yesterday

Impressive Masonic rites were conducted for O. R. W. Robinson, thirty-third degree Mason and prominent Los Angeles attorney, Monday night at Scottish Rite Cathedral, starting at 9:30 p.m. with the Rite Lodge ceremony. At midnight a thirty-third degree Masonic service, with all the solemn significance connected with that high honor, was conducted. The body was buried yesterday morning at Rosedale Cemetery.

Mr. Robinson, who was 55 years of age, died suddenly of heart disease Friday night at his home, 1235 Fourth avenue. He also was a member of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite Cathedral, of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion, of the Sons of Veterans and the Phi Delta Phi legal fraternity.

He leaves a widow, his mother and a sister. The latter two are in the East.

FASTER AERIAL MAIL PROMISED

Airplanes, flying by night, that will give a thirty-hour mail service between New York and San Francisco, will be placed in service by the government on July 1, according to an announcement by the department of meteorology and aeronautics of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce. Dr. Ford Carpenter is head of the department.

Mail out of Los Angeles will go to Salt Lake and there be transferred to the cross-country planes, which will mean a saving of almost two days' time over the present transcontinental train running time for local mail. In order for Los Angeles to profit by this service it will be necessary for mail to leave this city via the Union Pacific at 10:50 a.m. It will reach Salt Lake at 12:25 p.m., allowing two hours for the transfer of the mail from the station to the air field. The air mail reaching Salt Lake at 3:30 p.m. will reach Chicago at 5:45 o'clock the next morning, according to the schedule planned.

"Air mail under such conditions will have to be specifically designated and bear 16 cents additional postage for each ounce to Chicago and 24 cents to New York," the announcement states.

"If conditions warrant, the Post-office Department to institute the aforesaid mail route, Salt Lake to Los Angeles, mail eastbound will have to leave Los Angeles at midnight. Returning, the mail would leave Salt Lake at 9:45 a.m., reaching Los Angeles between 4 and 5 p.m."

The department further announces that, owing to the excellent train service between Los Angeles and San Francisco, air mail to the latter city alone would not be practicable, as it would require night flying and is out of the question on account of the prohibitive expense of maintaining a beacon system equal to the million-dollar lighting system now in service between Chicago and Cheyenne.

Mail from Los Angeles will be taken from Salt Lake to New York via Cheyenne, North Platte, Omaha, Iowa City and Chicago.

FAREWELL TO DELEGATES

All Grand Council officers of the Order of Arenanum located in Southern California will gather Friday night as part in the farewell celebration to Supreme Sentry Arthur Kennedy and Supreme Representative Robert J. Simpson, both of Los Angeles, who leave on the 10th inst. for Montreal, Can., to attend the forty-sixth session of the Supreme Council, Royal Arcanum. Kennedy was elected Supreme Sentry at Atlantic City last June and will be a candidate for reelection at the coming election.

SCALY BUSINESS

Burglars in a Missouri grocery carried off a platform scale. Trying to silently steal a weigh.

AMONG THE JAZZ

No matter how frail and feeble a woman may look the chances are that she can still carry a tune.

PICKING UP

It was rumored that Carpentier was nearly broke when he came to this country. He seems to be still slightly bent.

GETTING THE FINGER

A nervy woman pointed her finger at a man and made him believe it was a pistol while she robbed the till of his store of all its contents. Ever since the days of Adam when a woman once pointed her finger at a man he was doomed. This merchant was a victim of the inherent qualms of his sex.

THE NEW JERUSALEM

A massive modern hotel is to be built in Jerusalem—the olden. The birthplace of the faith is at last to know the niceties of sanitary plumbing. In the days of Peter if anybody wanted a bath he had to go down to the River Jordan, but now it can be accomplished in a handsome hostelry with hot and cold water provided for every suite. It may seem slightly sacrilegious to find the ancient wailing place faced by a movie theater, but even the Holy Land must accept the advance of science and invention.

FILLING THE GAP

The revenue bill as finally evolved by the political tinkers at the capital has been signed—under protest—by the President. It is accepted as being the best thing available at the present time and under existing circumstances. President Coolidge says that it is a form of tax reduction, but is not tax reform. He hopes that another Congress will be able to cut out the purely political entanglements and remodel the measure along lines of business sanity. This is perhaps too much to expect, but it may still be hoped for.

IN THE CROWD

The researches of traffic experts demonstrate that some of our crossings—like Santa Barbara and Figueroa or Western and Santa Monica Boulevard—carry a greater traffic than any intersection in New York or Chicago. Yet they are outside of what we call our own congested district. There are numbers of crossings on Figueroa street or Western avenue that are passed by more autos in a single hour than would be found on all the streets of Moscow in a year. We are the city of the world's greatest motor congestion and it is no wonder that we always pile up the greatest number of traffic tragedies.

CHARGES REFUTED

The screen industry has been conducting a survey of itself and the unanimous findings are that little or no cruelty is exercised in training and presenting animals in the films. It may look cruel to bump a goat on the bean with a baseball bat, but the chances are the club is stuffed with hay and the animal enjoys the exercise. Sometimes it appears cruel to witness a soubrette chasing a flock of lions up and down the steps of a cheap boarding-house, but this is merely for the purpose of conditioning the brutes for the heavy meal that is to follow. At any rate, a full and complete investigation covering virtually all of the studios would indicate that the only wild animal that got really bumped was Roscoe Arbuckle. If there is any cruelty in the films it is the human beings rather than the animals that feel the harpoon.

ALL ABOUT THE EXPLOSION

The scientists who recently exploded ten tons of melinite at one swoop are still a bit confused over their findings. They were trying to tag and tab the various sound waves, but they found that there are chasms in the ether through which the waves of sound may not percolate. In other words, there are zones of silence. One of these would be a pleasant retreat for a citizen who is aweary of the jazz, but it seems that, although they exist, they cannot be mapped. The explosion was touched off at Limoges, France, and is said to have been the greatest single detonation the world has known. It blew a seventy-foot hole in the ground, but various animals placed in some proximity to the blast were unharmed. The only thing killed was a guinea pig that was smitten by a flying bit of rock. The guinea pig is always the first martyr when there is any killing in the name of science. The odd thing about the detonation was that it was not heard at some points only thirty or forty miles away, yet was plainly apparent in other districts nearly 500 miles distant. The wind did not seem to be responsible for this vagary, either. There were places 200 or more miles distant where the sound was heard against the wind, but the scientists assembled on Eiffel Tower, with their ears acutely trained for the shock, never noticed a rifle. There is still work ahead for the radio in picking up the sound waves and properly herding them, as well as in puncturing the zones of silence.

JUSTICE FOR THE INDIANS

Amidst the confusion of investigations and approaching national conventions, what may prove to be an epochal event in American history, second only to the enfranchisement of the American negro, occurred last week in Washington almost unobserved. It was the passage of an act of Congress conferring citizenship on the American Indian.

This act rights a wrong that was becoming a national scandal. For more than a century a race that has proved itself capable of high cultural development has been kept in a condition of involuntary servitude. Millions of immigrants were received who possessed no more natural abilities than the Indians. Full citizenship was accorded to them after the legal term of probation. The courts were open to them for the redress of wrongs from the day of their arrival.

During all these years citizenship was denied to the Indians. They were subjected to the paternal administration of the Indian Department and became the sport of partisan politics. Every race residing in this country was granted free entry to the courts, except the American Indian. Under the control of the Indian Bureau this free avenue for the redress of grievances was denied to them.

Restrictions unworthy a free and justice-loving people have been removed by the recent act of Congress. It provides that:

> All noncitizen Indians born within the territorial limits of the United States be and are hereby declared to be citizens of the United States.

This bill was passed over the protests of the politicians in the Indian Bureau and in the lower house of Congress. It originally passed the House of Representatives in the following form, in which the trail of the politician is clearly visible:

> The Secretary of the Interior is hereby authorized, in his discretion, under the regulations prescribed by him, to issue a certificate of citizenship to any noncitizen Indian born within the territorial limits of the United States who may make application therefor, and, upon the issuance of any such certificate to any Indian, he or she shall be a citizen of the United States.

But the Senate decided to go the whole way. The act was amended by conferring unrestricted citizenship; and when it went to conference in that form the House concurred.

By legalizing this natural right a double purpose is served: a stain upon just government in the United States is removed and the knell of the Indian Bureau is sounded. While there have been many good men in the Indian Department, the record of a generation shows that it has formed almost continuously a part of the pernicious spoils system.

Frequently has The Times been compelled to condemn the acts of the present Senate. It had sunk so low that it had almost completely lost the confidence of the mass of the American people. Its opposition to the administration, generally dictated by partisanship, envy and personal ambition, has been at the same time opposition to the will of the American people.

But in conferring citizenship on the American Indian it has enacted both a noble and a notable piece of legislation. It recalls Burton's comment, written 300 years ago, on the great Carthaginian, "Hannibal, as he had mighty virtues, so had he many vices; he had two distinct persons in him."

This dual personality applies often to legislative assemblies. There are statesmen of high rank in the present Senate and there are demagogues and self-seekers of low degree. In legislation where their personal interests are not concerned the demagogues and self-seekers may follow the leadership of the statesmen; but, when the public interest comes in conflict with their personal interest, the public interest suffers.

THOSE "INTELLECTUAL ANARCHISTS"

Two boys not yet out of their teens, who name themselves, with pride "intellectual anarchists," recently kidnaped and killed a third. They say they desired to make some experiments with him to test certain medieval theories concerning sex perversion. They intended to torture him to death in order to see just how a human being would die under certain exceptional conditions. "It is no crime to use a human being in the interest of scientific research," said one of them. "It is no more than impaling a beet upon a pin."

A whole nation has been shocked by this cynical disregard for the sacredness of human life. Such callous brutality discloses a degree of human degeneracy lower than that of any beast, reptile, insect or bird. A deed so revolting stuns the emotions; and yet these boys were only putting into practice a recognized theory of the intellectual anarchists.

That human life does not possess a value which human beings are bound to recognize is one of the tenets of extreme radicalism. The Communists assert that morality is only a superstition, a prejudice, that one who listens to the voice of conscience is a weakling.

Young Leopold was saying nothing original when he asserted that "It is no crime to use a human being in the interests of scientific research." He was only repeating what he had read in extreme radical literature. The two youths are simply products of a school of modern ralicalism.

They were both highly educated, holding college degrees; but the instruction they imbibed lacked character. Their perverted mentalities were a mass of negations. They denied the existence of either good or evil. They declined to recognize the right of society to make laws for its own preservation. To them no right existed except that of tooth and claw.

They sought a proof of certain medieval theories; but the demonstration turned out differently from what they expected. Their present plight is proof that their philosophy of negation is fallacious. They denied the existence of remorse and they planned the abduction and murder with all the cynicism of an intellectual anarchist.

But when they attempted to carry it into effect they found their muscles and the brains paralyzed by the very forces that they denied. When they looked into the dead face of the victim their own moral natures revolted. Their hands trembled, their brains wandered. Their physical and moral selves revolted against the purely mental control.

They made a bungling job of their scientifically conceived plans. Hurrying from the scene of the crime they sought to escape from their own consciences, to deaden the voice of nature by overdraughts of alcohol. Each found in his inner conscience the avenger of outraged nature and morals.

The Sadic pleasure they had anticipated in watching the convulsive struggles of their victim failed to materialize. Looking into his dead eyes each was suddenly aware of the curse of Cain.

They richly deserve the death penalty for their crime; but their condemnation carries with it the condemnation of the whole repulsive, inhuman philosophy on which intellectual anarchy is based. It is a deadly poison, a mental narcotic, injurious alike to its addicts and to society.

If there were no cult of intellectual anarchy, of extreme radicalism, that crime would not have been committed. For these boys originated nothing; they only attempted to test anarchistic and Communistic theories. Intellectual anarchy has its addicts in a number of American colleges. Some of the instructors have been sympathetic. Its literature circulates among boys who have not yet reached the years of mature judgment, whose power of reason is not sufficiently developed to detect its fallacy and its horrid repulsiveness.

Three lives probably have been sacrificed to this intellectual Moloch. What has been done is irreparable; but the lesson it teaches is one on which fathers and mothers seeking a college education for their children should seek to comprehend.

THE CONVENTION HUSBANDS

When the lordly Shriners or Elks meet in national convention Shriners' and Elks' ladies of the host city always plan to entertain the visiting Shriners' and Elks' ladies accompanying their august spouses on the trip.

Los Angeles is now entertaining one of the largest women's club conventions ever held—and hundreds of the ladies are accompanied by their husbands. Yet nowhere on the impressive biennial program do we find any plans or consideration for the entertainment of these visiting husbands. Local club husbands do not appear to have risen gallantly and hospitably to the occasion.

It may be, of course, that husbands prefer to wander at will unguided in the outer pale. Yet we can see where a banquet or two and some special masculine entertainment might have improved the quality of our hospitality to them.

The occasion seems to offer such an excellent opportunity for club husbands to get together and commune with each other upon this disturbing condition, by which, according to this one convention alone, nearly 3,000,000 "lords of creation" are, in fact, just "club husbands," and the question decided as to whether it is, indeed, a matter of congratulation or mutual condolence.

Many of these visiting husbands are men of parts and influence in their own home towns—bankers, lawyers, physicians, merchants, industrial magnates. But on occasions of this sort their individuality and achievements are utterly eclipsed, their individualities submerged. Time was when such a condition was unthinkable. It is only on an occasion of this kind that we realize to what an extent times have changed. Here are thousands upon thousands of wives in solemn conclave upon matters in which their spouses are not invited to participate, other than to read the result of the deliberations in the morning paper and to take respectful note of decisions reached. Any consultation with them is strictly unofficial and domestic—even as was once the case in masculine conclaves.

In fact, club husbands appear to be overlooking a dazzling opportunity for mutual consultation and condolence.

THE DEATH RAY

Harry Grindell Matthews of England has succeeded in achieving temporary notoriety in Europe, whether his vaunted invention turns out to be a devil or a dud. He has managed to interest two governments in his so-called death ray to the point where they are bidding real money for possession of the secret.

At present the demonstration of this alleged instrument of unlimited destruction has not been sufficiently impressive to coax any considerable sum of money from the British government. So the inventor (with more money-hunger than patriotism in evidence) has taken his death-ray secret to Paris to see whether the French government will prove more generous.

Should it turn out that the death ray will do all that has been claimed for it Mr. Matthews will have sold his country to its ancient enemy, his only excuse for doing so being that he offered it first of all to his home government. On this score he is being criticised severely in the British press. Those newspapers that do not editorially scorch the inventor blister the British officials.

This remarkable method of projecting force through ether will put mortars and airplanes out of commission and is incomparable for destroying human life. Such at least is the contention of Mr. Matthews and the company trying to finance his invention. If the death ray could accomplish one tithe of the annihilation of man and machinery claimed for it it would be able to let loose on the world a flood of terror that might engulf the whole human race in a common ruin.

In that case no single government should be intrusted with the dread secret. Perhaps a truly representative League of Nations might be able to insure universal peace if it possessed this club to hold over the head of any nation that tried to provoke war. Unless it could be employed only as a policeman uses his gun against criminals the secret of the death ray had better die with its originator.

But there is no need at present for anyone to lie awake at night dreading the consequences of this well-advertised instrument of death. After seeing it in operation the British government valued it at £1000.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

Just to Advertise Themselves

Another foreign lecturer has returned to his native shores after speaking on American women. He spent two weeks in the country and seemed to know all about it and proclaimed his acquired knowledge from the platform. It seems no foreigner can spend two weeks in the United States and acquire such an insight into the psychological, social and political character of the women here that he can stand up as an authority. The same thing applies to Americans going to Europe. We have had plenty of instances lately of a Congressman going to Europe, spending a couple of weeks on the continent, where he had to talk to people through interpreters, coming back home and starting on a lecture tour announcing the cure for all of Europe's ills. It takes experts, backed by expert opinions and expert research, to discover what ails the distressed continent. And, like the American women, the people of Europe do not care a rap what lecturers say about them.

"Oh, Skinny, Hurry Up and Look!"

Siberia has produced a wonder child. The boy is 4 years old, the son of a Vladivostok doctor. He has a full beard and is able to throw a man in a wrestling match. Scientists have set to work and examined the prodigy. They find that he has an excessive development of the thyroid, pancreatic and other glands and is also suffering from a "mysterious malady." We think we know half a dozen youngsters of the young Siberian's age who would gladly suffer from the same mysterious malady. It is said that Victor, for such is the highly suitable name of the boy, has the mentality of a child, but can choke his small playmates black in the face. With that Victor as their companion Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn would have conquered the world.

RUSSIAN BOOKS

BY KATHERINE ALBERT

Admittedly, I am a perfectly hopeless person who will never become a highbrow because there is something about Russian literature as a whole which appeals to my American sense of humor. There is only one exception to this and that is Turgenev. I am told by a Russian friend of mine that it is pronounced Toor-gen-eff (accent on the second syllable, hard g, the double f has something of the quality of a v.) That is the nearest I can come to writing it.

I know that in this age, when all the intelligensia are penning reams of encomiums about the Russians, I am a back number when I say that with one glorious exception (and even sometimes that exception) Russian literature is funny to me. It is so grave, so serious, so utterly lacking in one touch of comedy.

The Russians themselves are like that; and the medal for denseness which has for so long been pinned unjustly on the English should be forthwith handed over to our Russian cousins. Perhaps they could understand a well-defined joke. I have never put them to the test; I do not joke with my Russian friends, but I am giving them the benefit of the doubt. However, I am sure that utter nonsense (the highest form of humor) would be unintelligible to them. There are no Lewis Carolls in Russian literature.

The only example of what was evidently considered Russian humor that I have ever witnessed was a theatrical production, "Le Chat Noir." This was presented very much in the manner of the show we call a review and most of the numbers were supposed to be humorous ones. The gay numbers were pathetic. They were not funny; they were not nonsensical; they were merely elemental, the sort of thing to provoke the mirth of a 9-year-old child.

I had seen Ed Wynn in "The Perfect Fool" a few days before and I realized that the Russians may have us beaten in many ways, but when it comes to humorous entertainment we make them look like the rank amateurs they are. In writing all this I realize that comedy is the most untranslatable thing in the world. The Russians cannot help their lack of humor. It is natural for them to be elemental in the play arts. They could not be otherwise; but this fact, true as it is, does not keep their literature from being funny.

Maxim Gorky writes of the beginning of Socialism in Russia in his book, "Mother." The mother suffers, her son suffers, everyone suffers and yet you do not care. I did not care what became of the mother and her son half as much as I cared that Jeanot (Trilby's little brother) was not taken on the picnic one Palm Sunday. (And Du Maurier's "Trilby" is considered not even good literature!) In fact, Gorky's "Mother" left me wondering if revolution is not the most happy state of mind, after all, for the mother's unrest as a revolutionist brought her more pleasure than her dull, sodden life before had brought her. The characters suffer, suffer, suffer and you don't give a damn.

Turgenev is the exception. He is the only one of the Russians who can make you exclaim, "Why, I have felt that. That character's experience has been like mine." Turgenev is more human than Russian. He has written six novels which, he requests, be read in their entirety and in the order in which they were written. His idea was to trace the development of the Russian mind from one state to another. They are by no means sequels one to the other; each is a complete novel in itself and each introduces different characters. "Dimitri Rudin," "A Nobleman's Retreat," "On the Eve," "Fathers and Sons," "Smoke" and "Virgin Soil" are the titles and the order in which they should be read.

Nezhdanov (try to pronounce it,) the hero of "Virgin Soil," is a real person with "two men warring in his breast." He sees both sides of a question and is constantly assailed by doubts, which is an unusual thing for the Russian hero who always sees his duty and does it with no other thought.

Dostoyevsky is morbid, neurotic, depressing. "The Possessed" is a lengthy novel which appeals to you intellectually, perhaps, if you are intellectual, but which leaves you emotionless. You never care about Russian characters. They always go about doing complex things which mean nothing.

Of the older writers, I am told that Gogol is almost too Russian to translate. "Tarus Bulga" was the only thing of his that I was able to wade through. It is a blood-and-thunder story of kasak life on the steppes, interesting to no people but Russians.

Tolstoi is a household god in Russia. I started "The Kreutzer Sonata" with a thrill of expectancy (because I love the music of that name so much) only to find that the thing should have been an essay instead of a novel. He used the novel form, created incidents and characters, only to put across his theme. "Anna Karrinina" is a better piece of work. I am told to read "War and Peace." It comes in four volumes, but I shall be just. I shall plow my way through it and suspend judgment until then.

"I suppose you women [illegible] you're going to run the world [illegible] this biennial animal you're [illegible] so much about."

"No, not run it; just walk [illegible] been going on a jazzy run [illegible] by war quite long enough."

"Well, who's going to [illegible] sox of the men while the [illegible] are looking after the plans [illegible] world? I suppose they will [illegible] to do it themselves."

"Why not? Fifty-fifty [illegible] days."

Bill gave a mock groan, but [illegible] was a little more acidity than [illegible] to his tones when he told [illegible] Bill to take his elbows [illegible] table. Smash went the boy's [illegible] of milk and at the same time [illegible] echoed a crash from the [illegible] Maid Molly, who is a special [illegible] of the family with special [illegible] leges, put her head through [illegible] swinging door.

"It's that milk bottle you left [illegible] the edge of the table, Mrs. [illegible] she said in decidedly acrimonious tones as she came in to [illegible] the milk and talk about milk [illegible] tles as the theme of the Ro[illegible] vention.

"I saw Mrs. Baxter's chauffeur [illegible] n, with strawberry jam in [illegible] milk bottles yesterday when [illegible] went to borrow some butter," [illegible] Molly. "I should think [illegible] would have the decency to [illegible] them back; but not Mrs. Baxter. [illegible] She's a sponge."

"Sponges and borrowed butter," [illegible] commented Bill briefly.

"Who pays for all the broken [illegible] and unreturned milk bottles in the [illegible] world?" Aunt Ellen asked, [illegible] up the theme in a sort of [illegible] table symposium.

"The men do when they [illegible] bills," said Bill.

"The women do who make [illegible] theirs," said I.

"How are you going to [illegible] with that mountain of [illegible] you've picked?" and without waiting for me to explain that [illegible] Lovelace had promised to take [illegible] to the convention in her coupe [illegible] said, "I'll take you down and [illegible] for you when you call me [illegible] You're sure to be tired and I'll [illegible] my lunch at the club."

And I darned sox after the [illegible] session.

"Where are those sox you mended?" asked Bill from the [illegible] mirror the next day. "When [illegible] the Sea of Galilee?" asked [illegible] from the screen porch, where [illegible] was doing a get-your-lesson-[illegible] stunt before Sunday-school.

"In the lower right-hand corner," I answered Bill.

"In Palestine," I answered [illegible]

"You might as well say [illegible] dise, for that's the only place [illegible] club women's sox will be [illegible] was Bill's pessimistic comment [illegible] he fumbled through the [illegible] drawer of the chiffonier. [illegible] from Billy came: "Mother [illegible] were wrong about the Sea of [illegible] flee. It's in the upper right-hand [illegible] corner of the map instead of the [illegible] lower left."

And so, as far as we were concerned, we started the "biennial animal" on the same old [illegible] amicable misunderstanding, [illegible] with a strong hope for [illegible] tional as well as inter-Nye [illegible]

THE PANSY'S RESURRECTION

Lying one day in a flower [illegible]
I heard a brown butterfly,
With gold-spotted wings,
Whispering secrets to a group
Of bright-eyed pansies.
And the butterfly said:
I, too, was a pansy,
Anchored to earth
And very happy—
But, oh, how I longed to fly!

And a child passed by
And took me up
And gave me to one he loved.
And soon, to my delight, I [illegible]

And her breast too warm—
And my colors faded.
And I went to sleep.

And when I woke,
In the sunlit morn,
I found that I could move [illegible]
Quickly from place to place.
Oh, sisters, then I felt a thrill
That I had never known before.
And then I thought:
Since I can move,
What power should hinder [illegible]
flight?
Then, swift as thought, I [illegible] aloft—
And, lo! the blue air was my [illegible]

And now I've come to [illegible]

Big Bill's grapefruit juice had misbehaved at the breakfast table. He'd got it in the eye. Or I'm sure he wouldn't have said it in just that tone.

"I suppose you women think you're going to run the world with this biennial animal you're talking so much about."

"No, not run it; just walk it. It's been going on a jazzy run scared by war quite long enough."

"Well, who's going to darn the sox of the men while the women are looking after the peace of the world? I suppose they will have to do it themselves."

"Why not? Fifty-fifty goes these days."

Bill gave a mock groan, but there was a little more acidity than usual to his tones when he told little Bill to take his elbows off the table. Smash went the boy's glass of milk and at the same time re-echoed a crash from the kitchen. Maid Molly, who is a special friend of the family with special privileges, put her head through the swinging door.

"It's that milk bottle you left on the edge of the table, Mrs. Bill," she said in decidedly accusatory tones as she came in to mop up the milk and talk about milk bottles as the theme of the Nye convention.

"I saw Mrs. Baxter's shelves full, with strawberry jam in your milk bottles yesterday when I went to borrow some butter," said Molly. "I should think people would have the decency to give them back; but not Mrs. Baxter. She's a sponge."

"Sponges and borrowed butter," commented Bill briefly.

"Who pays for all the broken and unreturned milk bottles in the world?" Aunt Ellen asked, taking up the theme in a sort of round-table symposium.

"The men do when they foot the bills," said Bill.

"The women do who return theirs," said I.

"Who pays for all the busted tires that broken glass pricks?" asked Ralph.

And Peggy, who is a freshman in high school and has just had her first lovers' quarrel, said: "I wonder who pays for all the broken hearts in the world?"

"Christ does," said grandma very low and little Bill laughed. But he washed his ears and behind them before he went to school. Peggy called up her chum and called off the tennis for after school.

"I'll come home and get dinner if Molly takes her afternoon off," she said, and practiced two hours instead of one.

Ralph went out to hoe the row of corn beside the orange orchard and Molly did not scold a bit.

"How are you going to manage with that mountain of flowers you've picked?" and without waiting for me to explain that Mrs. Lovelace had promised to take me to the convention in her coupe Bill said, "I'll take you down and come for you when you call me up. You're sure to be tired and I'll take my lunch at the club."

"You might as well say in Paradise, for that's the only place where club women's sox will be mended," was Bill's pessimistic comment as he fumbled through the upper drawer of the chiffonier. And later from Billy came: "Mother, you were wrong about the Sea of Galilee. It's in the upper right-hand corner of the map instead of the lower left."

And so, as far as we were concerned, we started the "biennial animal" on the same old basis of amicable misunderstanding, but with a strong hope for international as well as inter-Nye peace.

Contractors in Annual Dinner Tomorrow Eve

Contractors' cares will be forgotten for a few brief hours next Thursday night when the men who have built Los Angeles and much of the Southland gather in the ballroom of the Biltmore Hotel for the fifth annual banquet and jubilee of the Southern California chapter, Associated General Contractors of America.

All arrangements for the affair are completed and promise has been given by the entertainment committee that the program will be more elaborate than any previous function sponsored by the builders' organization. There will be a short talk by the chapter president, William Simpson. J. C. Edwards, former head of the association, will act as master of ceremonies.

A committee which will welcome the banquet guests as they enter the ballroom is composed of Thomas Haverty of the Thomas Haverty Company; Godfrey Edwards, of Edwards, Wildey & Dixon, and J. A. Crook.

Chief Scott's Estimate Cut by Committee

A total of $350,000 was lopped off yesterday by the budget committee of the City Council from Fire Chief Scott's estimate of funds needed to operate his department the coming fiscal year which begins July 1.

Mr. Scott asked for an appropriation of $3,456,118, which was $674,579 in excess of the amount granted his department for the last fiscal year. He appeared before the committee yesterday and explained that a greater sum was needed this year because new fire stations are to be established.

Another cut of $350,000 must be effected in the budget to run all city departments for the coming fiscal year, it was stated, in order to bring the city's estimated expenditures within the $18,000,000 income the city expects to receive during the fiscal year.

CRIME AGAINST GIRL DENIED BY J. Y. LARUE

We who blend and roast M·J·B Coffee know the can't-be-copied flavor will always show up in the cup—no matter how you make it or how you drink it. They are caused by the same ever-present staphlococci pus germs that are on the skin and that cause the external styes and boils and pimples when there is lowered resistance.

CHALAZIONS

A chalazion is also an infection of these Meibomian glands, but the infection in this case does not seem to be due to the virulent and quick pus-forming germs. It is not known whether there is any specific germ that causes chalazions but, whatever they are, they produce a slower and more chronic inflammatory condition.

A small lump will begin on the lid and slowly increase until perhaps it is the size of a pea. Sometimes this will last for months and sometimes years. These chalazions do not seem to cause anywhere near the disturbance that the acute infections do, and oftentimes a physician is sought simply on account of the disfigurement.

The operation consists in pulling the lid back, making a little cut in the mucous membrane and evacuating the contents. Usually the cavity has to be scraped out to get the diseased tissue also. This is done under local anesthesia and is not at all a dangerous operation in the skilful hands of an experienced surgeon or eye specialist.

PRISONERS FIX AUTOS AUCTIONED BY POLICE

Working with borrowed equipment, prisoners at the Lincoln Heights Jail have repaired four automobiles which had been seized by police so the machines, when sold at police auction, brought higher prices, so Jailer John L. Shand, with the approval of Chief Vollmer, yesterday asked that $200 be appropriated for material for the prisoners' repair shop. In effect, the shop is a vocational school for prisoners and the Board of Education already has assigned an instructor to direct the prisoners in their mechanical work.

Boy Scout Gets Trophy for His Courtesy on Car

In recognition of unusual and persistent courtesies performed almost daily on the West Adams street-car line, Jack Porter, 5347 Geer street, of Troop 63, Boy Scouts of Los Angeles, was presented with a silver engraved trophy in the presence of his troop by A. Bowditch Blunt, deputy City Clerk.

Jack Porter

For a long time, Mr. Blunt has watched Scout Porter on the street car. He traced the boy to Polytechnic High School and learned his name and address through a bulletin issued by the principal. He examined his school record and discovered many other good deeds by interviewing neighbors. Without advance notice he appeared at troop headquarters with the cup.

"This is not an award for the deeds that have been done," Mr. Blunt said, "but more a means of directing the attention of other boys to how refreshing it is to witness these continued courtesies especially when the acts were supposedly unwitnessed and with no thought of recognition."

DANCE WITH MEALS PERMIT TO STAND

PARIS INN OWNERS DIDN'T KNOW DINERS CARRIED LIQUOR, IS RULING

The Board of Police Commissioners declined yesterday to revoke the public dancing-with-meals permit held by the Paris Inn at 1103 Market street, where the police conducted a raid in April and arrested a number of diners with liquor in their possession. The permit was held by Balzano, Bravo & Macagno, and the board held that the owners of the place had no knowledge of the fact that their patrons brought liquor to the cafe.

Two poolroom proprietors found themselves in a peck of trouble at the hands of the police board yesterday as the result of the police finding liquor on the premises of the license-holders. The poolroom permit of Hazen Zubovich at 665 North Spring street was suspended for thirty days, with instructions from the board that Zubovich must dispose of his business.

Joe Bottole, who had a poolroom at 647 North Spring street, admitted liquor was found on the premises and that he had paid a Police Court fine of $240 for this violation. The board revoked his permit.

STRAIGHT 5-CENT FARE FOR SUBURBAN RAILWA

INCREASE ON GLENDALE AND MONTROSE LINE; DEFICIT SHOWN LAST YEAR

Commuters on the Glendale and Montrose Railway between Eagle Rock and Glendale no longer can ride for 3 cents and a fraction. A straight fare of 5 cents over the route was authorized by the State Railroad Commission yesterday.

The railway for a number of years has issued a 30-ride family ticket for $1, according to the commission's findings. Evidence submitted at the hearing on the company's application for cancellation of these tickets, however, disclosed that at the end of last year a deficit of $61,116.41 was outstanding against the company.

LAUGHS ARE WORTH REAL MONEY NOW

Chance to Swell Funds is Offered in Film Contest of "The Times"

Anyone in need of a little ready money may gather in the cash by the simple process of springing a good joke on the Local Laugh Editor of The Times. If it is good enough to win a place on the "Local Laughs" film, produced weekly by The Times for the enjoyment of motion-picture audiences in Southern California, it will win a prize of $5, $3, $2 or one of the twelve $1 prizes given each week.

Here are two contributions which missed being among the "fortunate fifteen" by narrow margins:

A Chinese truck driver recently presented the following bill for services rendered:

10 comes,
at 50c a went,
Total, $5.

"That isn't an engagement. That's an option."

MRS. C. G. WETHERILLE,
1050 Cudahy avenue, Los Angeles.

Among the numerous contributions received every day are some which remind of the young author who said to the publisher:

"I suppose, sir, you are familiar with my jokes?"

"Oh, yes," replied the publisher. "I was familiar with them before you were born."

Every joke sent in is considered by the committee but many of them are laid aside because of their vintage. Make your laughs original. Material for good jokes or witticisms is cropping up constantly in the home and office, and on the street.

Say it in thirty words or less. Use the coupon inside and address it to Local Laugh Editor, The Times.

CREW IN HEROIC RESCUE AT SEA

Tanker Takes Thirty-seven from Ship in Gale

Chief Officer is Praised for Manning Lifeboat

Frenzied, Mutinous Sailors Had Disabled Vessel

First news of the rescue in mid-Atlantic during a seventy-five-mile northwesterly gale of the mutinous crew of the sinking Italian steamer Pelotas was brought to this port yesterday by the British tank steamer San Gaspar, which effected the rescue while en route here from London. Chief Officer J. W. Tozer yesterday was praised by his fellow officers of the San Gaspar for his heroic action in lowering a lifeboat fifty-eight feet into the raging seas and going to the assistance of the thirty-seven helpless mariners who then refused to jump to safety.

Mariners and shipping men who inspected the log of the San Gaspar yesterday regard it as miraculous that no lives were lost during the rescue, effected during a gale and in raging seas and with the giant San Gaspar riding high in ballast.

Five other ships in the vicinity at the time the Pelotas broadcast her first SOS call hove to before the gale, unable to proceed to assist the sinking steamer. They included the Swedish cruiser Fylgia, the American steamer West Cawthon and the Japanese freighter Morioka Maru.

OIL STILLS WATERS

Capt. H. J. Mitchell, commanding the San Gaspar, was forced by the storm to stand by the sinking Pelotas for a full day after he had proceeded to her in answer to her distress calls. The transfer was finally made after several hundred barrels of fuel oil had been pumped on the surface of the sea.

Capt. Mitchell requested Capt. Gaisberger of the Pelotas to launch his lifeboats and proceed to the rescuing ship. The Italian master replied that his crew was "mutinous and out of hand and refused to leave the ship."

Chief Officer Tozer and six men of the San Gaspar then launched a boat down the side of the empty tanker. When the boat reached the sinking vessel the distressed mariners refused to jump. The San Gasper's boat finally proceeded back to the ship, after which, in desperation, fifteen seamen from the Italian ship launched a boat and were taken on board the San Gaspar.

LOWERS BOAT IN RAGING ATLANTIC

Chief Officer J. W. Tozer

VESSEL VANISHES

They refused to return to the aid of their stranded shipmates. The remainder of the crew finally coming off in three life rafts and were picked up by the men of the San Gaspar. While being thus rescued the second officer of the Pelotas was washed off a raft into the sea and was saved from drowning by Carpenter Andrew Michelsor of the San Gaspar, after a half-hour fight.

The incident took place 1000 miles east of Bermuda, where the crew of the Pelotas was landed five days later by the San Gaspar. The sinking ship was a day later reported to have vanished by passing vessels.

The Pelotas, built in 1900, was a steamer of 5666 net tons. On her fatal voyage she was en route from Norfolk to Trieste with a coal cargo and was to have been scrapped upon arrival.

Officers of the San Gaspar declared that the disabled ship could have limped into Bermuda but that the crew had mutinied and, refusing to proceed, had disabled the steering gear.

S. L. Kreider yesterday was appointed by Kermit Roosevelt, son of the late President, as Southern California agent of the Roosevelt Steamship Company of New York. Kermit Roosevelt is the president of the line and personally selected Mr. Kreider as the agent in this section.

The Roosevelt Line is conducted in conjunction with the "K" line, a combination of Japanese shipping interests composed of the Kokusai Kisen Kaisha, the Kawasaki Kisen Kaisha and the Kawasaki Dock Yards Company, Limited.

His appointment as Southern California agent, Mr. Kreider stated, will mean that a new line will enter Los Angeles Harbor to operate in the Orient trade. Five motorships of the Roosevelt Line are now en route to Los Angeles Harbor to begin the service, he stated. These are the Silver Elm, Silver Pine, Silver Larch, Silver Cedar and Silver Oak. More of these motorships are under construction and when the service is fully established the ships of this line will call at Los Angeles Harbor twice a month, Mr. Kreider stated.

WAR ON TONGS IS THREATENED

Lottery Payment Refusal is New Strife Center

Officers' Raid is Said Part of Plot to Get $9000

Fake Ticket Use is Charged; Bay City Gang Here

Feeling aroused among young Chinese by the refusal of a Chinatown lottery company to pay a $9000 prize to one of their number was admitted yesterday by police department heads familiar with that district to have greatly aggravated an already tense situation and to have increased the possibility of a deadly tong war.

The refusal to pay the prize, it was learned yesterday, was because the company charged a conspiracy by use of a fraudulent ticket. Linked in the charges is a police officer, who is declared to have learned the winning number in an asserted fake raid last Wednesday.

According to the charges said to have been laid before Chief of Police Vollmer, the officer led a raid on the asserted gambling game. After learning the winning number the officer is asserted to have marked a $5 ticket to win the capital prize of $9000, and to have turned over all tickets to the operators of the place.

After the officer returned the tickets he is asserted to have released all of the Chinese with the exception of one man who was taken to the City Jail.

Some time later, it is charged, a young Chinese recently arrived from San Francisco and said to have been associated with other young Bay City Chinese, appeared at the lottery headquarters with the asserted fraudulent ticket. His ticket was said to have been a duplicate of the one placed in the box by the officer.

The young Chinese, it is said, are members of a throng of about 150 who were said to have recently been run out of San Francisco. Their presence in Chinatown has been known to the police for some time, it is said, and the vigilance of the Chinatown squad has been directed to keeping a constant outlook for trouble.

Beyond admitting that the situation is critical and that the fullest investigation of the charge against the officer would be conducted, police department heads refused to comment on the matter.

The police officer, whose name was not divulged by the police, according to reports from other sources, recently attended a meeting of the "Six Companies," representatives of larger lottery companies, and denied that the raid was staged as a part of a conspiracy.

Meanwhile, it is said, all lottery games in Chinatown have been closed pending developments in the asserted threats of the young Chinese.

Vanderbilt Sued for Damages by Star Company

Damages estimated at more than $143,000 were asked yesterday in an infringement of copyright suit filed in United States District Court against Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., Vanderbilt Newspapers, Inc., and the Illustrated Daily News Publishing Company, Inc. The plaintiff is the Star Company, publisher of the New York American, one of the Hearst chain.

On March 19 last, it is asserted, there appeared in the American and other papers a copyrighted editorial. On March 24, the complaint continues, the Illustrated Daily News reprinted the editorial in an advertisement of stock of the Vanderbilt Newspapers, Inc.

The complaint declares on information and belief that 143,158 copies of the paper containing the advertisement were circulated and estimates damages at $1 for each copy. An accounting is demanded and all of the profits, if any. The compaint was filed by Lawler & Degnan and Alex T. Sokolow.

SALESMEN TO CELEBRATE

There will be a jollification night Saturday at the Elite ballroom, 615 South Flower street, for 1000 salesmanship students and graduates of La Salle Extension University. The affair is by invitation only. Gold honor buttons will be given students who increased their income 100 per cent or more and there will be a program of music, speeches and dancing.

MRS. WILLIS TERMED SANE

Arguments Begin After Testimony by Dr. Parkins, Defense Alienist, Is Received

The defense in the trial of Mrs. Margaret Willis, charged with the murder of Dr. B. B. Baldwin, closed its case yesterday after its own witness, Dr. Victor Parkins, an alienist, took the witness stand and declared the accused woman to be sane.

Dr. Parkins was the last witness for the defense and shortly after he had given his opinion the taking of testimony ended and the prosecution began its argument before the jury.

Dr. Parkins declared his examination of Mrs. Willis left no doubt in his mind of her sanity. Under questions put to him by S. S. Hahn, defence counsel, he stated, that no normal woman, guilty of the murder, could have acted as she did shortly after the murder, while she talked calmly with a stranger while sitting but a few feet from the closet in which the body was found. Dr. Parkins called Mrs. Willis's condition "emotional apathy."

In opening the argument for the prosecution Dep. Dist.-Atty. Dennison declared testimony had been given to prove that Mrs. Willis murdered Dr. Baldwin for possession of his car and for the money on his person, and not in defense of her honor. He called the insanity plea of the defense "both monstrous and nonsensical" and called the introduction of Mrs. Nelson, former inmate of Norwalk Psycopathic Institution, as a witness for the defense, a method of cheating Mrs. Baldwin of the justice which should be hers.

While the prosecution sketched the murder, Mrs. Willis shrank slightly in her chair, looking repeatedly over her shoulder at Harold Willis, her son, and whispered every minute or two, "Are you all right?" All during the testimony he sat without moving except to glance at his mother as the prosecution called her the name of murderess. Each time she met his glance and smiled reassuringly.

At the close of his argument, Dep. Dist.-Atty. Sennison asked members of the jury to be true to their oath.

During the morning the defense brought forth several witnesses and asked the striking out of all testimony relating to the woman's gloves which were found in the Willis car after the murder. Judge Crail sustained the objection and that portion of the testimony was struck out.

This morning S. S. Hahn, attorney for the defense, will commence his argument to the jury, and it is thought that the case will go to the jury by night.

FIGHT RAGES ON BIMINI SLOUGH

Meetings For and Against Park Bonds Nightly

Factory Permits Withheld Pending Vote Tuesday

Opponents Term Price for Land Far Too High

The $475,000 district election next Tuesday to vote on the question of issuing bonds for the purchase of twenty acres of land near Fourth street and Vermont avenue, long known as "Bimini Slough" or "Bimini Gully," and its development as a public park, promises to be an exciting one, as mass meetings are being conducted nightly both for and against the project. The boundary lines of the district which will vote on the bonds are Wilshire Boulevard, Melrose avenue, Hobart Boulevard and Rampart Boulevard.

For many years this property has been an "eyesore" in the district, which is built up with expensive homes and which includes the Westlake School for Girls. From time to time, there has been discussion of developing the land for a public park, and experts of the Park Commission said that the property would lend itself to this development. Recently there was before the City Council an application for permission to build an ice manufacturing plant on one corner of the land. The protestants against the ice plant were told by the Council that the land as it stood was valuable only for industries and if they did not want manufacturing plants there, now was the time to develop the land as a park. The property owners accepted the challenge and organized the Wilshire Park Association to sponsor the project, and as soon as the Council saw that the home owners in the district were in earnest the application for the ice plant was denied, until the outcome of the park bond election was settled.

PRICE IS REDUCED

The officers of the Wilshire Park Association are Gerald Fitzgerald, president, J. E. Whitman, secretary, Allan H. Crary, treasurer, and members of the executive committee are F. L. Clark, Miss F. De Laguna, D. K. Edwards, Sidney Graves, Harold Janss, James G. Scarborough, Jr., M. B. Silberberg, Baker Smith, Seymour Tally, Richard Wills, R. L. Tatum, R. A. Theobold, and Miss J. Vance. The park project has been indorsed by the City Planning Commission, Ebell Club, Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, Vermont-Beverly Association and the Los Angeles Realty Board, members of the park association stated yesterday.

The first estimated price of the property was $665,000, but members of the association negotiated with the owners of the property and were able to obtain 9.9 acres of the twenty acres desired at the appraisal set by the Realty Board of $23,430 an acre, and finally options were obtained for a total of fifteen acres at a valuation of $267,500. The remaining five acres are expected to cost under condemnation proceedings about $23,000 or $24,000 an acre. So that the land will cost not more than $460,000 and probably less, and $15,000 is allowed by the Council for expenses incidental to the project, including damages to existing properties. The sponsors of the project declare that this price is reasonable and in accord with disinterested appraisals.

Opposition to the park bonds has come, however, from the Dayton Heights Civic Center, the Melrose-avenue Community Association and the Rampart Heights Improvement Association. These organizations conducted a mass-meeting last night at the school house at Second street and Hobart Boulevard where speeches were made asking for a "No" vote next Tuesday on the thirty-year park bonds.

ISSUE STATEMENT

A statement issued by the three associations opposing the park bonds said:

"The three associations draw their membership from the entire northern portion of this assessment district, and our opposition to this bond issue is based on the following facts:

"First: It is intended to expend this huge sum in purchasing land for park purposes in a district admirably served by two of the finest parks in Los Angeles, namely LaFayette Park and Westlake Park.

"Second: The proposed park will be so located that it will be inaccessible to the majority of the people of the district and of no measurable benefit to the people of the city at large. The only ones who will derive any real benefit are the few whose homes adjoin or are in the immediate vicinity of the proposed park and who are actively promoting the proposition.

"Third: The amount stated above as the intended purchase price of the land is beyond all reason, considering the nature of the property to be acquired.

"Fourth: The project is a useless and unworthy one, adding unnecessary and burdensome assessments to the already heavy debts of the taxpayers of the district.

"The members of these associations are uniformly proud of their city, anxious to support all needed improvements, favorable to police, fire, water and school bonds, and willing to pay their just proposition of such issues until it hurts. They feel that such issues as this park assessment lessen their power to aid worthy causes and tend to increase their taxes and assessments to a point where their homes will be jeopardized."

WHICH WILL WIN?

MARY PICKFORD MAY PLAY "PETER PAN"

By Grace Kingsley

It looks fairly likely that Mary Pickford will play Peter Pan. Jesse Lasky and Mrs. Lasky departed yesterday for Europe, taking with them various tests that have been made of different aspirants for the role in the Barrie story. Mr. Lasky said that he was not going to Europe to confer with Mary Pickford on playing the role as has been rumored, but he admitted that he was taking all the tests so far made to show them to J. M. Barrie.

It is know that Mr. Barrie expressed himself at one time as desirous that Miss Pickford should play the role. She admitted to me, when she returned from a previous trip abroad, during which she met Barrie many times and had tea with him at his Thames apartment, that he had been kind enough to say that he wished very much to have her play the part. It goes without saying that she would like to do it. It is known that she held a long conference with Adolph Zukor, head of the Paramount, while in New York. It is a possibility, of course, that a question of money may enter into the matter.

Hobnobbing with royalty in Spain is causing Douglas Fairbanks and Miss Pickford to dally in that sunny land, presumably. At any rate, a cable received at Fairbanks's studio here from the lively Doug recites that the have been delayed in Spain. Doug states that the United Artists are opening new offices in that country, and that they were unable to return to Paris on May 25, as per schedule.

"Hope to leave Paris for Scandinavian tour by June 2," the cable states. "Congratulate Chuck Lewis on decathlon.

Chuck Lewis was assistant director on "The Thief of Bagdad," and is Doug's candidate for the Olympic Games. He has been training with Charlie Paddock at the Pickford-Fairbanks Studios on a track built especially for Paddock by Doug. Lewis recently won first place in the decathlon at the Los Angeles Olympic tryouts and is now on his way to New York to compete in the final tryouts there. If he wins he will go on to Paris as America's representative in that event, and Doug and Mary will be in the grand stand, rooting for his to break an Olympic record.

In the meantime Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fairbanks, who accompanied Mary and Doug abroad, will return to Hollywood shortly.

WALTER HIERS STARS FOR COMEDY COMPANY

One of the most cheerful bits of news that has reached this city for some time comes in the announcement that Walter Hiers, popular comedian of the heavyweight type, has signed a contract to make a series of two-reel pictures, to be known as the Walter Hiers Comedies. This announcement was received from the New York office of Educational Film Exchange, where Hiers has just closed a contract with E. W. Hammons, official of the motion-picture organization.

The series will include six two-reelers. They are to be made at the Christie Studios and Walter is leaving New York today en route to this city, where he plans to start the first picture about June 12. Under the terms of his contract, the first of the series will be released through Educational in September. The comedian will also be permitted to appear occasionally in feature-length pictures during the term of the contract, which does not call for continuous time.

Hiers's last screen work here was as a featured player in the comedy, "Hold Your Breath." After completion of that picture, he embarked on a seven-week personal appearance tour. It was during the production of "Hold Your Breath" that the comedy player was advised by Al Christie that the two-reel market could make good use of his services. Hiers agreed to sign with Education if he could arrange to make his pictures at Christie Studio.

Sam Wood to Produce

Sam Wood is to make pictures independently. The director has decided upon this course after many years' association with some of the biggest organizations in the industry.

The director is now busily engaged reading several stories which he intends bringing to the silver sheet in the near future. He has returned to the Lasky studios to produce "The Female," starring Betty Compson, and immediately after this picture is finished he intends making the first of many stories he has been working upon. He is free to make a picture for any film organization, providing he sanctions the story to be filmed. Byron Morgan is now working on a story for him.

Ince With First National

Thomas H. Ince yesterday signed with First National Pictures one of the biggest contracts of the year, involving the expenditure of several millions in production costs. By the terms of the agreement, which brings Mr. Ince's productions under First National release for the fourth successive season, six specials will be made under his personal supervision during the coming year.

For the past few months a staff of readers has been combing the international story market for unusual material and the schedule when completed will include the most varied offerings.

"Christine of the Hungry Heart," Bradley King's adaptation of the Kathleen Norris novel, which has had such sensational sales, and which is due to go into production shortly under the direction of John Griffith Wray, will complete the First National schedule of six Ince specials for 1923-4. The other five releases included offerings of such caliber as "Anna Christie," "The Galloping Fish," which opens today at the Rialto, by the way, "Those Who Dance," "Her Reputation," and "The Marriage Cheat," every one of which has been as successful as it was different.

"I have just completed a reorganization of my studios and perfected plans for the coming year which make it possible for me to promise the six biggest offerings which have yet come from the Ince studios," declares the producer. "Every facility for technical finish, every bit of paraphernalia for the most up-to-date processes known to the art of the cinematographer are now included in our studio equipment. No detail has been overlooked which would contribute to the technical perfection of my productions.

"My aim in story selection has been to find even bigger and more dramatic material than was available this past season. Every story for the coming year has been picked not only with forethought for its fundamental dramatic or comedy values and tested by box-office standards, but also with the idea of giving the exhibitors an appealing variety which is such a tremendous asset in holding a patronage.

"All the signs are right for one of the biggest screen years on record, in my opinion, and we have prepared for it with every means known to the industry. Even during the so-called slump of the past years, my studios remained open and running, and for the coming year I anticipate the best business on record for exhibitors and producers alike."

Louise Fazenda Sob Sister

Looks as though Louise Fazenda is just bound to turn herself into a sob sister and live down "The Galloping Fish," and such like frivolous efforts.

At any rate, Miss Fazenda has signed for a heavily dramatic role in "Clinging Fingers," the Universal special which is to be Virginia Valli's next starring vehicle, and in which Norman Kerry has the leading masculine role.

Harold Names Baby

Harold Lloyd and mamma Mildred Davis Lloyd have found a name for their little daughter, and announce it in dainty blue-and-white cards appropriately tied up with baby-blue ribbon. The name is Mildred Gloria Lloyd, the Gloria, it is understood, being in honor of Gloria Hope, who is a close friend of Mrs. Lloyd.

Vivian Martin in Films

Vivian Martin, who is appearing with Donald Brian at the Mason in "Just Married," this week, being handy by, as you might say, to the studios, is going to make hay while the sun shines. The tour of "Just Married" ends shortly, and Miss Martin is just as likely as not to take another flyer into pictures.

Alice Brady Soon

Having decided she would like to take a peep at the great open spaces of the West, Alice Brady is coming out to start a tour in vaudeville. She will appear at the Orpheum here in the third act of "Drifting," the melodrama in which she appeared in New York last year, in a fortnight.

Alaska Heard From

And speaking of the great open spaces, we have just received a letter from the spaces that are spaces. The writer is George Edward Lewis, producer of "Cheechakos," who has gone to Alaska again to produce another picture, and who has some thrilling news to impart.

"Just a few lines from the backbone of the world," writes Mr. Lewis. "We are here in the Saw-Tooth Mountains 6000 feet above sea level. Snow thousands of feet deep. Absolutely the most wonderful location on earth. Valleys and mountain peaks dizzy and deep, mountain sheep and ptarmigan, porcupine and brown bear, fox and birds and wild animals here.

"We successfully shot our snow slides today. Worked and waited eleven days in preparation. Got six slides; one completely buried the villain and his stolen dog-team. I think that is a feat never attempted before.

"We are buried beyond recognition by Arctic trade winds, blistered by suns on mountain tops, and our lips are parched and faces peeling; wet and weary worn and hungry, but withal happy over success.

"When we can lead the audiences into this region aloof from the way of the most adventurous sourdough, and show them this valley of a thousand snow-slides, these many unknown peaks tinted with the northland suns, rocks precipitous and rugged, and men racing with death and time amid these regions where goat almost fears to climb, we shall feel repaid for all our efforts and afflictions. I'm just wondering what a lot of picture folk would say and do if they were here with us, above the clouds, and out from the shelter, away from all conveniences.

"I had to walk two miles down the mountain to the depot office to write you this letter.

"Here's a joke. We eat in Alaska but drink in the Yukon Territory. It is wet there."

Louise Fazenda,

Playing one of the leading roles in "The Galloping Fish," which opens at the Rialto today.

JACKIE IS LAST TO LEAVE OLD STUDIO

When Jackie Coogan's present production, "Little Robinson Crusoe" is finished, the final excuse for the existence of the present Metro studio properties will be conceled, and that Hollywood landmark will be no more. Jackie's company is the only one left on the lot since the Metro-Goldwyn merger, and the little star's business offices will close their doors in about two weeks.

For seven years the Metro studios have been the birthplace of thousands of picture productions. Jackie's first picture on his famous contract, the prelude to which was the payment to him of a half million dollars bonus, was made in its entirety on the Metro lot. Rex Ingram's "Four Horsemen" and "Scaramouche" and scores of other spectacles were also filmed at 900 Cahuenga avenue.

According to reports from Mr. Loew's New York office the buildings on the Metro lot will be transferred to the new plant at Culver City and the property will be sold off in lots.

ERNEST BALL AT LOEW'S TOMORROW

Ernest R. Ball, composer, whose "Boy of Mine" song has been one of the most popular ballads of recent years, will be honor guest at Loew's State Theater tomorrow evening, where Booth Tarkington's story of the same name brought to the screen is showing. Mr. Ball has consented to appear on the stage at the evening performances and sing his ballad. "Boy of Mine" was written by Mr. Ball when his son went to war and there is as tender and human a note in connection with it as there is in the Tarkington story.

The audience tomorrow night is expected to include dozens of friends of the composer and members of the cast of the picture.

CUMMINGS SEARCHES FOR LEADING PLAYER

Irving Cummings, director of M. C. Levee's "Belonging," upon which production, work is soon to be started, cannot find an available leading woman in Hollywood, to portray the most important part in the story.

For several weeks M. C. Levee, the producer, has been searching for the right actress to play the part, and now Mr. Cummings has taken up the search. Prominent stars who would fit the part are in every instance, working in other pictures.

If an established actress cannot be found to fit the part a player of lesser experience, of which there are many, will be engaged and developed to portray it.

ADELE ROWLAND TO RETURN TO STAGE

Conway Tearle is doomed to the fate of a grass widower.

Mrs. Tearle, better known as Adele Rowland, the musical comedy star, has arrived in New York, where she will resume her professional career after a year's absence from the stage.

When motion-picture contracts took Tearle to Hollywood, Miss Rowland came West for a short vacation. Domestic life here so appealed to her that she prolonged her visit from month to month, rejecting theatrical offers repeatedly.

Within the last few weeks she has had such tempting offers that she finally consented to return to the stage. Three musical comedy offers and one for vaudeville are awaiting her decision in New York, which will keep her in the East several months.

POLA FEATURED IN BATTLE OF SEXES

The persecutions which countless women suffer at the hands of the stronger sex and the retaliatory measures which women adopt in their battle against life are the theme and substance of Pola Negri's latest colorful glimpse of the battle of the sexes, "Men," which opens at Grauman's Metropolitan Saturday.

"Men" is Dimitri Buckowetzki's first American production starring Pola Negri. Robert Frazer, Robert Edeson, Josef Swickard, Monti Collins, Gino Corrado and Edgar Norton are in the supporting cast. The story is an original by the director.

Change Allows Comedy to be Offered Here

"Polly Preferred," with the New York comedy star, Genevieve Tobin, is going to be seen in this city after all.

When the announcement was first made that this Guy Bolton comedy hit was going to be one of the attractions at the Majestic Theater with Miss Tobin in the role she created in New York, the news was received with delight by theater patrons of the city. Then word went forth that the engagement was canceled because of Miss Tobin's early return to New York, where she is to begin rehearsals of a new play for the coming season.

Now because of the cutting short of the engagement of Leo Carrillo, who is duplicating his former success in "Lombardi, Ltd.," on Sunday night, the 15th inst., to go East, where he is scheduled to follow Otis Skinner at the Ohio Theater in Cleveland, the appearance of Miss Tobin is made possible. Her engagement will be limited to two weeks, beginning Monday, June 16.

"Polly Preferred" is a comedy of the movies and like "Merton of the Movies," was one of the big comedy hits in New York. It ran there for two years at the Little Theater with Miss Tobin as Polly. The bringing of Miss Tobin to the Majestic by Producer Thomas Wilkes necessitates the postponing of the return of Edward Everett Horton in "The Nervous Wreck" one week.

NEW YORK, June 3.—Leaving tomorrow aboard the Berengaria, Jeanne Eagles, star of "Rain," will go to the continent to watch another artist play the part of Sadie Thompson in German. Jesse Lasky of the film corporation with his wife, will be another passenger and Carmel Myers, screen actress, will be aboard on her way to enter German films.

Other professional men and women aboard the Berengaria will include Edna Ferber, Miss R. F. Wilson, Ernest Wolf, Helmuth Goeze, Paul Ebner and Edward Burns, motion-picture directors and many others.

CALIFORNIA PROFFERS WELCOME INFORMATION

Elinor Glyn's newest story to be transferred to the silver sheet is "How to Educate a Wife." Many husbands have tried and found themselves sunk without a trace. Educators, philosophers, theorists, playwrights and novelists have devoted millions of words to the problem and then silently given up the struggle.

Those who have seen "How to Educate a Wife," which is to open at the California Theater Saturday, declare that Mrs. Glyn has devised a unique method all her own. She has written a delightful story with a big "kick" and Monta Bell has taken the story and made it into a clever and entertaining photoplay.

Marie Prevost is one of the subjects for education; Betty Francisco is another and Vera Lewis is the third. The educators are Monte Blue, Claude Gillingwater, Creighton Hale and Edward Earle.

MOROSCO COMEDY IS TALK FROM SHOULDER

"There's a whole lot more truth than poetry in some of the 'bluff' lines of that first act," said Gayne Whitman the other day between acts of "Six-Cylinder Love," the current attraction at the Morosco.

"The play's a comedy, all right enough, but it puts over some serious satire in the opening act.

"Probably one of the big faults with some of our American suburban society is their eternal effort to make people believe they've got more income than they really have.

"It gets the Burtons into difficulties in the play and then does the same thing with the Sterlings. They get just what is coming to them, because nothing in the world pays less than trying to make things seem what they are not."

EDITH ELLIS COMEDY IN TWENTIETH WEEK

The twentieth week of "White Collars" at the Egan Theater starts Sunday night and takes on new and additional interest due to the fact that the author, Edith Ellis, has been here whipping the play into shape, adding a prologue, making many effective changes in lines and business. At the same time several new faces will be seen in the cast, including Craig Ward, late of the Morosco, who will be seen in the role of the young millionaire. Ross Forrester has been engaged for the role of Henry and Marvel Quivey ascends to the role of Helen Thayer. The remainder of the cast includes Ruth Lee, Zellah Covington, Blanche Douglas, Paul Kruger, Isabel Foyer and Stuart Erwin.

"ROMANCE" WILL GO NORTH NEXT MONTH

With seven performances past the 2000 mark to her credit when "Romance" concludes its run at the Playhouse Saturday, Doris Keane will take a month's rest before resuming her work. Thereafter the actress will be presented by Louis O. Macloon in the same vehicle at the Curran Theater in San Francisco, opening July 6.

"Romance" is already heavily subscribed to in the Golden Gate metropolis and is assured of a long run. And when the supply of theatergoers is exhausted there Miss Keane will return to Los Angeles and a new production at the Playhouse.

Champion Band to Render Radio Concert

SAXOPHONE IS RULER OF AIR

Thompson Band Renders Fine Program at KHJ

Matinee Recital Resumption is Hailed by Fans

Noted 'Cellist Gives Great Demonstration of Art

BY CLAIRE FORBES CRANE

The interest of Radioland yesterday was focused on one of the cleverest and best beloved organizations in Southern California—Kathryn Thompson's Southern California Saxophone Band. There is only one other in the United States which possibly could compete with it. The band is fortunate in having at its head not only an artist on the saxophone, but an extremely fine composer as well.

Another event was the beginning of a new series of matinee recitals.

Radio has become such an integral part of city life that KHJ listeners-in expressed sincere regret when the matinee programs were discontinued. The reopening of the afternoon recitals, therefore, was hailed with delight. Barker Brothers again demonstrated their ability to preside over the educational as well as entertaining aspect which the 2:30 hour has assumed.

UNPARALLELED FEAT

Franz Lusschen, one of the foremost 'cellists of the Philharmonic Orchestra, performed a feat which knows no parallel in the history of ordinary concert routine. Eager to give as much as possible to the thousands who were held thrall to the warm, sonorous tone of clean-cut technique, Lusschen played the famous Saint-Saens concerto in entirety, and also the stupendous variations of Boellman. Either one of these works is ample food for one concert—but that is the psychology of radio broadcasting, one is inspired to give "pressed down and running over."

Mr. Lusschen is a newcomer as a soloist to the radio family, and it toook only the masterful opening measures of the concerto to win instant tribute to his art.

The Cinderella Roof could not possibly vie in gaiety with the roof of the Times Building during the noon broadcasting hour.

Yesterday White's Californians played fast and furiously—their rendition of famous "blues" sending shivers up and down many a jazz-loving spine.

The evening was a typical June night, warm and odorous. From the roof of the studio could be seen the lights of the city, and the program was calculated to allow the audience to listen in that half-reverie mood of complete relaxation which is one of the happiest ways to enjoy music. The Southern California Music Company presented Kathryn Thompson and her Southern California Saxophone Band, Lillian Althouse, saxophone soloist, and Albert Bryant, tenor.

The saxophone is the true instrument of this era, and no greater exponents could be found than the Southern California Saxophone Band. Beautiful, smooth tone, peppy rhythms and faultless pitch distinguish all the members.

Albert Bryant demonstrated a fine lyric tenor voice in his rendition of Bond's "The Hand of You." An especially thrilling number was Roland Seitz's march, "Our Defenders," played for all "our boys who now are in army hospitals."

INSPIRING TALK

Dr. Thomas Lutman prepared a splendid atmosphere for the musical program by a stimulating talk on "The Man With no Gold Braid on His Coat."

The children's hour again brought Prof. Walter Sylvester Hertzog, whose nightly talks on the history of the nation are rapidly becoming one of the greatest features of KHJ.

Tuesday night always brings the fairy Queen Titania and her ever faithful Sandman. His method of advent into the studio is a matter of weekly conjecture. Last evening it happened in this wise:

Uncle John heard a laugh which he recognized as Queen Titania's. Thinking quickly, he composed a verse which was intended to call her into the studio, and at once she and the Sandman appeared.

The Queen of the Fairies explained that they had been just outside the window, enjoying the program. She said she had been laughing at a joke on the Sandman, he having been caught by the camera during the taking of the latest motion picture which Queen Titania is making to entertain her friends in Radioland.

Uncle John questioned the Queen about some of the birds and she told of them in verse. She then read a verse which had been sent to her by one of the Radioland friends.

The Sandman told of the record of Prince Everyman, which is a part of the Fairy Library. He explained that this is a history of what every mortal must go through during life, and he told to Radioland the first part of this life story, promising to bring to KHJ more of this history in the future.

"Baby" Muriel MacCormac, 5-year-old screen juvenile, had a delightful time talking to Uncle John over the microphone, and Russell Cheever, saxophone, pupil of Kathryn Thompson, demonstrated the result of careful training and hard work. A bedtime story by Uncle John sent all the lads and lassies to dreamland with added sense of love and gratitude for that voice which is a luring entity in so many households.

TAX RELIEF TO BE IMMEDIATE

Income Levy Cut to Effect 15th Inst. Payment

Half of Year's Total Must be in on That Date

Refunds to be Made Where Full Amount is Paid

Taxpayers will benefit immediately from the tax reduction provision of the new revenue bill signed Monday by President Coolidge, the Collector of Internal Revenue announced yesterday. In accordance with telegraphic instructions from Washington, the reduction of 25 per cent on taxes payable this year on 1923 income will take effect with the second quarterly installment which must be paid on or before the 15th inst.

So widespread is the interest in the procedure to be followed in making the reduction that it has been necessary to employ an extra telephone operator in the revenue office to answer questions, Collector Goodsell said.

These rules have been announced by the collector for the guidance of taxpayers:

If three-fourths of the 1923 tax has been paid, no further payment is due. If one-half has been paid, no further payment will be due until September 15. If only one-fourth of the amount due has been paid, it will be necessary on or before the 15th inst. to pay only one-half of the amount paid for the first quarter.

"The chief point to be remembered is that one-half of the tax due this year must be paid on or before the 15th inst.," Collector Goodsell said. "In other words, if the total tax due on your return was $120 and you paid $30 on March 15, last, you will have to pay $15 on or before the 15th inst.; $22.50 on or before September 15, and a final payment on or before December 15. This will give you the benefit of the 25 per cent reduction and will conform to the procedure provided for by law. Where taxes have been paid in full, refunds or credits will be made in accordance with a procedure to be announced later."

The collector has received information from Washington to the effect that in view of the recent action of Atty.-Gen. Stone, withdrawing the Daugherty opinion stating that income from community property is divisible for the State of California, all action relative to refunds on both income and estate taxes will be held in abeyance pending further consideration by the Attorney-General.

Taxpayers are advised to protect their interests by filing waivers for the 1918 tax prior to the 15th inst., and claims for refund before April 1, 1925. With reference to taxes paid from 1919 to 1922, inclusive, the collector said claims for refund may be filed if taxpayers desire. As for the 1923 taxes, he advises no action be taken until further instructions concerning community property are received from Washington.

ADVERTISING MEN ELECT A. D. SMITH

Local Club in Annual Meeting; Retiring Head Reviews Year of Success

Arthur D. Smith, advertising manager of Barker Brothers, was elected president of the Advertising Club of Los Angeles at the annual election of that organization yesterday at the Biltmore.

The other officers elected, to take office July 1, are Irving R. Smith, first vice-president; second vice-president, John M. Kemp; secretary-treasurer, Donald K. Thomas; directors, Paul S. Armstrong, Lloyd L. Staffers and Ross Welch.

A. Carman Smith, retiring president of the club, congratulated the organization on having won eleven out of the twenty-two trophies offered at the Fresno convention of the Pacific Coast Advertising clubs. "Sidelights on the Convention" were presented in brief addresses by Messrs. F. H. McMahon, H. S. Carroll, Don E. Forker, Paul Armstrong and Herman Nater.

It was announced that the meeting of the club next Tuesday will be conducted at the Alexandria Hotel and that the speaker will be A. G. Arnoll, industrial secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

FAUST ALIMONY CASE AWAITS DEPOSITIONS

EXTENT OF HUSBAND'S OHIO ESTATE TO DETERMINE SUM FOR WIFE

The attempt of Mrs. Mary T. Faust to obtain temporary alimony from her elderly husband, William H. Faust, pending trial of her second suit for divorce, will be delayed for the taking of depositions in Toledo, O., in accordance with an order from Judge Fleming, before whom the hearing opened yesterday.

Mrs. Faust is suing on a desertion charge. Several years ago she sued naming another woman, but that action was dropped.

In her effort to obtain $250 a month temporary alimony she attempted to show that Faust has valuable property in Toledo, his former home. Faust contended that the property referred to belonged to the Faust Estate Company, a corporation formed formed in connection with the property settlement when he was divorced from his first wife, and that it is owned by two daughters by his first marriage. The depositions to be taken in Toledo were ordered to clear up this point.

FILM DIRECTOR WANTS TO BE REAL AMERICAN

JAPANESE IN RUSH TO GET TO AMERICA

Jam Piers to Take Ships Before Exclusion Act is Effective July 1

Japanese piers are jammed with America-bound Nipponese and Japanese liners are doubling back in the mad rush to make American ports before the Exclusion Act becomes effective July 1, according to word brought to Los Angeles Harbor yesterday on the Japanese liner Anyo Maru.

The liner was the last ship to leave Japan before the law was passed and had only nineteen American Japanese returning to California through this port.

The Ginyo Maru is due next week with the first big crowd out of Japan since the act was passed and she is said to have every accommodation taken. A large number of Japanese ships are said to have cut their shedules and returned home for ship-loads of America-bound orientals.

The vessel had 250 passengers aboard, including one white woman, Mrs. C. J. J. Hutchinson, returning home to England from the Orient. Others included a score of Hindus bound for Manzanillo, Mexico, to work in the fields and sixty Japanese picture brides bound for South America.

A Chinese baby was born on the way across the Pacific and was given the name of the ship, Anyo Maru, which means quiet, peaceful.

The liner will sail at 9 o'clock this morning for Mexico and South America on her 27,000-mile voyage around the world.

SUBMARINES WIN MIMIC NAVAL WAR

Diving Craft Torpedoes Hit Fleeing Battleships in Fleet Practice

Yesterday was a big day for the underwater craft of Submarine Division 16. The dreadnaughts Idaho and Oklahoma steamed deceptive courses out at sea while the giant S-type submarines launched torpedoes at the fleeing steel hulls in annual target practice.

Six seaplanes of VS Squadron 2 circled overhead and chased the speeding torpedoes, locating their position for the destroyers Corry and MacDonough.

High averages were made by all submarines, which included the S-30, S-32, S-33, S-34 and S-35, according to unofficial figures.

The remainder of the fleet remained in port, busy at machinery overhaul in preparation for the strenuous week incident to the firing of force practice on the 11th inst.

The Corry and MacDonough will depart for the Mare Island navy yard this morning for annual overhaul.

Tomorrow the seaplanes 2-S-5 and 2-S-7, piloted by Lieuts. John F. Wegforth and J. F. Strong, will attempt to lay down the Navy's new aerial smoke screen of titanium tetrachloride. Officers are scheduled to be aloft in other planes to witness the experiments.

Raise chickens this year—

Without bothering with incubators.

Without investing money in expensive buildings.

Without buying feed—at least not much.

Without waking up every morning to the crow of a rooster.

Send today for your free illustrated government chicken book, which tells how to keep a small flock of hens in the back yard on table scraps; then follow the simple instructions and gather the eggs. It is illustrated with photographs and diagrams.

SUES PASTOR HUSBAND

Negro's Wife Asserts He is a Devil Among the Ladies

Her husband, Rev. John A. H. Eldridge, pastor of Trinity Baptist Church, colored, and a porter on the Southern Pacific Pullman service, also was a devil among the women, Mrs. Louise A. Eldridge asserted yesterday in a divorce complaint. She declared it was his custom to "unnecessarily frequent the society of the female members of his congregation," to take them on long automobile rides and to visit their homes at "late and unseemly hours." Besides, he said she was crazy, according to the complaint.

Pastor Eldridge gets a salary of $100 monthly; Porter Eldridge, $50 and tips of $100 more; and there is a bungalow on the rear of the Eldridge $7000 house and lot that rents for $50 a month, the wife declares.

RAIL ROUTING CASE TO BE HEARD HERE TODAY

TWO LINES ASK APPROVAL OF PLAN TO REDUCE STREET TRAFFIC

Approval of the temporary revocable permits recently granted by the City Council to the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific as an experimental measure to attempt to reduce freight traffic on Alameda street will be sought today by the railways before the State Railroad Commission.

Commissioner Brundige of the State body is scheduled to begin hearings at 10 o'clock today on the applications of the two railroads for permission to operate under the city ordinance.

In their application to the State the companies ask for permission to re-route all through Southern Pacific freight trans from the harbor line and branch lines from the South on to the Los Angeles & Salt Lake tracks along the eastern bank of the Los Angeles River.

According to the application the trains will be diverted from Alameda street between Redondo and Butte streets, joining the present Southern Pacific tracks again at Alhambra avenue in the northern part of the city.

Barnes, colored, during an altercation near Central avenue and Seventh street, on April 24 last. It is said the defense will be that Lewis acted in accordance with the "unwritten law."

FORGER EXILED BY COURT EDICT

Talented Boy Put on Three-Year Probation

Must Stay Away During Period, is Sentence

"Man Without a Country" Cited by Judge

Howard Gordon Berg, writer, linguist and confessed check forger, was placed on probation for three years yesterday by Judge Avery in Superior Court on condition that Berg remain away from California during that time.

The condition was imposed by the court after Berg had declared he loved Southern California and desired to make this his home.

Berg, who is 19 years of age, told the court he came here from Dayton, O., on what he planned to be a world tour. Back in Dayton, he said, he had arranged with a newspaper to write a weekly letter of his experiences in various corners of the world. He came to Southern California and immediately the charm of the country overcame him. He decided to give up the idea of the world trip and remain here. He obtained a position as a publicity man for a circus in winter quarters here but the hoof-and-mouth epidemic threw him out of work. He grew hungry, he said, and forged a check to buy food.

The court asked Berg if he had ever read Edward Everett Hale's "Man Without a Country." The prisoner replied he had read the story several times.

"Well, I am going to place you in the position of the principal character of that work," the court said. "I want to teach you to appreciate home and country. You love Southern California but I am going to place you on probation for three years on this condition—during that period you do not set foot on the soil of California. If you do you will be sent to the penitentiary. I want to impress you with the seriousness of your offense."

WINS AWARD OF $500 FOR SCHOLARSHIP

Los Angeles Teacher One of Fifty Victors in Health Education Contest

Miss Nellie Stevenson, 222 West Fifteenth street, a teacher in the Los Angeles city schools, is one of fifty winners of $500 scholarships in the nationwide contest, conducted by the American Child Health Association, a dispatch from New York headquarters last night stated.

Two other local teachers, Mrs. Scottie Dickason, 117-A Fries avenue, Wilmington, and Mrs. Sarah Colby, 218 South St. Louis street, received honorable mention.

The awards were made on a basis of work done in health education the last year. The fifty contestants were selected out of a group of 1639 that originally entered the contest.

The local committee which assisted the national committee on awards included Mrs. Charles Gilbert, Dr. Cole Kelley, school physician; Miss Elsie Jordt, principal, Robert B. Green School, and Miss Florence Anderson, representative local teachers' council.

Inspector of Bathing Suits Denies He Quit

A report given wide circulation to the effect that Tom Robinson, official inspector of bathing suits, was about to relinquish his post at Newport Beach, brought forth an emphatic denial from the veteran official yesterday.

"Who ever said I wanted or intended to resign as inspector of bathing girls' bathing suits is either a dam liar or he must be full of hop.

"I want to correct that statement that I am going to resign and am grieved to think that such an impression has been created at my time of life. I'm 69 years of age and have never been a quitter. In my time I have been held up seven times and never flinched once and I hardly think that I am going to take a back seat when it comes to regulating the size of a bathing suit. I am paying strict attention to our city ordinance which says the bathing suit must not be more than ten inches above the knee. If there has been any complaint from those whose bathing suits I have inspected I have yet to hear of it. Being a man of discretion I know better than to argue with a woman."

ACCUSED BIGAMIST SEEKS PROBATION

WIFE THOUGHT HE WAS AT WORK, BUT SAYS HE WAS COURTING NURSE

How he paid court to Hattie Beatrice Gilmore while his wife was at home under the impression he was at work, was told yesterday in Judge Avery's court, where Frederick C. Hansen appeared for hearing on an application for probation. Hansen is charged with bigamy.

According to Dep. Dist.-Atty Hill, Hansen, who is 32 years of age, married Miss Gilmore April 21, last, while he was still the husband of Mary L. Hansen, 5008 South Gramercy Place. Mrs. Hansen said the defendant married her in May, 1923, after a three months' courtship. Miss Gilmore is a nurse. After their wedding, she said, they went to San Diego on a honeymoon trip and Hansen deserted her two days later.

Probation Officer Neilly recommended that Hansen's application for probation be denied. The case was continued until today for further hearing.
